BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Mile a minute service on suburban trains is a vision now haunting commuters. The new "400" Twin Cities flyer of the Chicago and North Western railway—400 miles, 400 minutes—and the streamline trains of the Union Pacific and the Burlington have shown what can be done in demolishing distance, and suburbanites are now asking when they, too, are to profit from the new era in railroading.

A race to knock down the ears of Father Time is on. Yesterday a new Milwaukee railroad flyer made the 85 miles to Milwaukee in 76 minutes. It was four minutes ahead of schedule. A new time table cuts the running time of the Milwaukee's 22 trains between the two cities. Two trains are to make the 85 mile run in 80 minutes, three in 85 minutes, others in 90 minutes. It shows what can be done on suburban lines.

The North Western "400" flyer on Jan. 2 shrank the 85 miles to Milwaukee into 80 minutes. If the semicircle of suburbs on the fringe of Chicago had mile-a-minute service, it would mean 40 minutes to Joliet, 38 to Aurora, 35 to Geneva, 37 to Elgin, 28 to Lake Forest, 36 to Waukegan, 26 to Gary, 56 minutes to Michigan City, 86 to South Bend, and Evanston in 12 minutes.

Might Recapture Business.

The railroads say they see little likelihood of speeding up suburban lines soon. Some of them are studying possible means such as new type cars and power. Trafic experts outside the rails hold that faster schedules would enable the railroads to recapture suburban trafic which has gone to the electric lines and to automobiles and buses on the highways.

As the "400" flashes by north shore suburbs, passengers waiting for 30 mile an hour trains point to the heavy trafic on the mile a minute flyer as showing the response which would greet fast suburban service.

Lake Forest, 28 miles away, is 38 to 60 minutes distant from Chicago. Highland Park, 23 miles away, is 30 to 53 minutes. Waukegan, 36 miles north, is 55 minutes to 73 minutes away. It depends what time of day one travels.

Kenosha is only 52 miles north, but on the Victory flyer it is 68 minutes from Chicago. On the famous 5:10 flyer the 52 miles are covered in 75 minutes, as compared with yesterday's 85 miles in 76 minutes to Milwaukee.

12 Miles in 17 Minutes.

Evanston [Davis street] is 12 miles away, but the best time is 17 minutes. The roadbed is elevated, no grade crossings. The railroad engineers say that in the 3 miles from the terminal to Deering bridge curves make it unsafe to run it in less than 6 minutes. The other 9 miles to Evanston take 11 minutes, including the stop, or 60 miles an hour on the flyer. Other trains take 20 to 30 minutes for the 12 miles. The nonstop 5:10 now makes the 20 miles from Deering bridge to Highland Park in 23 minutes, an indication of what is possible.

The Illinois Central has the largest suburban trafic. From 12th to 53d street, a 5 mile speedway, the trains make it in 7 minutes, about 43 miles an hour, which is slower than most automobiles travel on the outer drive. The 23 miles to Flossmoor are covered in 39 to 44 minutes on "specials." Running time went up when more stops were put on.

Elgin and Joliet Run.

A one stop train on the Milwaukee takes 55 minutes to cover 37 miles to Elgin. The Rock Island covers 40 miles to Joliet in 55 to 70 minutes. Gary is only 26 miles from Chicago, but it is 37 minutes away on the fast 5:15 two stop train of the New York Central. On slower trains it takes as high as 55 or 60 minutes.

Michigan City, 56 miles out, is almost as distant as Milwaukee. The Michigan Central's Wolverine does it in 76 minutes. Other through trains take 80 or 88 minutes.

South Bend [86 miles] is much farther away in minutes than Milwaukee [85 miles]. The Lake Shore Limited of the New York Central takes 112 minutes to South Bend. Other through trains make it in 110 to 122 minutes somewhere around 45 miles an hour, as against a mile a minute to Milwaukee.

BELGIUM FIGHTS NAZI PLOT TO REANNEX EUPEN

Police Nab Agitators in Two Cantons.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Gendarmerie reënforcements were rushed to the cantons of Eupen and Malmedy today and a number of agitators for the return of the section to Germany were arrested.

The possibility of Belgium's protesting directly to Berlin or lodging a complaint with the league of nations concerning the reinvigorated campaign of the German sympathizers was seen in political circles.

Nazi Sympathizers Parade.

Nazi sympathizers, inspired by the result of last Sunday's Saar plebiscite which returned the basin to Germany, paraded several days ago to make plain their desire to have the cantons reannexed to the fatherland. They were taken from Germany under the Versailles treaty.

Eupen and Malmedy have an area of about 400 square miles. Their population on Dec. 31, 1920, was 60,213. These two cantons, formerly part of Rhenish Prussia, were joined to the province of Liege by decree March 6, 1925. The territory includes the town of Eupen, with a population of about 15,000. Eupen boasts spinning mills and other establishments connected with the textile industry, iron foundries, machine shops, and tanneries. The town of Malmedy was until the close of the eighteenth century the seat of a Benedictine abbey whose abbot was one of the petty ecclesiastical princes of the old German empire.

Although the press has not emphasized the incidents, it was learned the Belgian authorities have been most active in trying to ascertain the identity of the agitation principals.

Pamphlets, said to have been printed in Germany, and widely distributed in Eupen and Malmedy, invited the coöperation of the population in overriding the provisions of the treaty by obtaining the return of the cantons to the reich.

The reinforcements were sent to the district when the posters of the agitators, once torn down, reappeared on the streets overnight.

Celebrate Vote in Saar.

It was learned thousands of Eupen Hitlerites attended a demonstration in celebration of the Saar vote, marching in the streets toward the meeting place as swastikas were hoisted on a number of buildings, including churches.

These emblems reappeared after the police removed them. The manifestoes posted on the street corners urged the residents to "follow the example of the Saar. Return to the fatherland."

A Malmedy alderman, known for his pro-Belgian sympathies, said he was threatened with death by the Nazis. He said they were terrorizing the loyalists who refused to join the organization directed by the Brown Shirts, with headquarters at Aachen [Aix-la-Chapelle].

Nazis Burn Flags of Foes.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Bonfires of red flags were being lighted throughout the Saar today by Nazis engaged in sweeping out communist and Socialist centers from the territory.

All flags, banners, and insignia found in workers' welfare centers and Socialist and communist headquarters were piled in heaps and burned while local Nazis dashed about singing the "Horst Wessel" [Nazi anthem] and "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

Take Over Welfare Centers.

Virtually all welfare centers have been taken over by the Nazis, unaided by the police, and swastika flags hoisted over them. Nazi units in some districts held meetings in former Red buildings, now completely in their possession. The property will be confiscated. Socialists fear, without recompense.

Nearly complete Black Shirt uniforms are appearing on the streets despite the fact the governing commission has not yet lifted its prohibition on uniforms. Groups of Storm Troopers and well disciplined boys walk the streets singing spiritedly "New Germany." Sometimes they are accompanied by bands.

Newspapers, now all Nazi, pro-

TWO WAY DECISION ON GOLD PROGRAM VIEWED AS POSSIBLE

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The New York Law Journal in an editorial to be published tomorrow suggests that the Supreme court may sustain the congressional joint resolution which abrogated gold clause obligations and at the same time invalidate President Roosevelt's proclamation decreasing the gold content of the dollar.

Even if the court held that the President exercised a power which congress had no right to delegate to him, the editorial said "curative legislation" could be adopted to remedy the situation.

"No surprise need be felt if the decision indicates that the colloquies between court and counsel which have caused so much anxiety foreshadowed nothing more alarming than a decision by a majority of the justices sustaining the validity of the abrogation of the gold clauses," the editorial said, in part. "One or more vigorous dissenting opinions will comfort the consciences of the dissenters without influencing in any way the net result of the decision of the majority.

"Finally, the possibility may be suggested of the disapproval of the proclamation of the President of Jan. 31, 1934, decreasing the gold content of the dollar as an unauthorized delegation of legislative power."

Banks to Lend 20 Million to Pay Teachers

Arrangements have been completed to provide cash payment of the monthly salaries of teachers and all other school board employés until the end of the school year in June, it was learned last night. The sale of $20,000,000 in new 1935 educational fund tax warants to a syndicate of five loop banks will provide the necessary funds.

Purchase of these warants marks the largest block ever bought at one time by the loop banks. The five banks were the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, First National Bank and Trust company, Northern Trust company, Harris Bank and Trust company, and the City National bank.

McCahey Pleased with Plan.

President James B. McCahey of the school board, who with the other school trustees arranged the sale after month long conferences with the bankers, expressed himself last night as highly satisfied with the transaction. At the present time school employés are paid up to date.

"We shall now be able to pay the teachers and all other board employés in full as their salaries come due," said Mr. McCahey. "Completion of this sale puts an end to the unjust rumor that the school board would cease paying in cash at the end of March."

Passage of the 1935 pegged educational fund levy by the general assembly last week enabled the school board to put the finishing touches to the deal with the banks which will be closed today. The bill, similar to one passed for the 1934 fund, pegs the levy at $43,000,000, and absorbs $3,000,000 of a $7,000,000 deficit now facing the fund.

Bring Interest Rate Down.

Pegging of the levy and exhaustive arguments on the part of Mr. McCahey and the other trustees also brought the interest on the new warants down from 5 per cent to 4 per cent. This is the second time the new school board has succeeded in reducing the interest rate.

In 1929 the rate was 6 per cent. It remained there until the new board took office in 1933, when the rate was reduced to 5 per cent for the 1934 warants.

Mr. McCahey also pointed out that details of the transaction as arranged by the school board will result in a saving of approximately half a million dollars in interest charges. It was arranged that the sales would be made at the rate of about $4,000,000 monthly as needed for the pay rolls, so that interest would not begin accruing until the money actually changed hands.

OIL SHIP AFIRE OFF PORTO RICO; REPORTS TWO LIFEBOATS LEFT

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The motor tanker Valverda, bound for Hamburg with a cargo of fuel oil, asked all ships in the neighborhood of Porto Rico tonight for immediate assistance. A fire, the ship said, was raging in her engine room.

The British liner Rangitiki, plying in the New Zealand trade through the Panama canal, reported her position as about 550 miles from the distressed ship.

Marine officials in New York were unable to say under what house flag the Valverda was flying. The radio messages indicated she was British, but no Valverda is listed in Lloyd's register of shipping.

It was said the vessel might be new and not registered in latest American editions of Lloyd's.

SEEK TO FIND OUT IF MERCURY HAS ANY MOUNTAINS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Across 100 million miles of space astronomers are going to explore the planet Mercury to find whether its surface is rough or smooth.

They will do this by a method of analyzing the light that it reflects from the sun to the earth, the Carnegie Institution of Washington announced today.

Using the same tests on moonlight, the institution's astronomers already have determined that the moon's surface is rough, probably much like the rough surface of lava that has cooled. Telescopes show huge craters and mountains on the moon, but analysis of moonlight shows that the whole surface of the moon is also full of holes, hollows, humps, and ridges, too small to be seen with telescopes.

The same method can be used to "feel" the surface of Mercury, because like the moon it has no atmosphere to interfere with the passage of light rays and spoil the measurements.

Chicago Boy Drowns When Ice Breaks in Indiana Lake

Police Snatch Groom from Arms of Bride

A clergyman chanted the solemn marriage service in the Russian Holy Trinity cathedral at 1121 North Leavitt street yesterday. Incense swirled through the lofty nave and eddied before the dark gold altar screens.

Flickering candle light picked out the shining face of a tall youth as he stood in his new blue suit before the altar with his bride, the former Miss Marie Brenko, 18 years old, 2332 Augusta boulevard. The soft light shone on the brunette hair of the bride, on her long white veil, and on the calla lilies in her arms.

Groomsmen stood behind the pair, holding crowns over their heads in the tradition of the Orthodox ceremony. The groom and his bride exchanged small gold rings, embraced, and walked happily down the aile as the bridesmaids and the ushers followed.

Then—a Startling Interruption.

The 400 wedding guests, including Alexander and Annie Brenko, parents of the bride, broke into joyous whispers as the pair neared the front door. Hands reached into paper sacks full of rice and, when the doors opened wide, showered the laughing pair as they tripped down the stairs.

There was a startling interruption. Four husky men pushed through the throng and seized the groom. The four were recognized as policemen despite their plain clothes. One, Sergt. Thomas Donnelly of the state's attorney's police, looked closely at a printed circular, then shouldered his charge into a squad car.

The bride screamed. "You can't do that to my man," she cried.

Sergt. Donnelly whispered in her ear: "Sh! It's just a joke. We'll drive him around the block for ten minutes and then bring him back."

As the police car drove off the bride relaxed. Every one began laughing. What a joke! What a huge joke!

Learn Answer at Station.

Ten minutes passed. Twenty minutes. Half an hour. The laughter became strained. White faced, tight lipped, the bride, still clutching her bouquet, and her bridal party poured into three automobiles and drove to the West North Avenue station.

Slowly and haltingly Sergt. Garazin explained. The groom, despite the attempt to disguise himself with a mustache, was Bruno Austin, 26 years old. His wife said she knew that.

"But you see Bruno is wanted for bond forfeiture," added the policeman. "There is also a charge of stealing an automobile. Then, he answers the description of a robber we have wanted for a long time."

Bride Stanch; Bruno Weeps.

"I don't care, I don't care," sobbed the bride, her lilies dropping. "I love him, anyway."

Austin patted his wife's shoulder comfortingly, then turned away. He is a tough boy, said the policemen, but at that moment the tough boy was weeping. His white buttonhole carnation and new blue suit looked oddly out of place as he was led away.

Somber-eyed and silent, the bride and her attendants stumbled down the steps. Automobiles took them home, where other guests awaited an elaborate wedding party. But there was no party last night.

Friends of the bride's parents said they had opposed the match, but relented when they saw how attached the young couple were to each other. Other friends of the bride said every effort would be made to help Austin.

The policemen explained later that they made the arrest at the church because they had just received information that Austin, who had been sought for some months, was being married.

GANGSTER AND PAL ESCAPE IN HAIL OF LEAD

Then Come Back to Rescue Women.

Bremer Hideout Found

After months of painstaking detective work, following such clews as the voices of school children, the ringing of church bells, the sound of railway trains and the blowing of a town fire siren as a daily test, federal agents located a flat in Bensenville, in Du Page county, in which Edward Bremer was held prisoner by the Karpis gang of kidnapers for three weeks a year ago. Details on page 2.

SCENE OF FIGHT.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

With him, firing a pistol, was another of the middle west's most hunted criminals, Harry Campbell.

Trapped just before dawn in a hotel room to which they came only yesterday, the two desperadoes—wanted for crimes ranging from robbery to kidnaping and murder—answered with roaring gunfire the police demand to surrender.

Beat 20 in Pursuit.

Fighting their way from their fourth floor quarters to an alley, blazing so close to policemen that one officer's cap was shot from his head, they stole an automobile and then, pursued by 20 policemen and with every trafic light in the city flashing on and off—a general police alarm—they drove toward Camden, distancing pursuit.

There was a report tonight, unconfirmed, that Campbell, who was in his underwear when he was surprised by detectives, had been wounded.

Karpis' 21 year old "girl friend," known both as Dolores Delaney and as Louise Graham, was wounded slightly in the leg. She is soon to bear a child, the police surgeon said.

The other woman is Winona Burdette, also known as Mrs. Louise Campbell. She is 22.

A chase through the city's streets, during which on two occasions the fugitives drove their car down blind streets, wheeled about and shot their way anew through the pursuing police forces, added to the sensationalism of the escape.

Believed Still in City.

Police Capt. Sam Wheatley said tonight that he did not believe it possible that the two men had been able to get clear of the city. With Mayor Harry Bacharach taking personal charge of the police department, a thorough search was instituted tonight.

The word that the notorious Karpis—hunted as the master mind of the Edward Bremer kidnaping in St. Paul, Minn., last year—was in Atlantic City followed a telegraphed tip from Florida to be on the watch for a car bearing Florida license D5-306.

"Be careful," the information said. "These are two bad men, heavily armed."

Registered Day Before.

They learned that the two men had arrived the day before and had taken a fourth floor room adjoining that occupied by the two women, who arrived a week ago Friday.

With surprising bravado Karpis had gone shortly after his arrival to the police surgeon, Dr. Carl Surran, and had made arrangements with him for the delivery of the baby the Delaney girl is expecting.

"We've got plenty of dough, and we want the best for the little girl," said "Public Enemy No. 1" with a record of five terms in Missouri, Kansas, and Oklahoma penitentiaries.

Detectives, tracing the occupants of the stolen car with the Florida license, arrived at the hotel about 5 o'clock this morning. Two of them went to the fourth floor. The door of the room occupied by Karpis and Campbell was ajar.

"Stick 'em up! We're officers."

The response was immediate. Karpis shouted back:

"Stick 'em up yourself, coppers! We're coming!"

Campbell whirled, a pistol in his hand. He was either carrying it at the time or snatched it up quickly at the approach of the officers.

Karpis grabbed a machine gun and the hotel echoed with gunfire.

The detectives, surprised, sought the protection of a bend of the corridor, firing all the time. As Karpis and Campbell came out, the fire from the officers' pistols drove the desperadoes toward the back of the hall, then down a rear stairway to an alley.

Run for Car in Garage.

Waiting there were three officers, and Karpis and Campbell raced for the garage where they had left their car, exchanging more than 200 shots with the police as they ran.

Their car had been taken over by police, but the gunmen piled into another and wheeled down the street.

Twice they circled the hotel, apparently seeking to rescue the women. Balked in this effort, and with several cars of police pushing them hard, the men headed out of the neighborhood.

Twice their unfamiliarity with Atlantic City thoroughfares—many of which end in blind alleys at the board walk—appeared to have them cornered. Each time, however, they spun their car around and, with the underwear-clad Campbell standing up behind and pulling the trigger of the machine gun, shot their way free. They finally were lost to their pursuers.

The Delaney woman was taken to a hospital. She had been struck by a shot from Karpis' weapon, police said. The wound was superficial, and she was later taken with the Burdette girl to Philadelphia in custody of federal men.

Seven suitcases were found in the girls' room. One of them told police questioners they had been in Florida recently and that while there they had seen and talked with Fred and "Ma" Barker, who were killed as they resisted a federal agents' siege last week. Barker has been coupled by department of justice agents with Karpis as co-leader of the gang blamed for the Bremer kidnaping.

Find Guns in Auto.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—In the automobile left behind at Atlantic City by Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell a loaded revolver and a loaded sawed-off shotgun were found. Effects left in the hotel included nine valises, filled with clothing. The investigation was continued in the hope the clothing might yield valuable clews and also because of the possibility that one of the police bullets might have wounded Campbell or Karpis, causing them to hide out in the vicinity.

The Burdette girl, it was stated, is also known as Mrs. Louis Campbell. She told the police she came from Oklahoma, where Karpis once served a prison sentence for burglary. Dispatches from Tulsa, Okla., said she was arrested there in 1932.

Campbell is known in Tulsa as a gunman and is wanted there for the murder of J. Earl Smith, an attorney, in August of 1932. The release of the Burdette woman after her arrest was ordered after she had agreed to lead the police to Campbell, the dispatch said. The woman did not keep her promise to do this.

BREMER'S KIDNAP PRISON IS FOUND IN BENSENVILLE

His Remarkable Memory Identifies Hideout.

A rambling old frame house, divided into three flats, in the town of Bensenville, 18 miles west of Chicago in Du Page county, has been identified by Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul, Minn., banker and scion of the noted brewing family, as the place where he was held prisoner for three weeks last January, while his kidnapers collected $200,000 ransom.

This was learned last night as federal agents asked Chicago police to broadcast a description of Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell, southwestern gunmen and members of the kidnap gang who escaped a police trap in Atlantic City early yesterday by shooting their way to freedom with machine guns.

While it was not expected that the two desperadoes would have been able to reach Chicago from the seaboard city last night, all squad cars were furnished descriptions of the two outlaws as well as a description of the automobile bearing New Jersey license tags A-3073, in which they fled. Instructions were given to "shoot first and ask questions later."

Positive in Identification.

Although department of justice officials refused to corroborate the discovery of the kidnap lair, friends of the banker in Minneapolis revealed last night that he visited Bensenville Saturday and established positively the identification of the house.

Residents of the remodeled Bensenville dwelling confirmed this last night. Several of them had lived in the house while Bremer was held prisoner, but they insisted they noticed nothing unusual which might have aroused suspicion during the banker's incarceration.

Bremer identified the four room flat at the rear of the building as his prison. The tenant of this flat at the time he was a prisoner there was named as Harold Alderton, 38 years old, and who lived in the flat with his mother, who was about 60 years old.

Herman Baucke, the landlord, who lives alone in the other first floor apartment, said he rented the flat about five years ago to Alderton, who said he came from Indiana. Alderton was known as a world war veteran and there was an impression that he was drawing compensation for war wounds which prevented him from working regularly.

About five months ago, Baucke said, he was forced to oust Alderton for failing to pay his rent, and Bensenville has not seen nor heard of him since.

Agents Grill Other Tenants.

W. R. Cord, a barber, who moved into the "Bremer" flat after the departure of Alderton, said he, his wife, and two small children were routed from their beds at 5:05 o'clock last Wednesday morning by half a dozen government agents armed with machine guns.

Cord and his family were brought to Chicago to the federal bureau of investigation offices in the Bankers' building, 105 West Adams street, where they finally convinced the agents that they had moved in months after the kidnaping.

The third flat in the building is occupied by Edward Morschell and his family. The Morschells and Baucke, as well as Cord, were subjected to long questioning by the agents, whom they convinced of their entire innocence.

The house in which they live is a low rambling structure on the southwest corner of Green avenue and South May street, two blocks from the main business district of the town. It is diagonally across from the Bensenville grade school, and two blocks southwest from the switch yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad.

Set well back from the street in a spacious yard, surrounded by a number of shade trees, it affords an ideal place for concealment. The entrance to the flat in which Bremer was held is from May street, the address being No. 180.

Another door on the Green street side is used by Baucke and the Morschells, whose second floor apartment extends only on the Green street side for half the length of the building.

When the federal men first descended on peaceful Bensenville last Wednesday, Chief of Police Herman Wagner questioned them, as did several of the other 2,000 townsmen. The agents admitted their identity to the chief, but refused him any additional information.

"From their conversation," stated Chief Wagner last night, "I learned they believed they had found the place where Bremer was held. Then when Bremer came here Saturday I knew for sure. I recognized him immediately from his newspaper pictures."

Cord Verifies Identification.

Cord also was positive in his identification of Bremer as the distinguished appearing man who, accompanied by eight agents, made a minute examination of his apartment on Saturday.

"I knew him from his pictures, although he never was called Bremer in my presence," said Cord. "From the way he talked about tape over his eyes and the wall paper, and other points about the room and the neighborhood, I knew he was identifying the place as the kidnaper's hideout."

The Cord apartment is a small four room and bath arrangement. At the rear, facing on an alley, is the bedroom Bremer identified as his prison cell. During the time he was a prisoner the windows were boarded up, but now they are open.

Before Bremer arrived the agents tore a two foot section of paper from the wall. This probably will be a court exhibit in the event Karpis and Campbell are brought to trial, for the odd design of the wall paper impressed itself on Bremer's mind during the brief periods when his captors removed the bandages from his eyes.

More Conclusive Evidence.

The paper has a design of a small picket fence around green trees. The pickets in the fence make the design which, according to Cord, Bremer described to the agents. Another point was the series of five nail holes, long since painted over, on either side of the window frame, which Bremer counted and fingered during his imprisonment.

"Bremer identified the brass bed," added Cord. "I watched him count the steps from there, through a corner of the living room, into the other bedroom and bathroom. He said that when he went to the bathroom he always touched his head against the drop cord from the hanging light in the bedroom. Then on leaving the bedroom he recalled how he had to step up a few inches into the other bedroom, the floor of which is a few inches higher."

In addition to the bedroom itself, which clinched the identification, Bremer's recollection of certain sounds he had heard in the neighborhood made the agents certain, it was said, that they had found the right house. Their year long search, based on information supplied by the banker, had led them on an intensive hunt throughout Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and finally northern Illinois.

Sounds Help Restore Picture.

Bremer told of hearing a truck start up every morning outside his bedroom window. Edwin Sprandel, a grocer, keeps his truck in a small frame shack across the alley from the bedroom window, and every morning about 7 o'clock drives it out.

The sound of children playing nearby and their shouts and laughter as they ran to and from school etched themselves indelibly on Bremer's mind as he sat day after day, blindfolded, hoping for release. The Bensenville grade school is on the northeast corner of Green avenue and South May street.

His recollection of the chiming of church bells was one of the most important clues furnished the investigators by Bremer. Bensenville has three churches. Two near the kidnap house have bells. One, Frieden's Evangelical Lutheran church, is almost directly two blocks west of No. 180 South May street. The other, the First Evangelical church, is a block north, back of the school house.

Then there were such noises as the sound of switch engines puffing at their work. Two blocks northeast of the house are the switch yards of the Milwaukee railroad.

Four times a day, Bremer said, he heard the blowing of what sounded like a factory whistle. At 7 a. m., 12 noon, 2:20 p. m., and 3 p. m., the whistle atop the Milwaukee railroad roundhouse, about four blocks due east, is sounded.

One other sound of importance was a siren, which was sounded at the same time as the second whistle. Every noon the telephone operator in Bensenville's business district tests the fire siren with one short blast.

During the 20 minutes Bremer spent in the house Saturday he made one other check. At one time in his three weeks of imprisonment, Bremer said there was trouble with a stove in the living room, and some one came in to fix the grate. He asked Baucke, the landlord, about this.

Verifies One More Link.

"Sure, I remember," said Baucke. "It was last January, and the stove was acting up. I went in and fixed the grate." The landlord appeared astounded that this should have happened while Bremer was a prisoner there and he was unaware of it.

The parents of Karpis, one of the leaders of the Bremer kidnaping gang, John Karpavicz and his wife Anna, live at 2842 North Francisco avenue. They were informed last night of his battle with the police and his escape in Atlantic City. The mother said she wished she could urge her son to surrender and avoid being killed.

SON OF BROKER FOUND DYING, RIFLE AT SIDE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Richard S. Hinshaw, 17, son of a socially prominent Detroit and Bloomfield Hills family, died in a hospital at Pontiac, Mich., tonight as a result of a bullet wound in the head.

Coroner G. Dewey Kimball of Oakland county, after investigating the case, said it was "unquestionably a suicide."

The youth was found slumped in the family automobile near the campus of the fashionable Cranbrook school, where he had been a student. An emergency operation performed at the hospital in Pontiac failed to save his life.

Members of his family who identified the small caliber rifle found beside him in the automobile, said they could give no explanation for his death. His father, Joseph Hinshaw, is a Detroit broker, and his sister, Catherine, was a debutante of last season.

Poses as Gun Toter to Rob Policeman and Goes to Jail

Policeman Patrick H. Gilhooley, 912 North Drake avenue, assigned to the Austin district, was about to drive away in his car from in front of 4411 Maypole avenue last night when a man holding his hand in his overcoat pocket as if it held a pistol, ordered the policeman to give him his automobile keys and money. Gilhooley, who was off duty, in civilian clothes, and accompanied by his wife moved as if to comply, but instead seized his own pistol and the robber quickly raised his hands. He was found to be unarmed. He identified himself as John Knowr, 26 years old, 662 North May street.

BRUNO EXPECTED TO TAKE WITNESS STAND THIS WEEK

Testimony Will Be High Point of Lindbergh Case.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The Lindbergh murder trial moves into its fourth week tomorrow, with every indication that the next few days will contain some of the most important developments thus far presented.

To date, the hearing of evidence against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused as the slayer of the first born son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has been conducted amidst an atmosphere redolent of the circus ring.

Despite all the remonstrances of the 74 year old presiding judge, Thomas W. Trenchard, the courtroom crowd has whooped and guffawed at the most serious testimony and the jury of eight men and four women sometimes has joined in this wholesale rejoicing.

Meaty Morsels Promised.

The program for the coming week mapped out by the prosecuting and defense attorneys promises some meaty morsels for the noisy audience. There will be plenty of hissing and groaning and handclapping and cheering if a judgment of what is to come can be based upon what has happened before.

The climax, of course, will be the appearance of Hauptmann, the defendant, on the witness stand. This is predicted for Wednesday or Thursday, as soon as the state rests its case and the opening statement has been made by Defense Attorney C. Lloyd Fisher.

If the promises of Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly are to be believed [they have been violated frequntly since the trial started], Hauptmann will be the first witness in his own behalf.

Legal Jousting in Prospect.

First will come, however, a series of noisy legal demonstrations while Attorney General David T. Wilentz winds up the state's case. These will involve mainly the introduction into evidence of the "kidnap ladder," found outside the Lindbergh home the night the child was stolen, March 1, 1932.

First, Max Rausch, son of Hauptmann's landlady, who lived on the first floor of the Bronx home which Hauptmann and his wife occupied, will testify that a missing joist from the attic of the house to which Hauptmann had access corresponds exactly to an upright used in the construction of the ladder.

Then Arthur Koehler, United States government wood technologist, will state to the jurors his belief that the upright of the ladder is the same as the joist in the attic. He will illustrate his testimony with microscopic views of the two kinds of wood. He will point out that the missing joist was fir, the same as the upright on the ladder.

Rest of Lumber Traced.

The rest of the ladder is of pine, and Koehler, according to the state, will declare that he traced this pine to a Bronx lumber yard where Hauptmann worked as a carpenter for several months.

Then Stanley Keith, a metallurgist, will identify the nails used in constructing the ladder as exactly the same, according to markings made in manufacturing them, as the nails found in a box in Hauptmann's garage.

Both these expert witnesses will demonstrate to the jury with a carpenter's plane found in Hauptmann's garage that the ladder bears the same markings as would have been made by such a plane.

This evidence will be relied upon by the state to convince Judge Trenchard that the ladder should be admitted into evidence. Taken in combination with all the other evidence introduced, it would place Hauptmann with the ladder on the Lindbergh estate the night of the kidnaping and should be clinching proof, the state believes, that Hauptmann kidnaped and murdered the child.

Wind Up Money Evidence.

The first task of the state tomorrow will be to wind up testimony concerning Hauptmann's financial transactions in 1932 and 1933.

Compilations by several witnesses will show that Hauptmann enjoyed the use of approximately $49,000 following the payment of the $50,000 ransom on April 2, 1932, by Dr. John F. Condon to a man he has identified as Hauptmann.

The defense to this testimony, Reilly said, would be that Hauptmann was in the fur business with Isidor Fisch, the Jewish furrier who died in Germany last March. Hauptmann profited from this business, defense witnesses will contend, and had possession of $1,000 worth of fur pelts when Fisch sailed for Germany.

Woman to Name Fisch.

It was learned tonight the defense has subpenaed a woman who is prepared to name certain persons she believes were involved in the kidnaping and the ransom collection.

She is Mrs. Bertha Hoff of New York City.

She said she is prepared to name Fisch as one of the suspects and has given the names of others, together with a story which she believes affords a strong circumstantial case against them.

She said she gave her story to James M. Fawcett, former attorney for Hauptmann, and it was investigated by Henry Kress, who has served Fawcett as investigator. She said she also gave police her information about eight days after the kidnaping.

Details of Mrs. Hoff's circumstantial evidence were not disclosed, but it was said to involve a green car, ladders, and other points that have appeared prominently in the case.

Despite miserable weather conditions, more than 1,000 persons visited the courthouse today. They were handled by twenty members of the Rotary club who had erected big signs reading "Col. Lindbergh's Seat," "Hauptmann's Seat," "Judge's Bench," "Jurors' Seats," at various points in the courtroom. Visitors were regaled with various incidents concerning the trial by voluntary lecturers and no admission was charged.

ACTOR DOWLING SAYS HE FOUND AN UNSUNG VICTOR HERBERT TEXT

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's actor friend, Eddie Dowling, returning tonight to Broadway from an expedition into 68th street, announced the finding of "a buried treasure, an entire new operetta by the late Victor Herbert," American composer.

Dowling had seen it with his own eyes, he said—"the entire manuscript, beautifully handwritten, with 18 new and lovely melodies in it; two great waltz songs, marching songs, and amusement novelty numbers."

Rapturously, Dowling revealed the name on the faded cover of his operetta was "Lavender Lady." He said it was found in an old trunk.

KEHOE'S DEFENSE TO GRILL RENNER ON STAND TODAY

Earl Renner, the state's star witness in the prosecution of William Taber and Joseph J. Kehoe, street car union officials, charged with the murder of James J. Kelly, a bus dispatcher, will be submitted to severe cross-examination today, defense attorneys announced.

Renner, confessed leader of the vandal gang whose members dragged Kelly from a street car early in the morning of September 26, beat and fatally shot him, testified Saturday before the jury in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers that Kehoe hired him to organize a gang to smash bus windows and intimidate passengers. Kehoe paid him and his crew $10 per man for each night's vandalistic acts, Renner said, during the strike called against the Chicago Motor Coach company.

It is through Renner's testimony that Assistant State's Attorneys Wilbert F. Crowley and Mal Coghlan expect to link Kehoe with the killing of Kelly. They intend to connect Taber to the conspiracy through revelations of hired violence on the south side.

Attorneys Thomas D. Nash, Michael Ahern, and James J. McDermott, representing the defendants, said they expect to disprove Renner's testimony today and wreck the foundation of the state's case.

Twenty-seven others were named in the murder indictment under which Taber and Kehoe are being tried, but all were granted separate trial.

WOLF AT ALASKA'S DOOR IS BLAMED ON PROSPERITY

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Prosperity has brought the wolf back to Alaska's door.

Three and four years ago, when the depression was at its height, many men otherwise unemployed went out and trapped wolves for their pelts and the territorial bounty.

The Alaska Sportsmen's association reported today, however, that the territory's $20,000 bounty fund has remained untouched this year, because the wolf trappers have found work and wages elsewhere. The sportsmen said the result has been that wolves have increased, taking heavy toll of harmless birds and beasts.

DELAYED ZERO WAVE EXPECTED IN CITY TODAY

Forecast 5 or 10 Below Here Tonight.

The weather bureau last night reiterated a forecast that a severe cold wave was advancing toward Chicago and added that it was sure to strike the city today. It was explained that the wave, scheduled to reach here two days ago, had been held back by a low pressure area that crept in from the southwest.

From a mark of 39 degrees at 9 o'clock last night the mercury started a steady descent. By 2 a. m. the reading was 27, and a heavy sleet that made driving on the boulevards and country roads hazardous was falling. If the expectations of the weather bureau are fulfilled the minimum temperature tonight will be between 5 and 10 below zero.

Reports indicated that the sleet was general over northern Illinois. Springfield had a heavy glaze after 10 p. m., and Rockford likewise was affected.

Intense Cold in West.

Intense cold prevailed yesterday over the Rocky mountain regions and plains as far south as Texas. By nightfall readings near the zero mark were recorded as far east as the Mississippi river. In the Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota and west central Iowa, the range of temperatures was from 5 below to 22 below at 8 p. m.

In all these sections the weather was by far the coldest of the winter. Contrast was furnished by the weather east of the Mississippi. Heavy rains fell over Mississippi and Tennessee and fogs blanketed most of Illinois and Indiana.

Over lower Michigan rather high temperatures and fogs prevailed. So dense was the vapor in the Chicago region, and so low the visibility, that all airplanes were prevented from landing or taking off during the day.

Forecaster W. P. Day commented last night on the slow progress eastward of the cold mass of air that had moved down from Alaska and Canada over the northwestern states.

Explains Tardy Arrival.

"It started to come through on Saturday," he said, "but a disturbance which developed over the southwest moved in first and gave us the fogs and rain. The intense cold will follow it eastward."

He was of the opinion that when the cold wave does roll in, it will stay several days at least. There has been no return to mild temperatures in the Canadian west. The wave was almost stationary for hours yesterday, crossing little more than half of Iowa in 24 hours.

Record Cold on Pacific.

The entire Pacific coast was suffering yesterday in subnormal temperatures. Snowdrifts 30 feet deep were reported in the high Sierras. In the California citrus belt growers resorted to smudges to protect their crops. The minimum temperature for San Francisco was 39 and for Los Angeles, 40.

At Seattle, Wash., where a minimum of 11 above zero was noted Saturday night, eight inches of snow had fallen. The cold there was described as the most severe in a decade. In Spokane, the mercury fell to 22 degrees below zero.

Policeman Shot by Another Who Ended Life Is Dead

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Patrolman John J. Hopkins, 39, died in a hospital today of a bullet wound inflicted by a fellow officer. Hopkins was shot as he was leaving the bar of a Tenth avenue restaurant yesterday by Patrolman John J. Masterson, 37. Masterson then turned the gun on himself and committed suicide. Police said they were unable to account for the shooting.

RFC RAIL AID SEES U. S. IN DANGER FROM CONCENTRATED RICHES

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The constitution is in danger, A. A. Berle Jr., special counsel of the railroad division of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, told 200 prominent Kentuckians assembled here tonight. But the danger, he said, is from those who want a special construction placed on it for their own benefit.

"That is not an unusual state for that distinguished document," he continued. "It will never be out of danger until it is dead and embalmed in history books."

Berle said the constitution aims to preserve individual liberty, and it cannot contemplate a twilight zone in which concentrated wealth acts without restriction. He pointed to 75 per cent of the nation's wealth as concentrated in 600 corporations, a concentration, he said, greater than that which led either to the French or to the Russian revolution.

Only 5 Days Till Deadline for Buying Auto Licenses

With only five days remaining before the final deadline for the purchase of 1935 state licenses and city vehicle stickers, City Clerk Peter J. Brady and Stanley Kozinski, in charge of the secretary of state's license bureau at 120 South Ashland avenue, were prepared for a rush of applicants today. Both offices did a rushing business Saturday and reported license purchases far in excess of other years. Arrests of drivers lacking 1935 plates have been ordered after Jan. 25.

BIG NAVY PLANE MAY HOP NEXT TO CALIFORNIA

COLON, Panama, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Read Admiral A. W. Johnson, commander of the base aircraft force, said tonight at the Strangers club the giant navy biplane XP2H-1 may fly to San Diego, Cal., by easy stages.

The craft, with Lieut. J. S. Thach, commander and pilot, and seven others, landed at Coco Solo, Jan. 16, after a 2,000 mile nonstop flight from Norfolk, Va.

The admiral said there were no definite plans for a nonstop flight to San Diego, but that the biplane probably would be accompanied by the aircraft tenders Wright and Gannet, perhaps reaching San Diego a day or two before them. The distance to San Diego is much greater than that of the Norfolk-Coco solo hop.

LIBERTY LEAGUE PROPOSES CURB FOR NEW DEAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Six guiding principles, designed to preserve individual liberty under renewal of the National Recovery administration were offered today by the American Liberty league. The present NRA expires June 16.

The league, a nonpartisan body including in its membership Al Smith and John W. Davis, was organized recently to combat left wing swerves in the national and state governments. In proclaiming its six points of NRA modification, the league made public a survey of the effects of the NRA.

Powers Should Be Temporary.

As its first point the league states that any continuance of executive authority should be for a limited period as the NIRA is a temporary measure designed to meet with an emergency. Until this emergency passes there should be no attempt to enact permanent legislation to control American industry.

That is followed with the warning that congress should jealously guard its prerogatives. The league declares that law making by executive order is a "step toward dictatorship."

In the same tenor, another principle cautions against undue encroachment upon the sovereignty of states. It is pointed out that the constitution set up a dual form of government in which states were intended to be supreme over intrastate commerce and the private lives of the people.

Would Curb Burocrats.

The league's fourth point is that any plan for concerted action in recovery should have as its goal the self-government of industry. Toward that end it asks a minimum of burocratic regulation and elimination of production control, price fixing and other devices interfering with normal play of economic forces, individual initiative, and constitutional liberty guarantees.

The fifth principle holds that laws relating to relations of employers and employes should be fair to both parties. The league adds that while workers are entitled to every consideration, the rights of employers should also be preserved.

The last point emphasizes that emergency recovery legislation should not be susceptible to use as a vehicle for experimentation with untried theories.

Against Permanent Law.

In amplification of its position that NRA continuation should be limited, the league states: "There are three chief reasons why it is not desirable to enact permanent legislation at this time. The first two of these are that, while the American people are willing to confer emergency powers on an executive, they hesitate to write them in permanent law and that NRA experience thus far has not been such as to make possible a final decision as to what features should be retained permanently.

"A third reason is that the important constitutional questions arising under administration of the present law are awaiting adjudication in the Supreme court."

"Already," the league adds, "the court has held invalid section 9 [c] which granted broad power to the President to prohibit transportation of oil in interstate commerce.

"The court's decision did not purport to deal with questions involving other parts of the act. It would be a mistake to proceed with permanent legislation until legal foundations for the regulation of industry are more firmly established."

Toward its recommendation that congress should exercise more specific control over a reorganized recovery administration the league adds the suggestion of a check on the executive branch. This might be done through congressional provision for specific appropriations for the administration of the act instead of allowing money to be alloted by the President from the PWA fund.

British Medical Body Urges Boycott on Doctors' Union

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Following the decision of the Medical Practitioners' union last month to affiliate with the Trades Union congress, Dr. G. C. Anderson, secretary of the British Medical association, tonight sent letters to his branch secretaries urging them to persuade health officers throughout the country to boycott the union. The officers of the union, which claims a membership of 5,000 doctors, declare this is an attempt to smash their organization.

ABOUT DIZZY SPELLS AND INDIGESTION

Bear this in mind, that when you keep bile flowing freely and stomach, liver and bowels functioning properly the waste and poisons in the bowels leave the body thru the natural channels—they don't stay to be absorbed into the blood, causing dizzy spells, headache, biliousness, coated tongue and other annoying and depressing ailments—indigestion is another.

Take the little daily dose of Kruschen Salts—for instance—only as much as will lie on a dime—in your morning cup of coffee or tea.

How this regular little daily dose does keep internal organs in splendid working order—it creates in you the urge for activity and after a night of sound sleep you jump out of bed feeling joyously alive and ready for the work of the day.

Millions, the world over, take this little daily dose of good health because it means that after a month's treatment you'll feel younger and more ambitious—your petty, bothersome ailments will leave—skin eruptions disappear—eyes sparkle—you are your old energetic self again—you'll be gratefully surprised.

Try just one small priced jar which lasts over two months—get that Kruschen feeling of glorious internal cleanliness—become alert—keen in mind and vivaciously active and remember if after the first jar you are not completely pleased—get your money back.

WEDDING DATE ANNOUNCED

SON OF ALFONSO TO WED ROMAN GIRL MARCH 4

Bride Is Descendant of U. S. Family.

ROME, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The second marriage this year in which American blood will join with that of the royal family of Spain here in this old world setting was announced today for March 4.

The wedding is that of Emanuela de Dampierre, descendant of illustrious Americans, and Don Jaime, son of former King Alfonso of Spain. Their nuptials follow closely upon those of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, grandson of an American industrialist, to the Infanta Beatriz, Don Jaime's sister.

Daughter of French Count.

Among the makers of American history in her long and impressive new world family tree are Gen. Aquila Giles, an aide-de-camp of George Washington; Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman of civil war fame, and many other leaders in the civil and military life of the United States.

Her mother, Donna Vittoria Ruspoli, said the girl's father, Count de Dampierre, had an American woman named Corbin among his aristocratic forbears. The former Countess de Dampierre, who resumed her own family name upon divorcing the French nobleman, said she had no further knowledge of the count's American blood. The count now is living in Paris.

Plan Quiet Wedding.

Officials at former King Alfonso's household in Rome say Don Jaime's wedding, like that of the infanta, will be held as quietly as possible because of his father's political situation and because of family mourning for Don Gonzalo, the youngest son of the king, killed in a motor accident last August.

Roman society, however, is preparing to outdo itself in courtesies despite the official staidness of the actual weddings.

Social matrons have marked down Jaime as an exceedingly desirable guest despite his afflictions of hearing and speech. He has been described as an exceptionally intelligent companion, easily able to make dinner partners forget his difficulties. He dances, rides horseback, and plays an exceptionally good game of golf.

Gunmen Get All the Cash and Take the Register, Too

BABY GIRL IS BORN HEIRESS TO $500,000 OF PAUL F. DONNELLY

Kansas City, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A baby girl—heir to approximately $500,000—was born in New York today to Mrs. Paul F. Donnelly, widow of a wealthy Kansas Citian, friends here were advised. Donnelly died last Sept. 7 in Hartford, Conn.

MRS. P. F. DONNELLY.

Under an agreement, one-half of his estate of nearly $1,000,000, amassed in the women's dress business in association with his former wife, now Mrs. James A. Reed,, will go to the child. The other half will be divided among the 24 year old widow and eight members of her husband's family.

Mrs. Donnelly and a St. Louis bank are to administer the estate, under the order of a Kansas City court.

Donnelly married Miss Virginia George, a former actress, in Florida in February, 1933, after he and Mrs. Nell Quinlan Donnelly were divorced here. The first Mrs. Donnelly after the divorce married former Senator Reed of Missouri.

CHINESE TRAINED IN U. S. COLLEGES REBUILD NATION

NANCHANG, Kiangsi Province, China, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A party of American newspaper men visiting this interior province with a government inspection group surveying the communist situation in central China learned today what becomes of Chinese graduates of American universities.

Here were scores of returned students who have doffed the trappings of the western world and are leading the task of building the nucleus of a new China from the wreckage left by communist armies. Gen. Koo Chotung in a detailed recital gave the foreign correspondents some idea of the job of rehabilitation tackled by these men, who are working on pittances in order to be of service to their country.

Concerning the communist situation, the general said: "The Reds have fled from Kweichow to Szechwan province, but we have mapped out ways and means of annihilating them." The correspondents arrived here from Kiukiang in Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's private railway car, but today took to coolie borne sedan chairs and hiking to reach the newly captured mountain strongholds of the Reds.

CLAIM JAPS MASS 4,000 TROOPS ON CHINESE BORDER

Menace Chahar Province, Say Spokesmen.

BULLETIN.

PEIPING, China, Jan. 21 (Monday).—(AP)—Japanese military authorities said today the Jehol-Chahar border dispute had been settled and that boundary questions were being left to diplomatic negotiations.

KALGAN, Chahar Province, China, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A spokesman for the Chahar government said today that 4,000 Japanese and Manchukuan troops were concentrated on the western Jehol border ready to invade this territory.

The spokesman accused the Japanese army of unwarrantedly "invading" Chahar by their recent penetration of the Changliang district, near the border.

"It is regrettable," he said, "that the Japanese should invade this province on the flimsy excuse that the area belongs to Jehol. All Chinese and foreign maps showed the area concerned comprises the district of Kuyuan, in eastern Chahar."

It was stated the forces gathered on the border consisted of 3,000 Manchukuan troops and 1,000 Japanese.

Chinese Stay in Bounds.

TIENTSIN, Jan. 21.——[Monday.]—(AP)—Chinese reports from the Jehol-Chahar border said today despite Japanese pressure, Chinese military forces are remaining within the disputed area at Changliang.

The advices continued that while the situation was electric, it was not believed any further clashes would occur.

Clash Near Border.

PEIPING, China, Jan. 20.—(AP)—An official Chinese spokesman revealed details of the clash resulting in several hours' fighting several days ago between Manchukuan and Japanese combined forces and Chahar provincial troops in the vicinity of Changliang.

The clash, it was stated, occurred Jan. 16, when 3,000 Manchukuan troops and a small number of Japanese penetrated the vicinity of Changliang, inside the northern loop of the Great Wall.

After several hours' fighting, the spokesman said, the Manchukuans withdrew after scattering leaflets demanding the immediate withdrawal of the Chinese militia.

Charge Border Crossed.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Threats of a Japanese invasion of broad Chahar province, north of Peiping, stirred the Chinese government today, but little information was given out concerning the seriousness of the move.

Japanese military forces here said an "adequate" military force was gathering in western Jehol in answer to alleged infringement of Jehol border areas by Sung Chen-yuan, provincial chairman of Chahar.

Nurses Save 250 Patients from London Hospital Fire

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Fire swept the East London infirmary tonight, but the heroic work of nurses prevented any loss of life or casualties. While the flames roared about them, 60 nurses removed 250 patients, all of whom were in bed. Many of them were taken out wrapped in blankets.

JAPAN BIDS FOR CLOSER RELATION WITH CHINESE

Would Expel British and Yank Influence.

TOKIO, Jan. 21 [Monday.]—(AP)—What the Japanese call "closer Sino-Japanese coöperation" in Asia, crowding out American and British influence, as being freely predicted today as a forthcoming development in the annual session of the imperial diet, which resumes business tomorrow after the long New Year holiday.

KOKI HIROTA.

The public was expecting important announcements of policy in the speech of Foreign Minister Koki Hirota opening the diet, predicting through the press that he will shortly seek a Sino-Japanese political convention increasing Japan's hegemony in eastern Asia through further domination of China.

"It is highly desirable for Japan to take the initiative and free China from a position of colony of the foreign powers," said the newspaper Asahi today. The newspaper Chugai Shogyo chimed in with: "If China can free herself from United States and British influence, Sino-Japanese amity can be restored."

Report State of Empire.

The legislators of Japan were reassembling in Tokio today for formalities connected with the resumption of the diet, or parliament, which recessed on Dec. 28. Tomorrow morning in the house of peers, in addition to Hirota's address, the aged finance minister, Korekiyo Takahashi, and the premier, Admiral Keisuke Okada, will make their formal address on the state of the empire, its foreign relations and its finances.

There has been a significant change since Foreign Minister Hirota last addressed the diet on Nov. 30. On Dec. 29 Japan notified the United States of her denunciation of the Washington naval treaty, the foundation stone of naval limitations.

The Japanese, futhermore, are looking forward with some trepidation to next March 27, the day on which Japan's two years' notice of secession from the league of nations will become effective.

Japan's Year of Crisis.

The Japanese people long have foreseen that this year would be for them a year of crisis—the first year of the "crisis of 1935-'36" they have called it—and they have entered 1935 in a spirit of tension toward other people.

The international "crisis" which the Japanese insist is upon them is strongly reflected in the budget for the forthcoming fiscal year, the passage of which will be the principal legislative task of the present [the 67th] session of the diet.

PROPOSED CHARTER FOR THE PHILIPPINES NEARING COMPLETION

MANILA, Jan. 20.—(AP)—After six months of toil, leaders of the Philippine constitutional convention said tonight they expected to complete a proposed charter for the transitional commonwealth government this week.

This charter, which will serve as the basic law of the Philippines for ten years or more, while the islands pass gradually from American possession and emerge as a republic, will be taken to Washington for President Roosevelt's approval. Senator Claro Recto, president of the convention, will carry the document to Washington.

Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy will sail for the United States next Wednesday to report to the President on Philippine affairs. It was said he would be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William Teahan, Edward G. Kemp, his legal adviser, and Norman H. Hill, his secretary. Mrs. Teahan is Murphy's sister and has been serving as his hostess since her arrival here more than a year and a half ago.

N. D. HOUSE WILL MOVE TO OUST GOVERNOR TODAY

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 20.—A carefully mapped program, designed to complete impeachment action against Gov. Thomas H. Moodie and bring about his immediate suspension from office, was ready today for presentation in the North Dakota house Monday.

At a caucus last night Nonpartisan League majority house members voted to support plans for acceptance of articles of impeachment being drawn by a board of managers appointed under an impeachment resolution adopted by the assembly Friday.

Shortly after the assembly convenes Monday, the group will offer the articles of impeachment, based on charges that Moodie, Democratic chief executive who took office thirteen days ago is guilty of "crime, corrupt conduct, malfeasance and misdemeanors in office."

Specifically the governor will be charged with "usurping" office when he "knew" he was disqualified to serve.

Sixty votes were mustered for adoption of the impeachment resolution, and majority leaders obtained a pledge from these members that they will support adoption of the articles of impeachment when they come on the floor for a vote.

After adoption the articles will be presented to the bar of the senate, where a two-thirds vote is necessary to convict an impeached official. While awaiting trial, Moodie would be suspended from office with Lieut. Gov. Walter Welford, a Non-Partisan Leaguer, replacing him.

NEW DEAL ADDS 2 BILLION LOAD TO TAX BURDENS

15 New Levies Proposed or Imposed by Law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—While President Roosevelt has said repeatedly that he "does not consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes," the New Deal has quietly added approximately 2 billion dollars to the nation's annual tax bill, inquiry disclosed today.

A string of 15 new levies has been proposed or written into the federal taxation laws since President Roosevelt took office, and, in addition, income tax rates have been tightened and raised. Official estimates by the treasury department show that combined these new and increased imposts will cost the taxpayers 1 billion 957 million dollars in the 1935-'36 fiscal year.

Most recent New Deal taxes to be slipped quietly before the public are the levies which are necessary to finance President Roosevelt's social security program of unemployment insurance, old age pensions, and care for dependents. They will amount to at least 660 million dollars a year.

Additional Taxes Levied.

Like the previous New Deal additions to the tax burden, these social security taxes are being advanced just a few week after President Roosevelt had assured the country in his annual budget message that he would not ask for increased taxation. He gave this assurance both in his budget message this year and a year ago. Yet during his term in office the following additional taxes have been enacted:

|---|---|
| Processing taxes | $ 570,000,000 |
| Liquor taxes | 430,000,000 |
| Liquor tariffs | 32,000,000 |
| Income tax raises | 150,000,000 |
| NRA code assessments | 100,000,000 |
| Silver profits tax | 1,000,000 |
| Firearms tax | 2,800,000 |
| Unemployment insurance taxes [proposed] | 600,000,000 |
| Old age insurance taxes [proposed] | 60,000,000 |
| Total | $1,945,600,000 |

Although this list shows only nine new or increased taxes, the processing taxes actually break down into eight separate levies assessed against processing of wheat, cotton, tobacco, field corn, hogs, sugar cane and beets, peanuts, and jute and similar fibers.

Security Levies Heaviest.

The social security taxes recommended to congress last week by the President, indirectly, are by far the heaviest his program has yet called for. For unemployment insurance funds he is asking a 3 per cent tax on pay rolls, which experts estimate would cost a billion dollars a year in normal times. At present, with employment reduced, its annual collections are estimated at 600 millions, experts who have worked out the taxes for Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] say:

Similarly the tax of 1 per cent which the President proposes on individual earnings in order to finance old age insurance will cost about 60 millions when it gets under way in 1937. But beginning in 1942 the rate will gradually mount until in 1957 it reaches 5 per cent and the cost will total 300 millions a year, according to Senator Wagner's experts.

The processing taxes are second most heavy of the added New Deal burdens. They will add at least 570 million dollars to the nation's food bill in the 1935-'36 fiscal year, the treasury estimates. The extent to which they have disrupted dietary habits of the nation and increased costs for housewives, at the same time reacting unfavorably on farm prices, is well known.

CLAIM NEW DEAL IN U. S. PUTS END TO 'OPPORTUNITY'

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—President Roosevelt's "revolutionary experiment" does not impress German editors as a startling departure from traditional socialistic legislation as it applies to Europe. Many measures the "New Deal" envisages have been a law, it is recalled, in Germany and other continental countries for half a century.

In its opposition to the traditional American individualism, however, the President's program, observes the Cologne Zeitung, involves revolutionary procedure. For the first time in the world crisis, in the opinion of this paper, this stand puts an end to the once boasted "unlimited opportunities which the North American continent enjoyed both in fact and in the imagination of its inhabitants."

Mr. Roosevelt's proposals contain measures which long have been self-evident in Germany, says the Cologne paper. Old age and workers' pensions were created under William I. and Bismarck, when Socialist Prussia in the eighties set an example for the reich, it is pointed out.

The Frankforter Zeitung is convinced that socialistic principles have taken deep root among the American masses no less that in the politically dominant groups. There can be no denying the fact, says this paper, that the depression has emphasized social discrepancies which call for intervention by the state, not only now, but also as a precaution against possible future eruptions.

"Baby Cory coughed all night," writes Mrs. F. H. Cook, Verona, N. J. "Doctor said 'Pertussin.' 2 days later her cough was gone!"

Convict Freed on Writ Was 'Caught in Act,' Says Victim

Milton Panateles, pictured by his lawyer in successful habeas corpus proceedings in Wheaton, in Du Page county, as victim of miscarried justice, was actually caught "red handed" in the commission of the robbery, for which he was sent to prison, according to Harry Ress, the victim of the robbery.

The release of Panateles from the state prison on Friday on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Circuit Judge Max F. Allaben of Du Page county has caused Joseph B. Lofton, the attorney in the case, to be summoned by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court to explain his actions in the case.

Ress, owner of the Racine hotel, 316 South Halsted street, testified against Panateles in his trial in March, 1932, before Judge Harry M. Fisher. In recounting the robbery yesterday Ress said that Panateles came to the hotel in February, 1932, and asked to be shown a room.

Tells of Robbery and Chase.

"While I was showing him the room Panateles drew a revolver and ordered me to hand over my money," Ress said. "I gave him ten $1 bills, all the money I had, and because I had no more he struck me across the face with his revolver, knocking out three of my teeth.

"The bandit ran down the front stairs and I ran to a front window and stepped out on the fire escape landing. I went down to the street and chased him. Several policemen were near and they joined in the chase, capturing Panateles a few blocks away. He had the ten bills on his person and his revolver was found nearby."

Ress said he was recently asked by a lawyer to sign papers to help effect the release of Panateles and he refused.

Faces Contempt Citation.

Attorney Lofton is to appear before Chief Justice Sullivan this morning. A contempt citation is threatened on the ground that Attorney Lofton violated the verbal instructions of the court, Judge Sullivan having denied a petition for a writ of habeas corpus and declared that an appeal to the higher court was Panateles' only means of securing reversal of his conviction.

Instead, Attorney Lofton appeared and pleaded before Judge Allaben and was granted the writ, which, attorneys believe, bars local authorities from further prosecution of Panateles on Ress' charges.

After his imprisonment Panateles appealed to the bar association committee for the defense of the poor, claiming that he had not been adequately represented in his trial and that a number of defense witnesses were not called. Lofton was assigned by the bar to handle the case.

BOSTON FUGITIVE CAUGHT.

PROCESSING TAX ISSUE IN CLOSED MILL COURT CASE

U. S. Moves for Collection of $18,000 Levy.

Dothan, Ala., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—A hearing on the affairs of the closed Dale Cotton Mills of Ozark, Ala., is to be held here before a referee in bankruptcy, acting under the authority of the United States District court, next Saturday.

The $250,000 mill property, which employed 150 workers, was thrown into involuntary bankruptcy recently. The petition for bankruptcy was filed by employés after the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue had issued a distraint warant for the collection of between $15,000 and $18,000 in cotton processing taxes.

Debts About $90,000.

Total debts of the mills, according to M. H. Harper, attorney who resigned his place as deputy collector of internal revenue to become trustee of the property, are about $90,000. The only portion of this which is secured is a mortgage of $6,500 held by a bank in Enterprise, Ala. At the hearing Saturday the referee will be asked to decide whether the mill is subject to the mortgage lien.

Unsecured creditors, aside from the government, are employés who claim $5,000 of pay is due them and the estates of Clant O'Neal and Mrs. Lewis Law, of Andalusia, Ala., which advanced funds to the mill on unsecured paper.

No Processing Taxes Paid.

Mr. Harper said that the mill management had manufactured and sold cloth all through 1934 and had paid no processing taxes, although all its products were subject to the tax. He added that the operators attributed the closing to their inability to "meet this [tax] and other obligations as they became due."

It was explained by Mr. Harper that Harwell Davis, collector of internal revenue in Alabama, had no alternative to the issuance of the distraint warant after the failure to pay the tax.

Validity of Taxes Upheld.

The C. A. O'Neal estate of Andalusia, owner of the Dale mills, also was lessee of a cotton mill at Enterprise, which was thrown into receivership some time ago. In adjudicating the Enterprise mill assets, Federal Judge Charles B. Kennamer upheld the validity of processing taxes under the AAA and upheld a claim of $18,000 of such taxes claimed by the bureau of internal revenue.

A sale of the Enterprise mill was ordered and was made last week. The new owners, E. H. Morris and Joel Johnson, of Geneva, Ala., have put it again into operation.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Reports reached Berlin today that Marshal Josef Pilsudski, the Polish dictator, is ill. The rumors originated in military quarters in Warsaw. He reputedly receives officials only when in perfect health.

ICKES LAWYER REPORTS ERRORS IN BIG PROJECT

Casper-Alcova Deal Is Called Illegal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes has received a most pessimistic report from his solicitor, Nathan R. Margold, on the $22,700,000 Casper-Alcova reclamation project. It now appears that New Deal Garden of Eden will go the way of the $19,000,000 Rio Verde bubble.

Casper-Alcova, located on the North Platte river in Natrona county, heart of the sandswept tundra of central Wyoming, is one of the weirdest projects in the whole PWA power and irrigation program, in the opinion of reclamation engineers.

Killing Frosts Usual Thing.

It is more than a mile high and there is killing frost during eight months of the year. That doesn't leave much of a growing season nor produce much in the way of self-liquidation.

The bureau of reclamation reported that it would average a return of $2 an acre a year, on which basis the 66,000 acre project would be self-liquidating in 187 years.

Now Margold comes forward with an opinion holding that an amended permit granted the reclamation service on Sept. 14, 1934, "is clearly contrary to law." He says that even assuming it will be upheld by the Wyoming board of control, water users with prior claims can put forward contentions "with sufficient substance and merit to make it not unlikely that they will ultimately prevail."

Project in Doubt Thirty Years.

Margold states adventitiously that the bureau of reclamation obtained its original permit in 1904 and took no action for thirty years "because the reclamation service doubted the feasibility of the project." But his opinion is concerned primarily with the points of law, and not with economics.

The opinion questions the validity of the 1934 amended permit on various grounds, not the least of which is the fact that an entirely new site, on the opposite side of the river, was selected. The point of diversion was changed and the irrigable area was increased from 25,000 to 66,000 acres. The amount of diversion was increased from 300 to 12,000 cubic feet per second.

Trouble for Government.

Under these circumstances Attorney Margold feels that the many irrigators who have received water rights since 1904 will have their claims sustained, that, in any event, the government would have difficulty in establishing its 1934 amended permit as an original filing with appurtenant priority rights. Then there is the matter of interstate rights, which Wyoming and Nebraska are contesting in the Supreme court, Mr. Margold observes.

Thus it appears from Mr. Margold's report that Casper-Alcova is somewhat like Rio Verde, the Arizona citrus fruit and melon dream, in that it might work as an irrigation project if there were any water and also as a power project if there were any market for the power. Power was to be an incidental by-product of Casper-Alcova.

Secretary Ickes still declines to say what he will do about Casper-Alcova, but he rescinded Rio Verde under similar circumstances.

RIOM, France, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Henri Rondeau, a young prisoner serving a seven year term for manslaughter, committed suicide today by plunging into a 150 gallon vat of boiling soup in a penitentiary kitchen here. Officials attributed his act to despair, caused when he learned his wife had divorced him after his imprisonment.

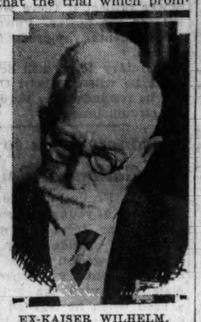
KAISER'S TRIAL PREVENTED BY U. S. ATTITUDE

State Department Files Show Allies' Stand.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Revelation that the trial which promised to be the most dramatic in history—the arraignment of Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany as the war's arch criminal—probably was forstalled by the United States came today from state department files.



EX-KAISER WILHELM.

Hitherto unpublished diplomatic correspondence in the department's archives showed that the senate apparently caused the government to withdraw from efforts to stop Wilhelm's wood sawing and put him before an international jury.

Largely because of a comparatively small group, called the "irreconcilables" by President Wilson, the senate rejected the treaty of Versailles. The administration then did a quick about face and the one time German emperor remains unmolested to this day.

Messages Tell Story.

President Wilson, Col. E. M. House, Secretary Robert Lansing, Georges Clemenceau and Sir Arthur Balfour tell the story in confidential cablegrams and notes exchanged between November, 1918, just after the armistice and December, 1919.

The United States, by signing the treaty of Versailles and approving Clemenceau's note to the Dutch government, had given tacit consent to the allied plan to extradite the kaiser and charge him with major responsibility for the death of ten million men.

But after the senate had rejected the Versailles treaty—the correspondence reveals—Secretary Lansing informed the American chargé d'affaires at The Hague that "the United States will not at present support any demand for extradition of the ex-kaiser or participate in any way in his trial should it occur."

Position Is Reversed.

That pronouncement made on Dec. 13, 1919, more than a year after the allies had made the first overtures for American support of their plan to try the kaiser, and was—as shown by the correspondence—a direct reversal of the position previously assumed.

The allies, nevertheless, went ahead, but the Dutch, considering the kaiser a political refugee entitled to sanctuary, stubbornly refused to yield. The allies gave up, but with America's support they might have brought strong pressure on the Netherlands.

President Wilson in a cablegram to Col. House on Nov. 21, said:

"It is my own feeling that there are many serious disadvantages in having the kaiser so near his former kingdom and so near also to the centers of intrigue. I am at a loss to suggest what course ought to be taken, but I think that Holland will find him an exceedingly inconvenient and even dangerous guest."

Agree On Demand.

A telegram from Balfour to the state department, said that France, Great Britain, and Italy "had agreed to recommend that a demand ought to be presented to Holland for the surrender of the person of the kaiser for trial, by an international court to be appointed by the allies, on the charge of being the criminal mainly responsible for the war and breaches of international law by the forces of Germany by land, air, and sea."

In June, the United States signed the treaty of Versailles, which included article 227 which proposed that:

"The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II. of Hohenzollern, formerly German emperor, for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties."

BRITISH ACTORS' EQUITY BATTLES FOR 'CLOSED SHOP'

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The British Actors' Equity association tonight flung a challenge at the manager of the world famous Drury Lane theater because he has refused to accept the closed shop in future productions.

A new musical play, "Glamorous Nights," by Ivor Novello and starring Mary Ellis, had been scheduled to open at Drury lane next month. Today, however, the Equity cabled Miss Ellis in Hollywood instructing her not to sign a contract. The American equity also was asked to coöperate to prevent other American players from being recruited in the cast.

"Members of the Equity are warned," said the notice issued tonight, "that on no condition must they sign any contract with this management for the forthcoming production unless and until authorization of such signature has been obtained in writing from the Equity council."

Godfrey Tearle, president of the British Actors' Equity association, described his action tonight as a "friendly challenge," but said that it was being taken in defense of a vital principle.

EXPECT HITLER TO GIVE SCHACHT GREATER POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 20. — Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is expected to call the German cabinet into session next Thursday. Internal problems, including reorganization of the cabinet, will figure prominently in the deliberations.

The term of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as acting economics minister expires Feb. 1. The president of the reichsbank was appointed to serve during the illness of Dr. Kurt Schmitt.

Political circles do not believe Schmitt will return to his post and expect Schacht will be named full minister with an increase in the powers he now holds.

The acting economics minister has complained of the numerous "economic offices" within the various ministries. These, he contends, should take orders from him to insure "unified action in economic matters."

Negotiations for a German loan of $80,000,000 to Russia is progressing satisfactorily, according to official sources. The loan will be used for the purchase of German goods and will be repayable in five years.

TROOPS SENT TO GERMAN BORDER BY LITHUANIA

Envoy to Berlin Charges Nazis Do Likewise.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Dr. Jurgus Saulys, Lithuanian minister to Berlin, today admitted the concentration of Lithuanian troops along the Memel border as reported in the German press and declared the Germans had done likewise. The minister said there was nothing unusual in the concentration and augmentation of troops along the frontier.

In a statement on the subject he said:

"We called in reserves for a three months' practice according to schedule. The fact that we concentrate them along the Memel territory rather than elsewhere in Lithuania need not be the occasion for surprise when one learns Germans have increased their armed forces along the German-Lithuanian frontier and that in Tilsit there has been an appreciable increase in machine guns. Lithuania does not intend to create trouble. Our measures are entirely according to schedule."

Denies Storm Troop Movement.

The German propaganda ministry said there was no movement of storm troops along the border.

The Lithuanian minister's statement bears out the reports printed in the German press yesterday that the reserves of the neighboring nation had been called to the colors for a three months' period. The press said the action doubled the peace strength of the Memel garrison.

The newspapers described the Lithuanian action as "saber rattling," and a sign of bad conscience. It was said also the Lithuanian excuse was the belief that Prussian Storm Troops intended to cross the border and capture the mandated city of Memel [Klaipeda]. Memel was lost to the reich under the peace treaty.

The Nazi controled newspapers with uniformity at the same time expressed the view that the nominally autonomous city should be restored to the fatherland.

Germans Seek Plebiscites.

GENEVA, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Renewed Nazi activities in Austria and the reported bristling of Lithuanian defenses around the autonomous city of Memel [Klaipeda] partly confirmed today the impression here that the German landslide in the Saar may have radical repercussions in other German-speaking regions of Europe.

The pronouncedly pro-German attitude of Nazi leaders from the free city of Danzig at Geneva was noted in this connection, leading to the belief in league quarters that there might be a new plebiscite demand in Austria, Danzig, and Memel even if not provided for in existing treaties.

A review of the league council membership this week indicated the conviction among statesmen generally that negotiations with Germany on equality rights probably will be laborious.

Seek German Adherence.

France and Russia probably will concentrate on obtaining an eastern Locarno pact and getting Germany and Poland to sign it. If they fail it was believed they will make an accord among themselves and try to draw in other powers, beginning with Czechoslovakia.

France, statesmen believed, will make disarmament concessions to Germany conditional on Germany's entrance to the Locarno pact.

Poland continues to raise objections to the pact. A Polish spokesman said: "We particularly do not like the idea of Russian troops running over Polish territory, for that is what a mutual assistance would imply."

English Are Cautious.

The English seemed cautious and aloof as always on new general political committments on the continent.

Anthony Eden, undersecretary of foreign affairs for Britain, said European statesmen now will concentrate on four things: Extension of the Roman accords with France; an eastern Locarno pact; rebirth of the disarmament conference, and the return of Germany to the league.

The chain of security pacts envisaged by France, which already has the backing of the little entente, tonight received the sanction of the Balkan entente, embracing Greece, Rumania, Turkey, and Jugo-Slavia.

PLOT STIRS BELGIUM

HITLER'S CRITIC GLAD SHE'S BACK IN UNITED STATES

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Else Sittel, who spent ten days in a German jail for making indiscreet remarks about Chancellor Hitler, returned in the President Roosevelt today with the statement she had no wish to revisit the Reich.

While reluctant to discuss her incarceration, the former stenographer replied with an emphatic "No" when asked if she ever would rejoin her parents in Germany. She refused even to concede that she had relatives in Germany, saying she did not want "My family or anyone else involved."

Miss Sittel denied she had received instructions either from the German government or from American diplomatic representatives abroad to keep quiet about her imprisonment.

claimed "the end of separatism" and "liquidation all along the line" of Socialism.

Flow of Refugees Slackens.

The flow of refugees to France slackened today, only 200 persons taking their leave. One hundred and eighty of them departed from Forbach for Montauban and twenty for Toulouse. The Toulouse refugees' camp already is filled to capacity, and émigrés in the future will be sent to Montauban.

French officials, prepared to shelter 1,500 refugees daily at frontier posts, said they expected a heavy influx this week.

Negotiate Financial Transfer.

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Germany's problem of paying France for the Saar properties, complicated by the flight of francs from the Saar, was under negotiation here today. Discussion of the transfer of financial control of the Saar to Germany was begun by officials of the reichsbank and the Bank of France, and will continue this week.

The Bank of International Settlements, as intermediary in the transfer, is said to have arranged for the exchange of marks for francs in the Saar at 350 special exchange offices between now and Feb. 20. The francs are to be placed in a bank at Saarbruecken for eventual remittance to France.

So many francs, however, have been sent out of the Saar in anticipation of exchange for the less valuable reichsmark that financial authorities said today it was unlikely Germany will find the 900,000,000 which the Berlin government has agreed to pay France for the Saar mines under the Rome accord.

Whatever francs remain, therefore, will be credited to France's account as a first payment, and a method of paying the rest will be negotiated.

AUSTRIA SCOFFS AT STORY OTTO IS TO BE PRESIDENT

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Official Austrian sources today repudiated reports published abroad that the Archduke Otto, pretender of the Austrian throne, or Archduke Eugene, may succeed Wilhelm Miklas as president. Reliable sources said that in the case of Otto it would be absurd for the presumptive heir to accept the office of president, which in Austria is largely ornamental and devoid of any real power.

The same applied to the 70 year old Eugene, who is looked upon more in the light of a superannuated prince than as a candidate for the presidency.

The informant said in answer to reports Prince Ernst Ruediger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor, was backing Otto for the presidency, that the prince really wants the job for himself. He would use the post as a stepping stone to a one-man rulership of Austria.

BAR WILL START STEPS TO DISBAR LAWYER PIQUETT

Unmoved by Acquittal of Dillinger Attorney.

Disbarment proceedings will be started against Attorney Louis Piquett, who gained notoriety in his career as a criminal lawyer as the trusted adviser of the late Public Enemy No. 1, John Dillinger.

President Henry A. Gardner of the Chicago Bar association said yesterday the disbarment action would be taken, even though Piquett was acquitted by a jury on the charge of harboring Dillinger while law enforcement officers were hunting the desperado, and without regard to further prosecution of Piquett by the government.

The grievance committee of the bar association, headed by Attorney Tappan Gregory, will take the first steps, Mr. Gardner said "as a very vital move in our efforts to rid our ranks of undesirables." It is customary in cases of this kind to await a conviction and then act, Mr. Gardner said, but it was considered that Piquett's case deserves special attention.

Review of Trial Evidence.

In the trial recently concluded before Federal Judge William H. Holly, it was Piquett's contention that he acted only in the relation of lawyer to client in his associations with Dillinger. Testimony developed in the trial that Dillinger and Piquett met a few hours after Dillinger escaped from the Crown Point, Ind., jail, and that they had many meetings thereafter until the time Dillinger was slain in Chicago on July 22 by East Chicago, Ind., police and federal agents.

The government introduced testimony to show that Attorney Piquett arranged with two surgeons to have a face lifting operation performed on Dillinger, so as to alter the outlaw's personal appearance, and also to have Dillinger's finger tips treated with acid to further prevent identification of the fugitive. It was charged he did the same for Homer Van Meter, another outlaw since slain.

Verdict Is "Surprise to Bar."

Judge Holly ruled that Piquett was under no legal compulsion to inform the authorities of Dillinger's whereabouts. The jury, by its acquittal verdict, held that the government had not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Piquett had gone beyond the permitted rights of a lawyer in helping Dillinger.

"That verdict was a surprise," said Mr. Gardner yesterday. "We understand the government intends to bring Piquett to trial on the indictment charging him with conspiracy to conceal and harbor Van Meter, and that still other government prosecution is possible. However, I believe it is our duty to prepare and present to the Supreme court a petition to disbar Piquett. His conduct should be revealed to the Supreme court, even though a jury found him not guilty. If he is convicted in the Van Meter case, our task will be simplified."

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green said yesterday that Piquett would soon be placed on trial on the companion charge to the Dillinger case. The evidence was that both Dillinger and Van Meter were treated by Dr. Harold B. Cassidy and Wilhelm Loeser, who lost his title of "Dr." when his license to practice medicine was revoked because of a previous conviction.

Points to Guilty Pleas.

Prosecutor Green pointed out that Cassidy and Loeser have pleaded guilty to conspiracy to harbor and conceal Dillinger and Van Meter, and the question of their punishment will come up after Piquett's second trial.

W. L. Jones, in charge of the Chicago office of the state board of medical registration and education, had begun steps to have Dr. Cassidy's license revoked. At the request of Prosecutor Green, however, he deferred the action until after the trial. Mr. Green said he did not want Dr. Cassidy harassed at this time, as it might affect the testimony he is expected to give once more against Piquett.

CREDIT TREASURY WITH DRYING UP BOOTLEG LIQUOR

30,000 Seized Since Repeal.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau, a treasury official reported today, is making good on his promise to "lick the bootlegger."

Arthur J. Mellott, deputy commissioner of internal revenue in charge of the alcohol tax unit, said statistics showed liquor law violators were having a hard time since all enforcement agencies were unified under one head.

Arrest 30,000 Since Repeal.

The merger is under the direction of Morgenthau. Mellott reported the 4,000 odd workers of the unit have been responsible for the arrest of more than 30,000 persons since repeal and that there has been a high percentage of convictions.

Secretary Morganthau promised at the time he took charge of the enforcement personnel to "either lick the bootlegger or resign from office."

The alcohol tax unit is composed of about 1,400 inspectors whose specific duties are to prevent illegal practices, 1,300 gaugers who measure the amounts withdrawn from stocks and who are shifted every ninety days to circumvent possible cases of "undue familiarity" with distillers, 300 inspectors for breweries, while the remainder consist of supervisory, administrative, and clerical forces.

Drying Up Supply Sources.

He said his bureau's concentration on "the big fellow" to the almost complete disregard of the "hip pocket" violator had dried up the source of supply. This, he added, with a firmer attitude of the courts toward violators, had discouraged bootleggers active and potential. Statistics of the bureau showed convictions were handed down in about 70 per cent of arrest cases.

The unit's records show the big majority of stills seized nowadays are in dry states. A total of 13,345 have been seized since repeal.

LIQUOR LAWS UP IN STATES THAT KEPT DRY

Alabama and Georgia, two of the last bone dry strongholds, moved last week to modify their stringent liquor laws. In Georgia a bill was introduced for legalization of beer sales.

In Arkansas, dry for 19 years, a liberal bloc proposed liquor legislation estimated to yield $700,000 annually for the benefit of the common schools and for other purposes.

The first move toward ending Utah's 17 years of statutory prohibition was taken with introduction of a bill for state package liquor stores. The measure was prepared by an advisory committee of 49 named by the governor.

County control liquor bills gained ground in the South Carolina legislature, where measures to establish state dispensaries also were pending. In North Carolina a bill for a referendum was on file.

POLICE PRAISED FOR CAMPAIGN ON HIJACKERS

The Chicago police department received praise yesterday for reducing hijacking of motor truck merchandise shipments and breaking up racketeering gangs during 1934. George W. Young, president of the association of commerce, said in a letter to Mayor Kelly: "The report covering the operation of the cartage theft detail of the police department shows that hijacked property valued at $66,417.74 was recovered in 1934; 184 culprits were arrested, of whom 37 were convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary with sentences ranging from one year to life. It is a fine record for this division of the police department and we take pleasure in acknowledging it."

ROBBERS FAIL TO RETURN CAR.

M. R. Plotke, 656 Buckingham place, waited in vain all day yesterday for two robbers to return his new automobile to Lawrence avenue and Broadway as they promised to do when they took it and $50 from him at Michigan avenue and Wacker drive early in the day.

BUSES REPLACE 103 YEAR OLD N. Y. CAR LINE

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—New York City's oldest street car line will pass into history on Feb. 1, when the surface cars now bowling up and down 4th and Madison avenues are replaced by motor buses. The car line began operation 103 years ago with horses as the motive power. The operating company, the New York and Harlem railroad, as it was known in 1832 when the line was opened, was the first company in the world to attempt local transportation service by rail.

The motorization of the Madison-4th avenue line is the first step in a comprehensive plan of the New York Railways corporation to establish a bus system covering a dozen of the city's most important highways. The Madison Avenue Coach company and the New York City Omnibus corporation are the bus operating subsidiaries through which it plans to attain that end.

The ultimate plan is to substitute buses for surface cars on such other arteries as Lexington avenue, 6th avenue, Broadway, Columbus avenue, 7th avenue, Lenox avenue and several important crosstown routes.

SIX DIE BY GAS FROM A HEATER THAT GOES OUT

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Six persons, including three generations of one family, were killed by gas today when fumes from a kitchen water heater crept through a first floor flat on Butler street, Brooklyn.

When police arrived in response to a neighbor's alarm they found Dominico Figueroa, 62, his son, William, 23, and his son-in-law, Amico Quijano, 34, dead on the living room floor, apparently felled by the fumes as they struggled desperately to reach a window.

In the kitchen Francesco Quijano, brother of Amico, 29, had collapsed while attempting to open another window. Mrs. Anna Quijano, 27, and her son, William, 10, lay on a bed in the bedroom.

DEATH ON THE ROAD.

The increase in mortality caused by highway accidents has been estimated at 6 per cent for 1934. Trafic deaths and injuries engage a great deal of discussion and receive periodic official attention. Causes are discussed ad lib and blame is placed on recklessness, speed, indifference to the rules of the road, intoxication, unfit drivers, and various other forms of negligence and irresponsibility. Most of the officials are careful to avoid recognition of the cause which is inherent.

There are, according to the most recent tabulation, nearly 25 million automobiles in use in the United States. The number has decreased very little during depression years and is now making up what loss there has been. These vehicles probably average about the speed of the railroad trains. In congested city streets they are going about as fast as the average train in the yards and terminals, and on the comparatively open highways they are driven as rapidly as the average locomotive. But where the railroad makes its speed on a right of way, with protective signals, experienced crews, and watchful dispatchers, the automobile is running on a system of roads which at the best have imperfect arrangements for safety. The record of the railroads for safe operation is broken chiefly, if not only, where unprotected grade crossings are exposed to accidents. At spots where the railway construction is open to the defects which prevail generally for automobile trafic there is a duplication of the automobile fatalities, generally caused by the automobile getting on the track.

Insecurity has been built into the highway system which disregards the elemental precautions needed to make travel secure. Annually this American neglect is resulting in the mortality of a war of some seriousness. Wars are not always avoidable, and are expected, when they are not avoided, to produce some compensation for the loss, if only in the avoidance of a greater misfortune. There is no compensation for the loss on highways, which will continue until these are prepared for the uses to which they are being put. All other reasons for the deaths and injuries will find some exhibition of human conduct which is to be expected. It is not reasonably to be expected that governments will continue to maintain highways which aggravate every human failing and which in fact defy the most careful driving to be a guarantee of safety.

Public officials who continue to refuse to build separated ways are becoming more and more guilty of manslaughter. The auto manufacturers improve the cars year by year. The road builders do nothing to keep pace with them, and if this official attitude continues the risks of the trafic will continue to show the increasing loss. When responsibility is described in terms of guilt, the country will begin to approach its solution.

INSURANCE FOR SHIRLEY TEMPLE.

A policy for $25,000 insuring Shirley Temple against accident has been underwritten by British firms that are said to think it a large risk on a small child. Her parents would regard it as a very small insurance against a very large loss. Really valuable insurance cannot be obtained. It would be against the little screen favorite growing up. The prudent underwriters have made many restrictions to safeguard the risk. Shirley is entitled to nothing if she should be injured while intoxicated and she forfeits if she takes up arms in defense of her country.

Evidently the British actuaries have been reading the more fabulous tales of Hollywood and have been overimpressed by the precocity of the little heroes and heroines. It is not true that the juveniles observe the cocktail hour at the age of 6 and none is included in the provisions of the national defense act. Current reports to the contrary are figments of press agentry.

ANOTHER LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

A writer in the Irish Times [Dublin] has been inspired by a recent statement of President de Valera of his ideas of a future British commonwealth as a smaller league of nations to offer a more ambitious pla . He suggests including the United States, and to avoid any objection "the Yankees" and other non-British components may have to the term British commonwealth he offers the title Anglo-Celtic league. That this would appeal to some scores of millions in the United States who are neither Anglicans nor Celts may be doubted, but waiving the question of a title for the proposed league we offer a plan which seems more consistent with the realities to which any English speaking league or combination must conform. In brief, there is already existing a very powerful and harmonious league of English speaking commonwealths—namely: The United States of America, and we could easily drop the America from the title. Canada, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, and England might be granted statehood on equal terms with its present constituent commonwealths. Indeed, England might come in as two states and Ireland likewise. All the benefits which the Irish Times writer predicts for his Anglo-Celtic league would as probably flow from this procedure and it would be less like the tail wagging the dog.

SENATOR JOHNSON ROLLS OUT OF BED.

Borah of Idaho and Johnson of California are back on the floor of the senate, fighting to prevent the adoption of the world court protocol and trying to keep the United States out of this commitment, which they justly regard as one of grave and unfortunate consequence. The proposal, many times defeated and never indorsed by the people, returns time after time with government insistence behind it.

Mr. Borah does not find himself a disturbed and alarmed familiar and crony of the advocates of the world court. He is not suddenly outraged by the proposals entertained by his own comrades in politics. The case is different with Hiram Johnson. He has been devoting himself to the support and encouragement of just such long eared political ideas as now seek to achieve this delivery of the United States into a scheme of international political intrigue. Mr. Johnson sees the pious fallacies of the international setup, but what he can say against it is largely vitiated by his own support of other fallacies quite as damaging to the domestic peace and well-being of his country.

Senator Johnson is so far responsible for the New Deal that when he refuses to swallow this part of it he gains little sympathy and exposes himself to some derision, with the reflection that it is a pity his mind should have kept its balance in this one particular alone.

AN ASSISTED PENITENCE.

The note of humiliating apology and self-blame in the so-called confessions of Kamenev and Zinovieff, as published by the Kremlin, it is difficult to take for genuine. Both men are veteran revolutionaries, once formidable figures in the bolshevik régime, and unquestionably knew what they were doing when they engaged in a plot to overthrow Stalin. That they should now pretend contrition is doubtless explained by the news that they will not be executed but merely sent to prison, but no one reasonably can suppose the form of their confession, its tone and phraseology, could be the product of anything but compulsion and compulsion of a sinister character. Perhaps they are sustained by a Russian equivalent of Bob Acres' saying: "He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day." Stalin will try to arrange that they will not run away, but after all they have escaped a firing squad and while there is life there may be hope in a Russian prison.

SCORE ANOTHER FOR THE ALLIANCE.

The latest sensational prison break, that from the California penitentiary at St. Quentin, is only another accomplishment of the alliance of crime and corrupt politics. The prisoners who planned and carried out this complicated and daring enterprise had a brazen confidence in the inefficiency of the prison administration which ought to have significance to the California citizenry. Certainly ability of the felons to obtain arms and walk some distance through the prison grounds and out of the gate without successful challenge reveals a slackness of management and an official morale not to be explained as a freak of fortune. It bears too much resemblance to other breaks which were the natural and inevitable results of the demoralization and degradation of the public service by rotten politics in league with professional crime.

TAXING SIZE.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

The United States Supreme court in upholding the West Virginia chain store tax is recorded in the familiar 5-4 division, which has been the rule recently in most of the court's so-called "advanced" decisions. Sustaining the tax are the jurists rated as liberal, Chief Justice Hughes and Associates Brandeis, Cardozo, Roberts and Stone.

Washington is in a jittery mood over the impending gold decision. So it seizes this new 5-4 division as a hint that the government's position on gold is likely to be sustained. Such reasoning strains analogy to the breaking point. There is practically no similarity between the gold issue and the chain store case.

As a matter of fact the chain store decision may be interpreted as a departure from the recent tendency to strengthen federal power at the expense of the states. It goes the other way, and establishes state authority to use taxing power to achieve supposed social aims.

To be sure, the court is careful to point out that it is not passing on the ethics or the expediency of this kind of taxation. The sole issue is the right of states to follow such a policy. Says Justice Cardozo: "The state may make the tax so heavy as to discourage the multiplication of units [chain stores] to an extent believed inordinate, and by the incidence of the burden develop other forms of industry."

But the ruling also rejects the argument of the appellant, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, that it was treated with undue harshness by the sliding scale which levied more proportionally from the owner of many retail outlets than the owner of few. In fact, the court holds the chain, by its very size, has a substantial advantage because "ownership of a host of well appointed depots . . . has put the chains in a position to bring home to the consuming public a knowledge of their wares and the quality of their service in a way far beyond the capacity of an independent dealer."

This is the gist of the argument for a chain store tax which has been presented in many legislatures recently. Now, with the authority of the highest court behind it, the drive for chain stores taxes is certain to be intensified.

IF THEY'D HAD OLD AGE PENSIONS THEN.

(This all happened some time back, of course. The official who hands out the seventy-two goat skins [equivalent to $30 a month in our money] to each of the old persons on the destitute list was a little peevish as he sternly regarded the aged people lined up before him.)

OLD AGE PENSION AGENT: "All right. Step up and get your money. But all I want to say is that you birds have been living on the old age pension for a gosh awful time! State your age and step up and get your money. Who's first?"

METHUSELAH: "I expect I'm first. I'm nine hundred and fifty-two years old come next August."

PENSION AGENT: "Say, Methuselah, how long have you been on the old age pension list?"

PENSION AGENT: "That's a mighty long time. Why didn't you do a little work when you were young and save up some money for your old age?"

METHUSELAH: "Well, I started a dodo farm once and I sez to myself when I git old I'll have something fer my declinin' days. But there was a city sharper kem areun' and he got me to trade off all my dodos fer a couple of racin' pterodactyls that he said could fly faster 'n any other pterodactyls what ever lived. He said either one of 'em could do a mile in two hours flat. So I bought them pterodactyls and took 'em around the circuit and, do you know what, them two hunks of glue couldn't fly a mile between sunup and sundown an' I lost all my money. But I was young then; I wuz only two hundred and eighty-nine at that time and the world was before me. So I started out to make a fresh fortune, but——"

PENSION AGENT: "Oh, I know; I've heard all that before. But it's people like you that make it mighty hard on the people who have to pay taxes in this country. Say, you had a bad cough the last time you were here and you said something about feeling pretty weak. How's your cold now?"

METHUSELAH: "Oh, it's all gone; never felt better in my life. Yessir, I hope to live to a ripe old age."

PENSION AGENT: "Tsk, tsk, tsk; well, who's next?"

METHUSELAH: "Here's my little boy, Lamech. Hain't he a fine lad for his age? He's goin' to school an' the teacher says he's the brightest boy in the class. Tell the pension agent how old you are, Lammy."

LAMECH: "I'm just seven hunurd and twenty-two years old today and I'm agoing to have a party and a birthday cake; six hunurd twenty candles on it to blow out."

PENSION AGENT: "Well, if you birds are going to stick around like this the taxpayers are going broke, that's all."

METHUSELAH: "Oh, both me and Lammy have got to go some to live as long as my grandfather Jared. Grandpop lived to be nine hundurd and sixty years old before he kicked in. You see Lammy here and me we come of a long lived family. Why my great-grandpoppy, old Grandpa Mahalaleel, might have lived to be a very old man, but he drank a lot of corn likker and smoked a pipe all the time and shortened his life so that he wuz only eight hundurd and ninety-five years old when he snuffed out."

PENSION AGENT: "Well, here's your pensions, but I want to tell you birds something. It's people like you that are going to put this old age pension business on the bum. Some day the taxpayers are going to rise up and abolish the whole system."

METHUSELAH: "Well, they'll abolish it until they've forgotten all about me and Lammy and my Grandpa Jared and then they'll start it up agin. You see."

COURTIER INCURABLE.

(For Donfarran.)

The lady poet rushes up—
"We met so long ago
I'm sure you've quite forgotten me,
Susannah Smith, you know."
The courtier quickly lifts his hat,
And makes a courtly bow:
"Miss Smith, I've thought of nothing else
From then till now."

The wistful maiden coyly says
"We met at Newman's Tea—
So long ago, I don't suppose
That you remember me."
Again the courtier lifts his hat,
And breathes, in accents low:
"My dear, I've thought of nothing else,
I'd have you know."

The frank young person stares a bit,
Her words are terse and few—
"I know that you've forgotten me,
As I have you.
I don't recall your face or name,
Your job, or what's your town,
And I'd have guessed your eyes were black,
Or anything but brown."

"Lady," the courtier shakes his head
As one who knows his cue,
"You could forget me fifty times,
But I'd remember you!"

SADIE SEAGRAVE.

"SHOULD WE LIVE for the present or for the future?" asks a new book. With the prospect of paying all those billions and billions scattered with such a glad, lavish hand down at Washington we are concerned right now with knowing whether or not we can live in the present. We haven't time to bother about the future at all, unless "future" means day after tomorrow. That's about as much future as we are able to comprehend these days.

SILICOSIS, OR STONY LUNGS.

SHAKESPEARE makes frequent mention of "stony" heart. For example, "My heart is turned to stone" and "Rough hearts of flint." Perhaps Shakespeare was not much of a pathologist, but his keen insight into medical affairs continues to astonish critics. Apparently "stony" lungs were unknown to this great author, as the phrase is not used in his writings. In arteriosclerosis of high degree lime is often deposited on the valve leaflets and in the lining of the heart.

Some people are unfortunate enough to have accumulations of stone in the lungs. This is not lime but fine particles of silica (silicon dioxide) that are inhaled as dust. Many ancient writers describe the condition and in 1577 Agricola wrote: "When the dust is very corrosive it ulcerates the lungs and produces consumption. Hence it is that in the Carpathian mountains there are women who have married seven husbands, all of whom this dreadful disease has brought to an early grave." Bernardino Ramazzini, the first medical writer to describe diseases that occurred in certain occupations, records early in the 18th century the finding of gritty areas in the lungs of stone workers.

For many years the disease has been known as pneumoconiosis or miner's consumption, but recently the more accurate term silicosis has been adopted. Lanza and Vance, writing in the American Review of Tuberculosis, state that in the United States more than half a million workers are regularly exposed to silica dust in mining, quarrying, rock drilling, pottery manufacture, and certain other industries.

Careful estimates have shown that a dust concentration in the air of more than ten million particles of silica per cubic foot is dangerous. In certain occupations, before protective devices were installed, as many as ninety-two million particles per air unit were found.

The inhaled silica dust plugs the lymph spaces in the lungs. From the mechanical irritation of these particles inflammation is set up and nodules of fibrous tissue are formed. This process develops slowly but steadily and is sometimes detectable in the lungs by means of the X-ray long before symptoms become manifest.

Of the many symptoms difficult breathing is usually the first to appear, but as has been pointed out the symptoms may not be apparent for years after the initial exposure; perhaps long after exposure has ceased. As the disease progresses the lungs expand less readily and usually there is a slight hacking cough. Because of the reduction in lung space due to the destruction of lung tissue the lips and finger tips may appear dusky or gray in shade. An X-ray picture taken at a fairly advanced stage will show the presence of extensive fibrous nodules.

Paul A. Quaintance, in a recent article, reports the study of 106 pottery workers engaged in the manufacture of bathroom ware. The clay used contained approximately 20 per cent of silica. Quaintance found that these workers were constantly inhaling silica dust and that they did not wear masks. Nearly 9 per cent of the employés showed advanced silicosis, the average duration of exposure being sixteen years. In 38 per cent there were moderate fibrous changes in the lungs, and in 53.4 per cent slight changes.

Unfortunately once silica dust has been drawn into the lungs it cannot be removed, although nature attempts to build a firm, fibrous fence around the offending particles. Prevention is now advocated along common sense lines, namely, a reduction in the concentration of silica particles in the air. This can be obtained through adequate ventilation replacing the dust laden air with clean filtered air. Water will precipitate silica particles and the use of a water spray around grinding or rock drilling machines will remove a high percentage of dust. Furthermore, filter masks are now employed for workers in dusty surroundings.

THANKS.

E. F. M. writes: In your article on colds you stated that "the cold germ exists wherever people are congregated." This probably is true of every place except in the far north and extreme south. Among the Eskimos of northern Greenland colds are unknown.

Commander Donald B. MacMillan went into the arctic in 1911 with five men, intending to stay one year. Because the ship did not come to get him he stayed for four years. He lived with the Eskimos part of the time. Although he and his men went out on long drives and often slept in their sweaty clothes in the extreme cold, they never had colds during their stay. At the end of this time a ship came up to get them. The day the ship arrived MacMillan and his men went out and had dinner in the warm cabin of the vessel. The next morning MacMillan and every one of his men were down with colds. The germ had evidently been brought north in the warm cabin, which had not been allowed to become cold at any time in its trip northward.

I had the same experience in 1925 in the same latitude. I also found that as I came south with my men every one had colds.

REPLY.

In second case customer B purchased stocks outright, but neglected to call for stock at brokerage company. 3. This stock in which brokerage company had no equity was also pledged by them to bonding company. Is the so-called agreement pledging customer's stock binding to customer when unsigned by him? H. G.

1. Do you mean that they reserved the right to pledge the pledged stock with a third person as security for a loan? We cannot advise to advantage without having the wording before us.

2. If the pledge was within the wording of the original agreement, we see no basis of objection.

3. If there was no agreement giving them authority to pledge this stock, then clearly the pledge would be unauthorized, but if the new pledgee had no notice of the facts his rights might be superior to those of the original owner.

4. An unsigned statement may be adopted by the parties as the basis of their agreement. The answer would depend on the surrounding circumstances going to show whether it was so adopted or not. We advise you to go over all your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—There is an old brickyard on our street which is unoccupied and unsafe. By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Although we always associate bagpipes with the highlands of Scotland, they did not originate there, as is commonly believed. This instrument was once common among the Egyptians, the Greeks, and the Romans, and, in fact, was common at one time throughout the whole of Europe. Chaucer mentions his Miller skilled in playing the bagpipe, and Shakespeare refers to the "drone of a Lincolnshire bagpipe." This instrument has lingered in the highlands of Scotland, although it has practically disappeared in other countries except in the Tyrol and certain regions of Ireland. It is the national instrument of Scotland. [Suggested by J. J. L., Boston, Mass.]

THE SCHOOL PROBLEM IN ILLINOIS.

Wilmette, Ill., Jan. 16.—This is a plea for the dispossessed school children of Steger and other suburban communities of the Chicago metropolitan area.

Gov. Horner in his message to the general assembly last week expressed the view, at least a year old, that a state-wide commission be appointed to study the entire state school situation and make recommendations for a comprehensive reframing of the educational plan of Illinois in time for legislative enactment during the present session. His excellency is either naïve or extremely optimistic if he hopes such a wise and thoroughgoing scheme can be accomplished in five months. At a meeting of nearly two hundred educators and school board members of suburban Cook, Du Page and Lake counties, held in Chicago last week to discuss the educational crisis, there was the unanimous conviction that backward Illinois, which is thirty-seventh in point of education of all the states of the Union, would not speed up this work any more rapidly than the really progressive commonwealths which took two years to do the job.

Meanwhile the school children are on the streets.

Members of parent-teacher associations, women's clubs, civic organizations, and even school boards, should get the distinctions in the present situation. Undoubtedly Illinois needs a complete rewriting of the jumbled and archaic school law and a sharp revision of school operative regimen. But that is a long term problem. It will require the best sort of experienced men and women to form an adequate commission, not simply from Chicago, where there is one problem, not just from the rural areas, where there is another, not only from the suburbs, but from all. Moreover, the personnel should not come merely from the teaching class, not merely from the private citizen class, but also from ranks of active school board members who for years have been twisting and squirming to keep their schools open. But once more this is a long term problem.

Meanwhile the state of Illinois is in flagrant default—roughly $15,000,000—on its obligation to school districts throughout the state. This is not new requests asked for; it is a debt as definite and distinct as bonds and interest for borrowed money. If that money were paid in reasonable amount many of the closed schools would open. But even less than that: If the state authorities cannot pay that sum all at once they can scrape together sufficient of it to open closed schools. Why not tell this to the state authorities emphatically?

Moreover, you who like this writer are blessed by living in districts where, through good fortune, resourcefulness, hard work, etc., school boards have been able to maintain their own solvency—even though cursed by being located within politics-ridden Cook county—your own districts need your help with the state legislature to rectify half a dozen ridiculous provisions in the state school law to continue in a solvent position. The Tri-County School Board association, serving the 150 school boards in suburban Cook, Du Page and Lake counties; the Illinois School Board association, and the Illinois State Teachers' association all have almost identical ideas, founded on sore experience, as to school needs, immediate and future. Consult with the school authorities of your own neighborhoods and get behind them in their nonremunerative efforts to help your own children.

IN TROUBLED MEXICO.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—I have a daughter who is only 24 years old, who has three small children, aged 2, 5, and 6. They are in that troubled zone in Mexico. She has written me some very distressing letters asking that I get her and babies help at once, as they have been fired on. Unless I send her money to return, or help of some kind at once, I may never see her again.

My girl is a full blooded American of the past four generations. I have visited every governmental office in Chicago, yet no one knows what to do, and if they do know they will not tell you.

My daughter has been in Mexico only two months and a half. She is stranded and in danger What is our war department for? Is it not to protect Americans? Are they paid to watch while they are killed.

I had no letter of references from politicians, I guess that is why I got no help. LEONA SEIFERLE.

THE PRICE OF MILK.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—"Housewives throughout Chicago will pay 1 cent a quart more for milk this morning." Thus is the city informed as to who is going to pay the extra 20 cents a hundred which the milk dealers decided to pay the farmers. But a cent a quart is 50 cents a hundred, so, thanks to us benevolent housewives, the milk dealers will have a neat little 30 cents a hundred left to put in their pockets after they have paid the farmer his 20. If the entire 50 cents a hundred were to be passed on to the farmer I would be glad to pay the extra cent a quart, but as matters stand some milk dealer took a little too much for granted when he relied on my extra cent. ### RELIABILITY IN TRANSPORTATION.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 16.—In your issue of Jan. 15, under the heading "Reliability in Transportation," Mr. George Carlton condemns airplanes, airplane passengers, and airports.

When the airplane is 100 years old, as the railroads are, weather in any form undoubtedly will be a minor difficulty, although it will always increase the hazards of surface travel.

Mr. Carlton refers to the airplane as a suicidal device. I wonder what he thinks of the automobile and its annual slaughter of 30,000 and more. J. WOOD.

FIGURES SHOW CRIME INCREASE IN WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—This city, upon which the wheel of government turns, has an embarrassing situation to hide beneath her official toga.

Washington rapidly is gaining the reputation of crime capital of the nation, the utterances of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings to the contrary, notwithstanding. Without mentioning conditions on the country's front doorstep, the attorney general has boasted on numerous occasions that the government has been cleaning up gangsters, racketeers, and kidnapers.

But the statistics on crime in Washington have become so glaring that a congressional investigation has been precipitated. A special subcommittee, headed by Representative Jennings Randolph [Dem., W. Va.], has been appointed to conduct an inquiry. The group will hold its first meeting tomorrow night.

Fear Kidnap Ring.

Increased attention was focused on the situation tonight with the seizure of 14 persons, three of them women, and equipment which led police to investigate whether a kidnaping gang was being organized here.

With the 14 were taken guns, adhesive tape, and sand paper. Descriptions of several of those seized were sent to all major cities. Police were particularly interested in the findings of Detroit identification experts, saying six of the men told them they came here recently from Michigan.

Chief of Detectives Frank Burke said four of the men were being held incommunicado.

"It it our belief," Burke said, "that these four were planning to 'shake down' a well known Washington gambler and possibly to start other criminal operations here."

"One of Worst Centers."

"Washington is one of the worst crime centers in the United States," asserted Randolph, discussing plans for the investigation. "It should be a model law enforcement city because all other communities look to it for guidance."

The committee members will be presented with evidence that on a relative population basis, Washington has 40 per cent more murders than Chicago, the most popular target in years past for the hurling of crime charges.

The killings in Washington during 1934 actually numbered more than the district's number of soldiers lost on the battle field in the world war. There were 81 murders in the city last year and 79 men from Washington were lost during the war.

The capital city leads all others of its size in robbery and larceny and is second to only one in burglary and automobile theft. The cities compared include: Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Cincinnati, and Newark.

8,875 Felonies in Year.

Adding other crimes to the list, Washington rolled up a total of 8,875 felonies during the last year. Fewer than 5,000 persons were arrested and fewer than 1,250 were indicted, the government failing to make its case against 3,875. Only 921 were convicted and after conviction 322 were placed on probation.

In other words, for the 8,875 felonies committed, 599 criminals were sent to prison.

Some explain the situation by saying that the people in the District of Columbia can not vote, the territory being ruled by congress. Washington, on the other hand, is the center of the law enforcement machinery of the nation.

The justices of the Supreme court of the district are appointed by the President on the recommendation of the attorney general. The attorney general as well recommends for appointment the United States attorney for the district.

Has Original Jurisdiction.

The district Supreme court has original jurisdiction over all felony cases and selects the grand juries. The court also appoints the United States commissioner who is empowered to issue warants for offenses against the district as well as against the United States.

Besides Randolph, members of the subcommittee who will delve into Washington crime are as follows: Representatives Chauncey W. Reed, [Rep., Ill.], Everett M. Dirksen, [Rep., Ill.], Virginia Jenckes, [Dem., Ind.], William T. Schulte, [Dem., Ind.], Ralph O. Brewster, [Rep., Me.], and Theodore B. Werner, [Dem., S. D.].

Chairman Randolph declared there would be no whitewash and that the group would hold extensive hearings in order to sift the situation from top to bottom.

Police Head to Be Called.

Among the first to be called will be Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board of district commissioners; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; Leslie Garnet, district attorney, and Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman.

The inquiry is aimed only at crime as such. Another blot on the city's escutcheon is attacked in a bill "to prevent enticement," pending before the house of representatives. This measure was introduced by Representative Mary T. Norton, [Dem., N. J.], chairman of the house committee on the District of Columbia.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

Dennie Mae Burns, 6 years old, 2948 Indiana avenue, colored, was fatally burned yesterday when her dress caught fire as an oil stove exploded in a flat at 10 East 42d street, where she and her parents were visiting.

URGE REVISION OF PENAL CODE FOR NEW YORK

Long Sentences Called No Crime Deterrent.

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Complete revision of the state penal law and code of criminal procedure was urged by the New York county grand jury tonight on the ground it is in a state of "indescribable confusion and inconsistency."

In a 52,000 word presentment, the grand jury called for a lessening of the severity of existing laws and a strengthening of the parole system. The presentment covered the results of an investigation undertaken last May.

A revamping of prison administration to help in rehabilitation of offenders was another of the jury's forty-nine recommendations, which wound up with the suggestion that Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia appoint a commission to formulate a "constructive and lasting" program to deal with the crime problem.

New Laws Confusing.

Asserting that every new law adds to the present confusion, the grand jury said:

"Rather than any further piecemeal legislation, the task of rewriting the criminal law should be given to the newly created law revision commission, and sufficient time and funds allowed them for this work.

"Laws relating to sentencing should be written from a modern point of view and with a complete new evaluation of the meaning of different types of crime."

Long sentences, the grand jury found, do not act as a deterrent or a curative.

Since the rigid life-imprisonment-for-fourth offenders law was passed in 1926, the presentment said, prison population has increased 118 per cent and civilian population 17 per cent.

One of Three Face Prison.

Continuing, it said:

"If this condition of growing crime continues, a prominent warden of a state institution testified, one out of every three persons will be in prison."

Sentences passed in New York state were found to be twice or three times as long as the aggregate sentences of other states, or of the federal government.

Urging discontinuance of the "prevalent practice" of accepting guilty pleas for lesser offenses than those covered in the indictment, the grand jurors said:

"Seventy per cent to 75 per cent of all men in prison are not there for the crimes they probably committed. They have 'copped a plea.'"

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

Mrs. Josephine De Francisco, 51 years old, 52 West 37th street, Stegor, died in St. James hospital yesterday morning of burns incurred on Dec. 27 when her dress caught fire while she was warming herself at a gas stove in her home.

FLYNN WILL OPEN OFFICE TODAY IN MAYOR CAMPAIGN

Real Electioneering in G. O. P. Race Promised.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Whatever else may be said about the Republican mayoral primary on Feb. 26, there really is to be a campaign. Some folks had begun to believe that there wouldn't even be the semblance of a contest.

Mortimer E. Flynn, millionaire coal man, said yesterday that he would open his headquarters at the Hotel Sherman today and that he had written letters to the fifty Republican ward committeemen to come in, meet him face to face, and talk frankly about such matters as finance, a topic that has worried many of the ward representatives.

Ready for All Comers.

In addition, Mr. Flynn said that he would be on the job in suite 214, the headquarters, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., ready to receive as many as possible of those who feel even a spark of interest in his candidacy. He said he expected to be there daily to talk to as many as possible without the intervention of the customary middlemen.

He declined to give figures on the question of financing, but said that he and a number of friends anxious to see a Republican elected stood ready to "put up all that is necessary." He added, however, that he did not intend to play angel in advance of the primary to any indigent committeemen who might find use elsewhere for the funds intrusted to them.

Wetten Plans a Battle.

This subject of financing has been uppermost during the present Republican eclipse because of the impression certain committeemen received somehow that Attorney Emil C. Wetten was a real angel right now. They were almost indignant when they discovered that the reported funds were not tangible. Nevertheless, Mr. Wetten said yesterday that he intended to put up an active fight.

In answer to reports that some of his opponents might challenge his eligibility as a Chicagoan because he spends most of his time on his farm at Barrington, Mr. Wetten said that his voting residence for the last two or three years has been at the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street.

Inquiry at the hotel brought a response from the telephone girl that the son, Walton Wetten, is a registered guest but that no Emil C. Wetten was registered. The manager's office said that the elder Wetten sometimes shared the apartment with his son. Emil Wetten said that he has paid all the bills at the hotel, an additional fact he cited to show that it is his residence whether or not he is a registered guest.

Tomorrow is the last day under the primary law for withdrawals, but none of the four Republican entrants is expected to step out at this time.

U. S. Envoy in Parley with Cuban Chiefs.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 20.—Cuba's army tonight was ordered mobilized to full strength to combat terrorism and incendiarism at sugar mills throughout the island. The first action was to send 3,000 troops from Havana to the great central Chaparra mill, central Delicias, and other mills in Oriente province in the east.

At their invitation United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery this afternoon joined President Carlos Mendieta, Chief of Staf Col. Fulgencio Batista, and Secretary of Justice Raul Cardenas at Mendieta's farm, 23 miles west of Havana, to formulate measures to stop communist sabotage of sugar operations. It was reported that 25,000,000 pounds of cane was destroyed and several mills burned in the vicinity of Jovellanos and Cienfuegos this week-end.

Ordered to Shoot Arsonists.

Col. Batista stated to THE TRIBUNE that soldiers are instructed not to arrest but to kill any one caught firing cane fields, bombing, firing or damaging mill properties.

Persons arrested on suspicion of incendiarism or terrorism will be tried by court martial and if found guilty will be executed by firing squads within 24 hours. The court martial sentences are not subject to appeal.

Constitutional guarantees will be suspended indefinitly throughout the island.

Mills will be furnished military protection at least until the sugar quota assigned by the United States to Cuba is completed, Batista said. Native and foreign mills and cane plantations will be occupied by adequate forces of troops which will be additionally responsible for liquidating armed bands roaming the interior and attacking towns.

Fear Loss of Quota.

Asked about Ambassador Caffery's participation in the conference Col. Batista said:

"The United States needs Cuba's quota of sugar and expects it. If the terrorists succeed and Cuba cannot manufacture the quota the reciprocity trade treaty and the Jones-Costigan sugar control act might be repealed, owing to the fact that Cuba was given a generous quota at the expense of domestic and territorial producers.

"Before terrorists are allowed to succeed in Cuba," Col. Batista declared, "as a last resort we will appeal to the United States military for assistance, and I have been assured that Cuba can depend upon getting it."

View Palestine as Land of True Justice.

Chicago's observance of Palestine day came to a climax last night in a massmeeting at the Auditorium theater, where both Christian and Jewish leaders praised the success of Zionism in the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland during the past 15 years. More than 3,000 persons attended the observance.

Fred R. Zimmerman, former governor of Wisconsin, in his address emphasized the fact that Palestine was no longer a land of the past, but of the future—a land where prejudices shall be no more and social justice will prevail.

Sees Prejudice Battered Down.

"The time may never come," said Mr. Zimmerman, "when people will be able to overcome their prejudices, but we can conquer and reduce them to a point where they will do but little injury either to ourselves or to our neighbors."

"As we celebrate the Fourth of July as the birth of nation, so are we celebrating this Jan. 20 as Palestine born again as the national home of the Jews."

Symbol of Spiritual Unity.

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher said that the Palestinian day celebration was really a contemplation of the return from exile and that while dispersion was still a fact for many Jews, the fact of Palestine, as Jewry's spiritual home, was helping to unite all Jews.

Judge Fisher explained that the point of these meetings in various parts of the United States was to draw attention to the government in Palestine that the return of those Jews who wished to find a home there should not be unduly delayed.

STRIKERS UPSET DINNER SPEECH OF LA GUARDIA

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia was addressing a dinner tonight in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria in honor of twelve physicians who have served twenty-five years or more on the staf of the Jewish hospital in Brooklyn. Suddenly one of two young women who occupied a box in the second tier stood up and shouted:

"I want to introduce myself. I am an Ohrbach striker."

In an instant, most of the 1,700 dinner guests were on their feet, and the place was in an uproar. Boos and hisses sounded from all sides. Hotel employés and others rushed to the box, bent upon ejecting them, but found an arm of each was fastened with a chain to the box railing and secured with a padlock. The young women simply shrugged their shoulders when asked for the keys.

The mayor had tried to restore order by continuing with his speech, but each time he attempted to speak one of the young women launched into a speech about the strike of employés of Ohrbach's department store.

For ten minutes the uproar continued. Finally it subsided, guests resumed their seats, and the mayor resumed his speech. Hotel employés used saws to sever the chains and detectives escorted the young women out.

Nathan M. Ohrbach, head of the department store and a director of the hospital, had warned hotel officials of the possibility that the dinner might be used as the occasion for a demonstration. Extraordinary precautions had been taken.

RED LEADER ON TRIAL IN RUSSIA FOR KILLING BOY

MOSCOW, Jan. 20.—A murder near Smolensk of a boy member of the Young Pioneers, communist organization for boys and girls up to 16 years old, was reported to Moscow today. Andrei Kulakoff, village postmaster and leader of the Young Pioneer group, is on trial and is alleged to have confessed killing Nikita Senin, 14 years old.

According to the testimony, Nikita was the most active member of the group. Besides helping backward boys and marshaling other children to aid neighboring collective farms in various ways, the boy also acted as correspondent for the local newspaper.

In that capacity he publicly denounced Kulakoff as the "son of a kulak" [wealthy farmer] and as a drunkard who had beaten up Young Pioneers.

Last Sunday, according to the testimony, Kulakoff asked Nikita to take a mail pouch to a neighboring village by sleigh. Nikita complied. Kulakoff also got in the sleigh. According to the evidence, Kulakoff shot Nikita en route and left him for dead in a gully. That night villagers told of seeing blood on the snow and Kulakoff volunteered to investigate. He found Nikita still alive at the side of the road.

CHURCH BATTLE STIRRED BY NEW MISSION PAPER

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The controversy between the so-called modernists and fundamentalists in the Presbyterian church in this country was brought before the public again today in a new monthly bulletin published by the independent board for Presbyterian foreign missions.

That bulletin indorses the position of the Rev. Dr. J. Gresham Machen of Philadelphia. He is to be tried next month before a judicial committee of the presbytery of New Brunswick on charges of defying the church authorities.

Dr. Machen appeals through the bulletin for contributions to the pices in defiance of the Presbyterian general assembly.

Dr. Machen criticizes the action of the presbytery for ordering his trial and stresses the point he is to be tried before one who removes central verities of the faith from the church's message."

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Ben Marshall, architect, hotel man and dilettante in many arts, is turning to a new field. The president of the Drake hotel is organizing a new dance orchestra that is to reflect some of his own ideas on the presentation of popular music and dance rhythms. Mr. Marshall is occupied these days with rehersing the new orchestra, which will replace Ferde Grofe and his band next Saturday evening with W-G-N as the radio outlet.

There will be no stick waver in front of the new orchestra. In place of a batoneer Mr. Marshall will have a double piano team directing the orchestra. The bandsmen will be grouped about the piano duo, Carl Noble and Carson Donnelly, who are heard on W-G-N as a team on that 10 p. m. commercial program. Stanley Jacobsen, tenor, a favorite of the air audience when he was with Ted Fio-Rito and Charlie Agnew, will be the vocal soloist. Strings will predominate in the orchestra and there will be practically no brass.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, who are playing at the Palace, are expected to be headliners on Kay Kyser's Midnight Flyers broadcast from the Blackhawk tonight over W-G-N along with Mitzi Green. The popular radio comedians will also be heard at 6 o'clock tomorrow night on the Palace Varieties.

Pat Flanagan has a new sponsor for his baseball broadcasts over WBBM-CBS this season. It's the cereal maker who also has "Jack Armstrong, All American Boy" on CBS and the serial "Betty and Bob" on NBC.

Arthur Wright, young Mooseheart tenor, and Harold Turner, pianist, are to start a new commercial program over W-G-N tomorrow morning . . . Frank Munn will sing with Harry Horlick and his Gypsies in place of Frank Parker at 8 o'clock tonight over NBC from New York. Parker is in Chicago with the Benny troupe . . . David Ross, dean of Columbia's announcers, has taken to singing on that radio musical comedy, "The O'Flynn."

Margaret Lamb, NBC hostess, won the women's ping-pong tournament at NBC, defeating Helen King, Em of Clara, Lu 'n' Em, in the finals. Both received loving cups donated by Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will discuss cookery with Eleanor Howe on her home forum broadcast over WMAQ at 3 o'clock tomorrow. And vegetable soup, made from a special recipe of the diva, will be served immediately after she has her turn at the microphone.

Dunham Woods Club to Feast on Foreign Foods

Russian Dinner Saturday to Start Series.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE members of the Dunham Woods club have persuaded Leonid Remisoff to prepare a Russian dinner for them next Saturday evening at the first of a series of international dinners to be continued several weeks at the little club in Wayne.

The menu will be Russian from cocktails to demi-tasse and the atmosphere will also be Russian, with a group of Cossack musicians entertaining during the meal.

With most of the guests planning to remain over the week-end, the festivity will continue Sunday with an exhibition of scenery, sketches, and costumes that Mr. Remisoff's father, Nicholas Remisoff, designed for "Le Coq d'Or," "Le Chauve-Souris," and "Salome." These will be shown in the coachhouse that adjoins the club. In this exhibition several of the artist's portraits will also be hung, including those of Miss Francise Clow, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., Ruth Page [Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher], and Henry Monroe.

After Mr. Remisoff has given a short talk on the exhibition at 5 o'clock Sunday, Mrs. Remisoff will serve tea from a copper samovar.

The exhibit is to be opened to the public, but the dinner is being reserved for the club members. On succeeding Saturday nights the national dishes of other countries are to be served. A similar series of dinners was given last winter, but because they were served on a week night few Chicagoans were able to enjoy them.

Arts Club to Give Tea for Mary Garden.

In anticipation of Mary Garden's concert next Friday night at the Casino, the Arts club has issued cards for a tea for Miss Garden from 4:30 until 6 o'clock Thursday. The Arts club is also to have a lecture by Philippe Soupault on "James Joyce" at 11:30 Wednesday morning.

According to the ticket reservations, the audience gathered at the Casino next Friday night will be one of the most distinguished of the late winter. All that seems necessary is some means of expanding the fashionable little club that it may seat more than 400.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers, who is Miss Garden's devoted friend, is to entertain with Mr. Chalmers at a dinner party at their Lake Shore drive apartment before the concert. Another home dinner will be that of Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. Dinner hosts and hostesses in the side rooms of the Casino preceding the concert will include Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde.

Play to Benefit Crippled Children.

Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. William McCormick Blair, Harold F. McCormick, Robert F. Carr, and University of Chicago faculty members will be among those in the audience next Saturday night at Ida Noyes hall when Friends of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children will present a play, "What Next?" The home is housed in the McElwee and Hicks hospitals at the university.

Mrs. Walter C. Biddle is the author of the play, which has to do with the troubles of a socially ambitious mother and her three daughters. Among the sponsors of the theatrical evening are Mrs. John C. Dinsmore, Mrs. H. Foster Straw, Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey, Mrs. William C. Graham, Mrs. Aaron J. Brumbaugh, Mrs. Percival Bailey, Mrs. Emery T. Filbey and Dr. Edward L. Compere.

A letter from Phoenix, Ariz., fairly breathes sunshine and balmy breezes. Gardiner B. Van Ness and his son, Gardiner B. Van Ness Jr., have arrived at the Arizona Biltmore and are enjoying at least 18 holes of golf every day. Young Mr. Van Ness supplements his sports program with tennis and horseback.

Mrs. Wade Fetzer is there with her daughter, Mary Jane, and her young son, Tommy, for an indefinite stay. The Fetzers were accompanied south by Mrs. John H. Sherman and her small daughter, Peggy. Edward Cudahy arrived a week ago yesterday for a few weeks of sunshine with his two sisters, Mary and Clara.

Others who are enjoying the golf links and the hotel swimming pool are Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann and the Milton Florsheims. The Florsheims are devoted bridge fans, playing almost every day.

Two Matrons to Spend Month in Mexico City.

Mrs. Carroll Sudler and Mrs. Cyrus Bentley departed Saturday for a month's visit in Mexico City. After they return to Chicago Mrs. Sudler will again be at the Drake, where she and Mr. Sudler have been staying since their return from California early this winter.

On or about Jan. 30 Miss Martha Borland, a debutante, and her sister, Miss Harriet Borland, are leaving Chicago for New Orleans, where they will embark for Havana. From there they plan to fly to Yucatan. Their itinerary will then take them into Guatemala and to Mexico and home. They expect to be away at least three months and without doubt Harriet will return with a portfolio of sketches and paintings, for her artistic talents are well known.

Dr. and Mrs. Casey Wood, former Chicagoans whose home is now in Pasadena, are on their way to Egypt, where they are going to spend the spring months. The remainder of 1935 the Woods will spend in Rome, where Dr. Wood will do research work in the Vatican library. It is hoped that on their return to this country they will

Since Mrs. Wilson Killough, the new president of the Kenwood branch, is vacationing in Florida, Mrs. Carl Defebaugh will preside at today's meeting.

Snow Ties Up "Call of Wild" Movie Troupe

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The troupe which went north ten days ago to make winter location shots for "The Call of the Wild" on the snowy side of Mount Baker, near Bellingham, Wash., has been snowbound for several days. It was necessary to pack 65 miles from Bellingham to wooden buildings erected as a base camp for the film location, and the thermometer dropped so fast that they haven't been able to do any shooting as yet.

JACK OAKIE.

"Am lost in deep snowdrifts. Send St. Bernard dog with keg of brandy. Will return dog."

The other principals are Clark Gable, who arrived some days after the main troupe and had to get into the location camp behind a special snow plow, and Loretta Young. As for Oakie, the home office of the film company sent a long special instruction that any one in the troupe who took even one drink of liquor with Oakie would be discharged. Convivial pranks had wasted a lot of money on past pictures in which Oakie was the main figure. It's costing the Twentieth Century company $5,000 a day in overhead while the "Call of the Wild" company sits around playing bridge and waiting for the blizzards to die down on Mount Baker.

Paul Kelly, who was a stage actor in the old Mantell company when he was 9 years old and when Fritz Leiber was in the same classic répertoire company, has been serving as Leiber's guide about Hollywood for a week. Leiber, who is in Los Angeles on a stage tour at present but who will return to play a prominent part in the "discovery" of Shakespeare as a source for movie plots, also wishes to stage "Macbeth" in Hollywood outdoor bowl this summer. Paul Kelly and his sister, Doris [also known as "Tiny"], both played in the old Mantell company, Kelly says. "Between us, my sister and I played every child rôle in Shakespeare," he says. Doris Kelly is now retired as an actress. She is her brother's business manager. Leiber was in films once before in the silent days, playing Solomon to Betty Blythe's Queen of Sheba in "Sheba," and Cæsar to Theda Bara in "Cleopatra."

Another Hollywood location troupe will be leaving in a month or two to shoot scenes in surroundings chillier than the Oakie company, which is in the state of Washington. A cast headed by Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard, and Sir Guy Standing is to be shipped to Alaska to await the annual break-up of the ice on Yukon river for scenes in the adventure story "Renegade." Headquarters will be at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Out of work movie camera men and studio technicians have been organized on the federal pay roll under Commodore Stuart Blackton, one-time millionaire film producer, as director, and are shooting films of federal construction work in the southern California area. Blackton, who was one of the original producers in motion pictures and who used to figure in half million dollar deals, is now on the federal relief pay roll at around $25 a week in connection with the venture. Blackton expresses pride in being chosen to boss the venture.

Good Morning!

I'm all for the school teachers—to whom this film is dedicated. And I'm a fan of May Robson's. For which two reasons I resent the soppy feature at the Palace.

Miss Robson plays an aged, small town high school principal. The action is concerned with her relations to her pupils, civic leaders, a drug store owner with a "back room," and the President of the United States, who had been one of her boys in a bygone day.

When all seems lost and poor old Nell is about to receive nothing but the cold and rain for her lifetime of honest endeavor, along comes the chief executive to confound Miss Bayles' undoers—and provide a finale that rasps like a file over your sense of the fitness of things.

Sorry!

2,000 Laymen Hear M. E. Plea for New Faith

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Nearly 2,000 members of quarterly conferences of 209 Methodist Episcopal churches gathered for an unusual service yesterday afternoon at Chicago temple, 77 W. Washington street.

The meeting, according to Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, the principal speaker, was called at the request of laymen who compose the quarterly conferences. The reasons these gave for desiring the meeting, the bishop said, was to deepen the spiritual lives of those laymen who lead the local churches.

Normally, said Bishop Waldorf, commenting on the gathering at the close of the service, such meetings of laymen offer an overwhelming temptation to speak of finances and the necessity of larger income.

"But on this occasion," Bishop Waldorf continued, "we Methodists recognize the greater need—spiritual experience, the thing on which the faith of our church rests."

During his address Bishop Waldorf declared that recent national administrations, and particularly the present administration, have put first emphasis upon economic affairs, assuming that proper spiritual development is an economic concomitant. While not denying that attention to economic affairs of the people is of great importance, yet he denied it to be of first importance.

In contrast with this, Bishop Waldorf cited an early American patriot, Patrick Henry, whose basic "platform" put first emphasis on spiritual progress with economic and social concomitants secondary, as the bishop said these should be.

But Bishop Waldorf warned that churches had fallen into the same error as statesmen in this regard.

"As church people, we more often praise a man's success in achieving economic experience than we do when one achieves a rich religious experience," he said.

SEES UNIVERSAL FAITH

The world is on its way toward the development of a universal religion, according to Dr. Fred B. Smith, former moderator of the Congregational-Christian general council, now head of the World Alliance for International Friendship, who spoke yesterday morning as guest preacher at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago temple.

Dr. Smith declared the Christian gospel to be the only reasonable answer to the world's cry for moral control.

Dr. Smith will be one of the leaders in the meetings this week of the executive council of the Congregational-Christian church. These sessions, beginning tonight, will be held in the First Congregational church, Evanston.

The Rev. Frank Lincoln Moore, who will retire March 31 as the last general missionary superintendent of the Congregational and Christian churches in the Rocky mountains, will be chief speaker in Evanston tomorrow night.

The conference will last through Friday, with conference sessions in the parish house of the First Congregational church, 1417 Hinman avenue, Evanston, and platform sessions tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the church proper.

Maternity Center to Sponsor Show on 40th Anniversary

Forty years of service, during which it has aided the delivery of 100,000 babies, will be celebrated Feb. 4, when the Chicago Maternity Center sponsors the opening night of the "Continental Varieties" at the Studebaker theater.

The great west side center, which now brings into the world an average of ten babies each day, was founded by Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, celebrated obstetrician of the Chicago Lying-In hospital and professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Chicago. The center is at 1336 Newberry avenue.

The proudest boast is that in the eleven months ending in November the staf delivered 3,000 babies without a single maternal death.

Vastly Better Performance Than 15 Years Ago.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Chicago received Jan Kubelik like a long lost son yesterday afternoon. There was an audience that took not only all the available seats in Orchestra hall, but crowded several hundred strong upon the stage; the Bohemian singing organization, Lyra, seated close to the piano, rose up and sang him a song of welcome as he made his first entrance; the rest of the audience kept him busy acknowledging applause and playing encores for considerably more than the printed program indicated.

It was like the good old days when it meant something to be a world famous violinist, and Mr. Kubelik received the ovation with evident pleasure and a full afternoon of beautiful playing. It has been about a decade and a half since he was here. During the interval his son, Rafael, has become his accompanist, a young man who tops his father by fully a head and has considerably more hair on that head, and who would seem to be just about as efficient a music maker at the piano as his father is at the violin.

Mr. Kubelik, in spite of his long absence, is still a violinist in whom to take delight. His tone, while not large, is of lovely quality. One is inclined to think that when he plays his own Canzonetta it is about as charming a tone as was ever evoked from the violin. His air of personal detachment while playing, always one of his characteristics, does not diminish the fact that he is a technician of extraordinary ability, that when he is in the midst of his most glittering and rapid display the fingers of his left hand are always upon the section of the string that means the exact middle of the tone, that nothing is left to chance, and that everything means the earnest student and fine player. In fact, he is so much better a performer than he was during his last visit that he is hardly recognizable as the same artist.

His program was not much in number of pieces, but a great deal in content. The Dvorak Concert in A minor was the first number, followed by the unaccompanied Bach Chaconne. Then came two compositions of his own—the aforementioned Canzonetta can well become popular with other violinists—and two by Paganini. That, excluding encores, was all, but it was enough for an afternoon of high enjoyment.

While Kubelik was playing at Orchestra hall, Florian ZaBach, a violinist who is at the beginning of his career, appeared at Kimball hall. He is a young man of talent with an agreeable tone and considerable facility. It would seem, however, that he has been going somewhat too fast, to the point where he has been developing technical dexterity at the expense of intonation.

The Joseffer String quartet, making occasional changes in its personnel, but continuing to maintain an earnest and scholarly attitude toward chamber music, gave one of its monthly concerts at the Cordon club last night. Quartets by Schubert and Dittersdorf were played with excellent spirit and balance. Hazel Sims Beidel, pianist, came in to assist Anna Thelma Josefer in the first Chicago performance of a sonata for piano and violin by Leopoldo Miguez, a work which was built upon conventional theories of composition, but which was melodious and entertaining.

First of New Street Clothes Being Unpacked

Ensembles Score Success Upon Arrival.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The first of the new clothes are being unpacked, ready for the enthusiastic approval of all clothes collectors weary of their present wardrobes. Street clothes that can, on mild days, be worn right away are the most popular.

Tweedy looking suit ensembles are knockout successes. There is a brown and beige checked model that is a honey, consisting of a slim, straight, well tailored skirt and a dashing flared swagger coat with loose sleeves and a smooth collar line.

With this you can wear dark brown silk crêpe blouses with long sleeves, or one of the newest "twins," a burnt orange thin wool combine of short sleeves under sweater and a trick new surprise style outer sweater.

Another tweed success is a two piece well pocketed edition that ought to make you go without lunches for days to own it. Pale honey beige is the shade. The dress has four big patch pockets, two on the front hips, and two on the chest. The entire ensemble is tailored with much swank in slim, straight pencil lines that will make a gal a vision. The long swagger coat reaches to the knees. Tucked in the V-neckline of the dress is a dark brown silk neckerchief. Other colors can be alternated.

Daytime dresses are miracles of new necklines, new sleeve lines and clever detail. The classics of black with accents go on forever. And somehow or other ingenious designers manage to create new combines every season. Roman striped silks make interesting new accents in cuffs, scarf and collar. Starched lace is used on thin wools as well as silk.

The fashion photograph illustrates one of the newer necklines. Printed silk makes a vest and ends in a neck ruche held in place with round ornaments of braided material of the dress. The long, loose sleeves are cuffed to match.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather and grew up with the large brood of children of a peasant family. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, the widow of an executed engineer. Though English, her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his story. Though he has fallen in love with her he refrains from letting her know. They are overtaken by Petroff and Irina, a beautiful communist, who wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen plans to outwit them by denouncing Elizabeth, claiming he never suspected her identity until she began to talk in her sleep. Petroff believes his story, as does Irina. Elizabeth thinks Stephen has turned against her. But he is waiting his chance, which comes, to knock Petroff out. Then Stephen disguises himself and Elizabeth and they slip away, traveling by train to another village where Stephen keeps a horse and sledge in which they continue toward the Polish border. Stephen is known in this vicinity as Nikolai.

INSTALMENT XXXI.

A RADIO ALARM.

Stephen spoke kindly.

"I shouldn't worry about the warts if I were you."

"O, I'm not worrying," said Elizabeth.

Her voice had an odd choked sound, because she was angry, and yet she wanted to laugh. Her sense of humor couldn't be quite dead yet, or she wouldn't have wanted to laugh. Of course, it didn't matter to Stephen what she looked like, or how many warts she had on her face. Why should it? In point of fact, it did not matter to Stephen at all. It did not matter to him what Elizabeth looked like. His own picture of her was much too firmly fixed in his mind for any outward appearance to affect it. She stood in an inner shrine before which there burned a steady, changeless flame. He had no idea of why she should be troubled. Of course, makeup wasn't particularly comfortable. You couldn't wash your face, for one thing. He decided that this was what was bothering her.

"You'll be able to have a bath when we get to Warsaw," he said.

Elizabeth drew back into the sheepskins and shook with painful laughter. At Warsaw she would be able to have a bath. She would probably have to say good-by to Stephen in Warsaw. He would have finished his job, and there

They passed no one at all during the first two hours, but after that they met one or two sledges. At midday they reached a village and there stopped. They were to spend the afternoon and night there, and then go on again.

The house into which Stephen took her was a fairly clean one. He was greeted with noisy affection by a little girl and boy who appeared to be twins, and more soberly by their mother, a grave faced woman with a baby in her arms. Her husband came in presently. He seemed very pleased to see Stephen. He was, it appeared, the person he most wanted to see. He had all but made up his mind to go on to the collective farm. What did Nikolai think about it? What was the use of staying on here? . . . "I ask you, what is the use? If we have a good year, the government takes so much that so far as we are concerned it might just as well be a bad year. And if it's a bad year, what is there for us to do except starve? And if any one puts a little bit away he's a food hoarder and there's no mercy for him." He shrugged his shoulders. "Now wouldn't it be better on the collective farm? You don't starve there. The children would have enough to eat. I say we had better go, but Stasia says no. What do you say?"

"You'd be better off on the farm," said Stephen.

Stasia's eyes dwelt on him for a moment. She shook her head and looked down at her baby.

"There!" said the aggravated husband. "Look at her! That's what she does all the time—just shakes her head and won't say why. If I've told her once, I've told her a thousand times how much better off we should be on the farm."

"It's no use, Ilya," said Stephen with a laugh. "When a woman has got her mind made up there's an end of it."

The two men went on talking. Stasia rocked her baby. Presently the children ran off to school.

As the afternoon wore on, three or four people dropped in—Stasia's father and mother, and her younger brother, Peter, a lad of eighteen. The father was a jolly man with a free tongue, the mother a dried wisp.

The boy Peter plied Stephen with questions about life in the towns. What was it like in Moscow? Could one get a job there? He was sick of village life and would like to go into a factory. Wasn't it a fact that the proletarian in the town was much better off than the peasant? It was the old grievance, with a personal edge to it.

"Why should I plough, and sow, and reap to fatten some one in a factory? I'd rather work in the factory myself and have some one ploughing and sowing and reaping for me."

His father clapped him on the back in mock anger.

"So your mother and I are to work that you may grow fat away in Moscow? That's a good joke! But I tell you what you shall do—you shall go into a boot factory and make boots for all the village. We'll manage to do without you if you'll do that."

Every one began to talk about boots—how hard they were to get, and how soon they wore out.

In the middle of this, the door opened and there stood on the threshold a short, thick set young man with cropped hair. He was dressed like a peasant, but he wore spectacles with thick lenses, through which he looked with an air of some authority.

"The new schoolmaster," said Stasia in a low voice. She sat dumb whilst Ilya welcomed him loudly.

"Come in, come in! We're all friends here. You must meet my friend Nikolai. He's staying with us for the night, he and his sister." He turned to Stephen. "This is Anton Glinka, who is waking us all up. It is he who has made Peter want to go into a factory. I won't say anything about what he has made me want to do, because of Stasia there." He winked at the young man as he spoke.

Every one laughed except Stasia, whose color rose. She pressed her lips together and looked down at her sleeping baby.

Anton Glinka sat down beside Ilya. His eyes, behind the thick lenses, were turned here and there. He had a curious way of looking at people as if his eyes made a pounce and then remained fixed. Elizabeth felt an extreme dislike of being looked at in this way. When he spoke she disliked his voice. He had, it appeared, been to Orli and back. He must have been in one of the sledges which they had met. He had an abrupt manner and a harsh, dogmatic way of speaking. There was a woman teacher who had had to carry on the work of the school in his absence. He spoke of her with a lofty indulgence, supposing that she would have done her best. He had gone to Orli on important party business.

Here he squared his shoulders and looked for Stephen to make some comment which would show that he had been impressed. Stephen immediately responded with an admiring glance.

Anton Glinka went on talking.

"Whilst I was there a broadcast message came through—a special broadcast. It is what I have always said—every village should have its wireless installation—every village in the Union of Soviet Republics. Orli has one. But why haven't we got one? We ought to have one. If I had not gone into Orli today we should have missed this message."

"Tell us about the message," cried Ilya.

Elizabeth became aware that she was trembling. She could keep her face from showing anything, and she could force her arms and shoulders into rigidity by locking her hands together, but her knees shook, and as she sat on the rough bench her knees touched Stasia's knee. If she drew away from Stasia she would be touching the old woman. If some one must feel the tremor which shook her, let it be Stasia, quiet and kind, and not her bitter faced mother.

"The message?" Anton Glinka's voice rasped like a saw. "There are two people who are wanted by the police—counter revolutionaries and enemies of the state, both of them. A man called Red Stefan and a woman called Elizabeth Radin. I have their descriptions written down, and so have a thousand other people. What fools people are to think they can escape!"

Sharp Tongue, Though Honest, Seldom Pays

People Shy Away from Acid Criticism.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Does it pay a girl to be honest in her opinions?" V. D. asks.

"I mean," she explains, "when some one asks you what you think of So and So, isn't it right to say you don't like him or her? Or should you lie about it? My boy friend tells me I'd have more friends if I could curb my desire to be so darned truthful."

Well, if your honesty is losing friends for you, you can judge that it's a sort of sour honesty you're handing out. There is something in yourself, perhaps, that makes you so critical.

Suppose we eliminate the question of honesty. We can't well advise you to lie and be dishonest. But we can get around that by urging you to inquire of yourself just what bestirs you to the violent dislikes and the super-critical attitude.

While you're making inquiries of yourself you might just ask how you'd get by if others took it upon themselves to judge you so harshly. See if there isn't some cantankerous little demon housed in that bigger and better person known as you that makes you exaggerate the faults and foibles of others. Maybe it is jealousy, or envy, or some other sour little trait in you rather than the great urge to express honesty that is the matter. It often is, you know.

Suppose, the next time some one says of Marie or Joan or Mabs, or some other girl: "Isn't she charming" and your expressed reaction is "No, she is not charming, at all!"—suppose you sit back and figure out just why you said that. Was the girl a bit smarter looking than you? Was she more poised? More attractive to men, obviously? Or, is it that she just doesn't subscribe to your idea of what she should be? That's what you want to get at first.

Just why don't you agree on the girl's charm? Why can't you see the girl in a more generous light? After all, honesty of opinion doesn't necessarily entail your becoming an over-critical or a belittling sort of person. Real honesty would withhold your spoken judgment until you knew the person better and were in a fairer position to judge.

"Appetizers—How to Make Them—When to Serve Them," a booklet containing directions for foreign and American appetizers, with 30 recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

It's a lot of apple sauce—but you'll love it in this new way we've found for cheering up an old favorite. First come four cups of slightly sweetened apple sauce put through a sieve. Into it goes one cup of drained, shredded pineapple. Ready prepared you have one-half cup of dates which have been pitted, chopped, and then steamed almost to the consistency of marmalade. Fold the dates into the first mixture and add two tablespoons of finely chopped, preserved ginger. Turn the whole affair into a tray of a mechanical refrigerator and freeze to the consistency of sherbet. Serve for dessert with plain little sugar cookies.

But that's a mere starter on the possibilities which bob up around a healthy bowl of apple sauce. For instance, if there's also left over a cup of crums from yesterday's gingerbread, then you may welcome that pert Miss:

Gingerbread Betty.

1 cup boiling water
½ cup cold water
1¼ cups sweetened apple sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup gingerbread crums

Dissolve the orange gelatin in the boiling water, then add the cold water, apple sauce, salt, and lemon juice. Chill the mixture. When it begins to thicken add the gingerbread crums and pour into a mold rinsed out with cold water. Chill until firm, then serve with cream.

There's another odd little something I've seen making its debut with lamb dishes this season. It's Mint Apple Sauce by name and a perfect lamb flatterer by nature. Simply strain apple sauce through a fine sieve and flavor it with real mint extract. Color it a clear green with vegetable coloring and serve cold on the plate with the meat.

Our modern refrigerators are perfect gentlemen about turning out frozen mousses with none of the muss and spilled salt which used to attend mousse making episodes. This one is a pleasant little trick with a rich apple sauce flavor:

Apple Mousse.

1 cup thick strained apple sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup sugar
Dash nutmeg

Mix together the apple sauce and the lemon juice. Add the sugar, the cream (beaten until stiff), and the nutmeg. Fold them together until well mixed, then pour into a freezing tray and freeze.

Or if your apples haven't yet been reduced to apple sauce use them in:

(With Raspberry Sauce.)

5 medium apples
2 tablespoons water
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1-3 cup butter or margarine
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder

Peel and slice the apples thin and place in a deep, greased baking dish. Pour in the two tablespoons of cold water. Prepare a batter as follows: Cream the sugar and butter thoroughly. Mix in the beaten eggs, then the flour, salt, and baking powder sifted together. Beat thoroughly, then pour it over the apples. Bake for one-half hour in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Top the servings with the following sauce:

Raspberry Sauce.

1 tablespoon butter
⅓ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ cup raspberry jam

Heat the milk and butter together in a double boiler. Blend the sugar and cornstarch and combine with one-third cup cold water. Stir this slowly into the hot milk and let cook until smooth and thickened. Remove from the heat and stir in the raspberry jam. Serve hot over the Apple Jonathan.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

PERHAPS A LITTLE HUMILITY WILL NOT COME AMISS.

Having written so much in praise and prideful demonstration of the three-bid, I am now going to tell you a story against myself to show the perversity of cards and the fallibility of any treatment we may apply to them. Really, it is a good thing that we can never be quite 100 per cent certain, otherwise Contract would lose much of its fascination. Wernher and I had often remarked jokingly that it was too bad that we never got the chance to make a three-bid when partners in tournaments. In the 1933 Masters Individual championship, the movement brought us together to play four boards as partners in the very last round of the whole five session tournament. Wernher remarked, as he sat down opposite me, "PERHAPS THIS IS THE TIME WE WILL GET OUR THREE-BID," and on the second board we played, he, in the South position, after two passes proceeded to BID THREE HEARTS WITH A RATHER UNNATURALLY SOLEMN EXPRESSION ON HIS FACE.

West, not vulnerable, knew that we could make four hearts vulnerable, probably with 100 honors, scoring 620 or 720; in the hope that there might be a good sacrifice for them in spades for a penalty of not more than 700 if we did not go to slam, or 1,400 if we did, got in his spade overcall promptly at the three level. I, North, disregarded this and bid three no trumps, denying any aces. Four spades by East. Wernher rightly passed, leaving it to me what action to take, and thereby saying that his hand alone could not undertake to make five hearts. I decided to gamble on my holdings. True, they would clear off my trump as soon as they saw my hand exposed as dummy; but there was a chance that my partner held A x in clubs; he could not afford to probe for that king at the five level. So I bid five clubs. East passed, Wernher went five hearts, telling me that the king of clubs would not give him a slam. West, five spades. Two passes, double by my partner. We set them 450 points, and with that score we TIED WITH ONE OTHER PAIR FOR BOTTOM ON THE BOARD.

This was indeed a trick hand. The others all bid rapidly and unexploringly to six hearts. West led the ace of spades, and was then unable to lead a trump. He continued the spade [any other lead would result similarly] and now dummy's small trump ruffed. This permitted the pressing lead of a diamond honor, making it a spread for six hearts. Actually the only way the slam can be beaten is if West at the first trick, before seeing dummy, leads a small spade away from the ace. Then only four hearts can be made. This, however, is purely a double dummy play which nobody could be expected to make, and nobody did make. You will agree that my partner and I bid the hand carefully, to or even beyond its apparent maximum limit; yet we got a bottom score. So I leave the three-bid, which they often call my pet bid, with the observation [proved at my expense in a national championship] that "Even a three-bid correctly handled can go wrong."

Baby Talk Only Embarrasses a Sensible Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It was his first trip to the dentist. His mother had purposely taken him before there was any need for it so that his first association with the office and the funny chair and the glass and tiny faucet and all the contraptions in general would be pleasant ones.

He was beautiful and blond and brown eyed—and only 3. The nurse in attendance was "slain" by his charm. She got down on her knees as she unfastened his leggins, and actually cooed in baby talk of the "is oo a booful ittle pwecious" variety.

During the removal of his winter equipment he gazed in bewilderment into the nurse's face, and once unpeeled, he went into a corner and as the result of this peculiar verbal bombardment, stood on his head!

Afterward he said to his mother, "Why did that lady in the dentist's office talk so funny to me, mother?"

His mother hesitated—

"Well, darling," she said, "some people think that's the kind of talk that little children understand."

There was a long silence.

"No, mother," came at last. "I think that lady had something the matter with a tooth. Please ask Dr. Hunt to fix it so she can talk right."

And that is a true story.

The question of baby talk or not baby talk is not as live a one as it was in our mothers' and grandmothers' time, but it still needs a word occasionally.

I don't believe any of us want to hear our babies and small children burst into purist English at the earliest possible age. But there is no question that language is imitative, and if the people who are closest to children in their early years talk a babble and jargon, it is handicapping their speech. Except for those moments when your emotions get the better of you [!] I think we must admit that baby talk is definitly out.

"Missouri Puzzle," a block as attractive as its name is intriguing, is a lovely design the history of which has been obscured by antiquity. Pieced in 1818, it ranks among the favorites of the oldest of quilt patterns. The primary colors—red, blue, and yellow—were used in the original coverlet. Variants of these shades still are in popular demand.

Another edition is out—Nancy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." # THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Those lucky girls who can hie themselves off to California whenever the weather or life in general gets difficult have been rubbing it in lately. When they come back they bear thrilling tales about the hair waves they can get out there—waves that resist the dampness and last infinitely longer than the average finger wave or marcel.

Well, they needn't feel so smart. We can get those waves, called the "paper curl," right here in Chicago in a couple of establishments. They cost a little more than the usual wave, but the technique is beautifully satisfactory on difficult locks. And the paper curl is ideal for the trying interval in between permanents. Women with fine hair that gets limp in damp weather are crazy about it, and so are those with white hair that shows a distressing tendency to discolor when a marcel iron is used.

The technique looks complicated to the nonprofessional, but some operators who specialize in giving it—most of them California trained—tell us it's quite simple. After the shampoo and drying the hair is rolled on a paper curling stick to the scalp, then wrapped in curl papers. A heated pinching iron is applied to each paper wrapped cluster for about fifteen seconds. Then come combing and a thorough brushing—and you've got a wave that will stick with you.

The wave given by the paper curl method actually looks better a few days later than it does the first day. If it's a good one it will be wide and soft and stay that way several days.

If yours is the fine hair that just won't keep in attractive undulations we suggest you give the paper curl a trial. It's a California beauty product you'll be hearing much more about in these parts.

Take Stock of Yourself When You Reach 30

Then at 40 Life May Be of Full Interest.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's much hope being parceled out to the forty-niners and their juniors in the forties, but, believe us, sisters of the cold cream jars, your beauty life begins at 40 only if you've given it a darned good shove in the thirties!

Beauty life begins at 30, whatever other kind of life is promised for 40 and after. It begins earlier than 30, really, but at thirty a woman should take stock of herself, focus her eye on a fortieth birthday ten years hence and ask what manner of gal she'll be then.

Take the matter of weight. All our best insurance statistics go to prove that it doesn't matter so much if you carry a few pounds extra around before 30, but after 30 you're more likely to be the lean horse for the long race with a few pounds less than your normal weight. Less isn't advised so much, however, as keeping your weight at the normal figure for your height and 30 year age.

This is the year, too, to go over the chin line with a microscope and see what you can see there of budding roll signs and tiny crêpe hanging indications. E'en more than the figure, that neckline clear of shadow, line, or bulge, is what will see through a beautiful 40, 50, 60 decade.

The neckline and the way you walk are the two age recorders. They work both ways, happily. They'll record you as young and sprightly even though you may be reading, "When Life Begins at 75." Or they'll throw you down as years older than you are.

Around 30 life's burdens obviously bend the shoulders if you don't watch out. They drag the step, or they paunch your midsector. If you let them, that is. Which you don't need to do.

Then there is the matter of hair and skin to dissect and make resolutions about. Up to 30 hair and skin may survive on haphazard care and treatment. But after 30 the slump begins, unless you get busy.

ASK STATE CASH FOR EXPERIMENT STATION UPKEEP

Truck Growers Tell of Profits from Tests.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Savings of nearly $1,250,000 a year for Illinois commercial truck gardeners have been made possible through research carried on at the Cook county experiment station. For this and other reasons J. C. Blair, head of the department of horticulture, University of Illinois, said yesterday that the experiments in progress at the station, which is near Des Plaines, should be continued.

Commercial vegetable growers, led by the members of the Cook County Truck Growers and Farmers association and supported by the University of Illinois, will appeal to the state legislature now in session at Springfield for a new special appropriation to cover the expenses of the station for the next two years. Ten thousand dollars a year was turned over to the university at the last session of the legislature to pay the expenses of this branch station for the last two years.

Most Tests Are Long.

Mr. Blair, in his report of the station's work, explained that most of the tests are essentially long time rather than short time investigations. Each year's results add to those already obtained since the station was established ten years ago, following persistent demands of truck farmers in northern Illinois. Four principal lines of tests have been in progress, including fertilizer experiments, plant breeding, plant disease control and cultural methods.

In soil treatment tests, the report says, valuable findings have been made in methods of soil treatment for the production of vegetables without the use of large quantities of animal manure, formerly available but now difficult to obtain. The tests indicate that for the production of certain vegetable crops, commercial fertilizer and green crops may be substituted entirely for animal manure.

Cut Production Costs.

With other crops manure may be reduced one-half and supplemented with commercial fertilizer. Through the station's recommended methods growers may reduce their production costs at least $12.28 an acre, according to Mr. Blair.

The report adds that distinct progress has been made with cabbage, beets and tomatoes in plant breeding tests.

Information concerning the results of tests at the Cook county experiment station is being made available to farmers through special publications issued by the University of Illinois. Two publications—Bulletin 377 on fertilizer tests, and Bulletin 401 dealing with methods of cutting asparagus—already are available. Others are being prepared on tests with horseradish, tomato insects, seeding of onions, and onion diseases.

Special Funds Vital.

"The present investment in land, buildings, and equipment can be of most service to the state by continuation of the experimental work at this station," said Mr. Blair. "For maintaining this work a special appropriation by the state legislature is necessary, since no funds are available from any other source for this purpose."

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

More Steers Sold.

January 20, 1935.

EIGHTEEN more steers of the herd of 117 steers on feed since September, 1933, have been sold by THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm. They were sold last week to Ike Brown, buyer for Armour & Co., Union Stock Yards, at $9.50 a hundred. The 18 steers weighed 18,760 pounds, averaging a fraction more than 1,042 pounds, and brought $1,782.20. They were bought in the original herd sixteen months ago and cost $518.49. Their feed bill is estimated at $374.40. During the time they were at the farm they gained an average of 429 pounds. Trucking to market and transportation insurance amounted to $29.58 and the terminal marketing costs $27.70. All charges against the 18 steers totaled $950.17. After paying expenses, the farm had left a total of $832.03 for pasture, labor, interest, and profit.

These make a total of 62 of the 117 steers that have been sold. Forty-four head were sold about two weeks ago at $9.25 a hundred. They averaged 1,162½ pounds and gained 543½ pounds each. There are 55 head out of the original herd still on feed at the Yorkville farm. They will be sold some time during the next few weeks.

The steers are being marketed somewhat earlier than was originally planned because the drouth left the farm with a shortage of ear corn. With the feed available, men at the farm are unable to get daily gains that are possible where a good grade of ear corn is fed.

In addition to the 55 head left in the feed lot, there are 82 other feeders that must be supplied with feed at THE TRIBUNE farm, near Yorkville. These include 37 Hereford feeder steers, 30 Hereford calves, and 15 steers in the feeding test of animals of different breeds. The breed test includes 5 Aberdeen-Angus, 5 Shorthorns, and 5 Herefords.

The 15 animals in the breed feeding test are getting all they can eat. Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, said today that the steers were in good health and were doing well. He added, however, that despite the fact these steers are all being given a generous ration of alfalfa and soy bean hay, silage, and corn sirup, they are making slow gains.

These steers are being given from 3 to 4 pounds of corn sirup daily to whet their appetites. They are fed indoors and allowed to run in a small lot where water, kept from freezing by means of a tank heater, is available at all times.

SUMNER'S UNION CLAIMS VICTORY IN WAGE BATTLE

Report Against Picketing Injunction Hailed.

Officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union local No 753 yesterday hailed the report of Master in Chancery George E. Q. Johnson to Federal Judge John P. Barnes in the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., case as a victory which would permit them to carry on their fight to protect the wage standards of the drivers.

The union, headed by Steve Sumner, 33 year old business agent, has been beset in recent years by attempts at racket domination and competition arising from the "vendor system" of milk distribution.

Master in Chancery Johnson on Saturday recommended to Judge Barnes the dismissal of the suit of the Meadowmoor company for an injunction restraining members of the union from picketing its plants and stores. A final order will be drafted by Judge Barnes and an appeal sought by Attorney Joseph Roche for the plaintiff dairy.

Hails Report as Victory.

"The decision of the master is a victory for the union in its fight against various agencies that have sought to control or to cripple the organization," Attorney David Riskind said. "Ten per cent of the milk delivered in Chicago has been handled by vendors in recent months. With this decision the union can resume its activities toward the organization of these underpaid men."

Under the vendor system, first used by the Meadowmoor dairy and taken up by the Edgewater, Lake View, and Blue Ribbon dairies, milkmen selling from house to house at cut rate prices make an average of $13 a week, testimony during the hearing showed, while union employés received a minimum of $40. The vendor system, Attorney Riskind pointed out, has been a serious blow to the union.

The other difficulties of the union, officials declare, arise from attempts by Murray Humphries, former Capone lieutenant, to gain control of the union. In the course of the union's fight against racket domination, Robert G. Fitchie, president of the organization, was kidnaped in December, 1931.

Ransomed for $50,000.

Upon the payment of $50,000 from the union's $800,000 treasury fund Fitchie was released. Subsequently members of the union voted a fund of $15,000 to be set aside for distribution to members of the families of any officials slain by gangsters.

The kidnaping of Fitchie followed an invasion of the union's headquarters by Humphries. The gangster, according to the testimony of Sumner before Master Johnson and in State court, offered him $100,000 to turn over control of the organization. Sumner, Fitchie and Ray Bryant, trustee, refused the gang offer and Humphries is said to have retaliated with the threat that he would "wreck the milk industry and put the union out of business."

REPORT ROOSEVELT FAVORS GARNER AS 1936 RUNNING MATE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Word was quietly passed today that President Roosevelt wants Vice President Garner to team up with him again for the 1936 presidential election.

There had been talk among pronounced liberal Democrats in the administration about getting Garner replaced by either Secretary Ickes or Wallace.

To clear up the matter, some Democratic leaders sought the President's attitude. Any doubt about Mr. Roosevelt wanting Garner to be his running mate has been definitly dissipated.

With this development, political interest turned to the prospects of leading senators of both parties to return in 1936.

Besides the floor chieftains, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat, and Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican, many of the best known members of that branch—32 in all—will be up for reëlection.

FIND STORIES OF ANCIENT BABYLON IN MIDDLE CHINA

Told in Buddhist Classics Long Buried.

LANCHOW, Kansu, China, Jan. 20.—(AP)—In the shadow of a gigantic brass Buddha, excavators were hewing out today some historically important evidence of the beginnings of the Buddhist religion in central Asia and possible connections with ancient Babylon.

Hundreds of rolls of Buddhist classics, musty with the age of centuries, have been brought to light under layers of wind piled sands hiding the temples and courtyards of a monastery which flourished some 1,500 years ago.

The classics, in Chinese and Sanskrit, make frequent references to the wonders and beauties of a far off city believed to have been Babylon. In the same area archaeologists have found earthenware strikingly similar to true Babylonian pottery.

Historians are particularly interested in finding out something about the Nestorians, the Christians who were active in west China about the time the sands began to close in about the monastery.

The site of the discoveries is the district of Tung Huang, a once populous region now submerged in shifting sands blown by winds which create an eerie humming, a sound which is to the natives the sighing of the souls of Buddhist priests of old.

Seek Trace of Nestorians.

A Taoist monk traveling over the waste in 1904 saw what appeared to be a brass table top. It was the crown of a brass Buddha 100 feet high which was excavated. Later digging brought to light a series of caves with carved images, now known as the Cave of the Thousand Buddhas.

The huge brass figure is credited to the Han dynasty of the early third century. The monastery, not yet completely excavated, is said to compare in size with the famous Larbrang monastery of Tibet, one of the four largest in that country.

OFFICER IS HELD AFTER HIS WIFE IS FOUND SLAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Edward E. Holmes, 45 year old county probation officer, was booked on a charge of suspicion of murder tonight several hours after the battered body of his wife, Celia, 37, who had been shot, was found at the bottom of an embankment in the Hollywood hills.

Mrs. Holmes, a cosmetic saleswoman, had been missing since Jan. 11. She had been shot twice and thrown into a clump of bushes from a lonely road between Laurel canyon and Cahuenga pass.

Lieut. Miles H. Ledbetter said Holmes denied any part in the slaying, but made statements which the officers wish to investigate further.

FRENCH PARTIES CLASH; ONE MAN SHOT IN BATTLE

CHARTRES, France, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A gun battle between nationalists and leftists in which one manifestant was shot in the foot terrorized street crowds here today. Thirty shots were exchanged when members of the anti-Fascist "common front" mobbed the "patriotic youths" as their separate meetings broke up.

As five motor buses loaded with the young nationalists drove off a shot was fired at them from a passing automobile. This was the signal for a "veritable fusillade" in which both sides participated. The nationalists on the bus platforms, it was said, returned the fire of their opponents, who also cast stones at the cars. Heavy forces of mobile guards, who had anticipated trouble, quickly stepped in then and dispersed the crowds. Later 135 members of the "patriotic youth" were arrested at the Paris city limits as they returned in three buses.

At about the same time the police at Amiens were breaking up a forbidden parade of 3,500 "common front" members. The leftists tried to march, waving red flags, after a massmeeting at which dissolution of the "Fascist leagues" was demanded.

It is said that employment of Mrs. Gilbreth at Purdue will mark the first time that a woman has been placed on the teaching staf of a school of engineering.

Soaks Towel in Kerosene, Wraps Head; Dies in Flames

PAIR CONFESSES TO KIDNAPING AND MURDER OF WEISS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 21 [Monday].—(AP)—Robert Mais, one of the leaders of the "Tri-State gang" captured in New York, has "broken completely," and has told, the Philadelphia Record says, where the body of William Weiss, kidnaped night life figure, will be found.

After hours of grilling by police and federal agents in New York Mais early today disclosed the fact that the body had not been thrown in the Delaware river as police had believed, the paper says.

R. George Harvey, agent in charge of the Philadelphia bureau of the United States bureau of investigation, said in New York that "Mais broke completely and told us everything," the Record says.

Where the body of Weiss was hidden was not disclosed, but Philadelphia police were believed to have gone to the spot named by the gangster.

Weiss was kidnaped last October near his suburban home. Police dragged the Delaware river after the family reported the kidnaping. It was reported $25,000 had been collected.

Walter Legenza, pal of Mais and named by department of justice men as the real "brains" of the gang, also was reported by the paper to have confessed corroborating Mais' statement regarding the Weiss kidnaping.

Roy Mikkelsen, 26 year old Norwegian, returned home to Chicago yesterday to show the folks that he gained considerable knowledge about ski jumping while on the Pacific coast. Mikkelsen, former member of the Norge Ski club, now employed in a lumber camp at Auburn, Cal., won the club's 29th annual tournament, defeating the outstanding jumpers in the United States.

Mikkelsen, who never triumphed in a Chicago meet during his seven years as a member of the Norge club, leaped 158 and 163 feet in his two attempts to capture the class A championship. His point rating was 151.20.

Fifteen thousand, despite adverse weather conditions, gathered on the club's grounds on the banks of the Fox river near Cary, Ill., to watch the tournament. A dense fog, which settled over the Chicago district shortly before noon, prevented the thousands from seeing the skiers take off from the tall steel slide, and the jumpers were visible only when they reached the bottom of the slide.

The damp warm weather also slowed up the slide and none of the skiers approached the record mark of 183 feet established by Kaare Walberg of Norway's Olympic team in 1932. While there were frequent spills, none of the jumpers was injured seriously. Several, however, suffered slight leg injuries when the skis broke after their landing on the soft snow.

Chicagoans Have Mishaps.

The snow, imported from Escanaba, Mich., to preclude the possibility of a postponement of the tournament, was packed three feet deep at the bottom of the huge slide. Among those who broke their skis while landing on the hill were Howard Juberts of Chicago, in the class B competition; Ingvald Bruseth, Chicago, in class A, and Jack Clark, Chicago, in the junior class.

A blizzard in the northwest prevented two of the leading jumpers in the United States from participating in the tournament. The pair, Casper Oimen, United States champion, and Einar Fredbo, of the Utah Ski club of Salt Lake City, en route by airplane to the meet Saturday afternoon, were forced down at Bismarck, N. D., and failed to make train connections to arrive in time for the tournament.

Guettler Wins Class B.

The first one to shoot down the slide was Johanna Kolstadt, women's skiing champion. She fell after soaring 134 feet. Later Miss Kolstadt participated in a leap with La Moine Batson, member of the 1928 United States Olympic team. The twin leap was the first ever performed in the United States.

Batson, a physical education instructor at Morton High school in Cicero, also competed in the class A tournament. He jumped 152 feet in his first attempt and 157 in his second, and took second place with 147.90 points.

Hugo Guettler of Oslo, Norway, who arrived here five months ago to matriculate at the University of Chicago, captured the class B title. He leaped 122 and 139 feet with perfect form to win the championship against 17 of the leading class B riders in the middle west.

Roy Bietila, youngest of the five ski jumping brothers of Ishpeming, Mich., jumped 117 and 126 feet to triumph in the junior tournament. His brother Paul was second.

Two other Bietila brothers participated in the class A tournament. Leonard jumped 138 and 159 feet, falling on the second leap, and Walter, University of Michigan student, who won the junior championship last year, went 154 and 159 feet and placed fifth.

Olaf Skogen, veteran member of the Norge club, took the senior crown. He made jumps of 114 and 131 feet. Karl M. Nilsen, captain of the Norge team, who was victorious last week at Oconomowoc, Wis., fell after landing on the 124 foot mark of the hill in his first jump and failed to return for the second attempt.

New Track Owners Pledge Revival of Racing in Chicago

BY FRENCH LANE.

Before this sale no one could deny the outlook for horse racing in Chicago was a dreary one. In 1934 enormous sums were lost by the associations operating race tracks here. As there was no sign of any alleviation of the situation at the end of the season, the race track operators were in a panic, as they were not in a position to shoulder these losses much longer.

Sport Thrives Everywhere Else.

Something was wrong. Horse racing was thriving in every other part of the country except Chicago. To add to the bewilderment of the situation Chicago had been noted as the greatest horse racing center in America in the olden days. It even outdid New York.

Various theories were offered in explanation of this sudden deterioration. One, voiced most often, was the lack of competition in track ownership. Of the four major tracks on the Chicago circuit the American Turf association owned and operated two of them outright and was known to have heavy holdings in a third. It took no deep thinking to understand where the majority was. Some claimed this was the whole trouble.

Then there was the much larger group who after thoroughly sifting the reasons for this sad plight of the race tracks concluded that it was all the fault of the bookmakers. If they were only not so prolific all might yet be saved.

The tracks are required to pay $2,500 a day to the state in license fees and 20 cents on each admission. Handbooks pay nothing to the state, but thousands of handbooks bobbed up in mushroom fashion.

50 Cent Bets Attractive.

For a while handbooks thrived as they never had before, and people who ordinarily would take their fling at race betting at the tracks filled the spacious bookmakers' rooms to capacity. They could bet anything from 50 cents up and listen to elaborate descriptions of the races while they were run.

Men who might have thrown their influence against this unheard-of flourishing of the bookmakers—although their names may never appear in the organization—have joined with Mr. Harding in the purchase of Washington Park. That much is certain.

Surely, said the wiseacres of the turf yesterday, they will not permit their own property for which they have paid good money to go to wrack and ruin out of sympathy for bookmakers.

Bookies Having Trouble.

A straw which may predict which way the wind will be blowing when the next racing season rolls around is the fact that throughout the period of negotiations for the purchase of the track handbooks in Chicago have been closed just about as tightly as it is possible to close them.

You could get a bet down on a horse race, to be sure, but you usually were not far ahead of the police who comprise the gambling squad. That's not fun even though you win a bet, and that brand of competition would never keep the crowds away from any well regulated race track.

As far as bidding for popularity is concerned, the new crowd in control at Washington Park will not take a back seat to anybody or anybody's race track. There are men in the new organization who are also financially interested in Arlington Park. Others in the new association hold stock in Hawthorne and some, perhaps are even stockholders in the American Turf association.

Yet if Washington Park can offer better racing and attract greater crowds than its rivals it will do so. Mr. Harding made that appear certain when he told about his group buying the track when he said that many innovations would soon be announced.

Ready to Meet Competition.

He realizes that stiff competition for the better grade horses has developed during the last year from New York, where open betting has been legalized, and in New England, where the citizens nearly go into a panic in their eagerness to get to the race track.

"We are prepared to meet that situation, too," Mr. Harding said yesterday. "Our racing will be as attractive as that offered anywhere," he continued.

BEARS FROLIC TO 26 TO 7 TRIUMPH OVER COAST TEAM

Warburton Marches 93 Yards to a Touchdown.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—Resorting to fitful bursts of power led by Bronko Nagurski as a demonstration of what they expect to do against the New York Giants next Sunday, the Chicago Bears today beat a team of Coast collegians, 26 to 7, before 8,500 shivering Californians.

Weather that hovered around 30 degrees put zip into the Bears' play when they chose to display their crushing tactics, but for the most part the Chicagoans seemed content to employ fancy plays which led to fumbles and intercepted passes. One bit of bravado was Jack Manders' 51 yard field goal attempt at the end of the third quarter. It fell short, but the stands derived much pleasure from the fact that it was tried.

Bears' Drives Fail.

Again in the third quarter the Bears, leading 10 to 0, twice reached the Coast three yard line with four downs in which to score. Neither time did they punch it over.

The Bears played without Bill Hewitt, star left end, who flew to Chicago yesterday because of the illness of his wife. Hewitt will rejoin the Bears Wednesday for the game here Sunday against the New York Giants.

Manders started today's scoring with a twenty-four yard place kick in the first quarter, after Grange and Brumbaugh were unable to penetrate beyond the All-Stars' ten yard line. In the second period Nagurski replaced Manders at full back and Feathers went in for Grange. The Bears then turned on the power. Nagurski and Feathers marched fifty-two yards after Kawal had intercepted one of Cotton Warburton's passes.

Bronko Goes Over.

On fourth down with nine yards to go for the touchdown, Nagurski took a short lateral behind the line from Brumbaugh, and trampled over the Coast defense. After Brumbaugh kicked the extra point, the Bears nursed this 10 to 0 lead through most of the third quarter.

After two Bear drives in this period were turned down on the 3 yard line—partly through the Coast men's sturdy defensive efforts, but largely through the Chicago team's dubious choice of offensive plays—Johnsos recovered a Coast lateral play that ended in Gene Clarke's fumble, and Manders kicked another field goal, this one from the 15 yard mark.

Feathers and Nagurski came back in the fourth quarter and led a fifty-six yard touchdown march from the point where Gene Ronzani intercepted an All-Star pass. Feathers sped fifteen yards around the Coast left end for the touchdown.

Ends in Comedy.

A few minutes later Brumbaugh intercepted another of Warburton's passes on the 47 yard line. On the first play Brumbaugh arched a long pass to Luke Johnsos in the corner of the field for the Bears' final score.

After the Bears led 26 to 0 they relaxed enough to permit the 148 pound Cotton Warburton to do what the fans had been imploring all afternoon: score a touchdown. Taking the kick-off on his own seven yard line, Warburton carried the ball on six of seven plays, finally going around the Bears' right end for 10 yards and the score.

The game ended in a comedy tempo with the Bears sending George Musso, 267 pound tackle, into full back and feeding him the ball. Musso managed to gain 18 yards in two plays as the game ended.

Londos to Meet Lewis Again in St. Louis Jan. 31

Lewis and Londos met last at Wrigley field last September in a match promoted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The contest drew 35,000 spectators, with receipts of $104,000, a world's record for wrestling. Londos pinned Lewis in 47 minutes.

FANS RIOT WHEN CARNERA MATCH IS POSTPONED

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—An infuriated mob tore down the ring in Fluminese stadium today when refused rainchecks after Primo Carnera's heavyweight match with Ervin Klausner had been postponed because of rain.

About 23,000 spectators had gathered in the stadium to see the former heavyweight champion box Klausner. A sudden downpour forced postponement of the fight until Tuesday night.

Through a misunderstanding, it was explained, officials declined to issue rainchecks to the customers. Enraged, the spectators poured out of their seats and tore down the ring.

Naval fusileers answered a riot call and prevented further damage after a vigorous battle in which clubs and stones were used.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks, champions of the hocky world, last night rewarded 14,632 fans who paid to see them battle the great Toronto Maple Leafs by turning in a 2 to 1 victory.

This handsome accomplishment, before the largest crowd of the season, was the hardest fought game and certainly as exciting as any Chicago folks have witnessed in a long, long time. It ended fittingly in a fight between Lorne Chabot, Hawk goalie, and King Clancy, Leaf defense star, who scored the only enemy goal.

Reason to Cheer.

It was a sweet victory on a number of counts, not the least of which are the following:

It put the Hawks back in first place in the American division of the National Hocky league.

It was the first Hawk victory at home since Dec. 16.

The whole team, including Alex Levinsky, new Hawk defense man making his Chicago debut, played brilliantly. But if you had only two laurel wreaths to bestow, you'd probably give them to two youngsters, Norm Locking and Louis Trudell.

Locking Starts Score.

Locking paved the way for Thompson's goal in the first period with sterling skill and determination and Trudell, teaming perfectly with Tommy Cook, got the winning score under way, then completed it late in the third period to break a 1 to 1 tie.

Art Wiebe, who hasn't been keeping a scrapbook this year or listening to the fans' comment on his play, last night performed like a vet and hereby is placed high on the list of stars.

Thompson's goal in 14:20 of the opening period was preceded by some of the most rigorous, and perhaps the roughest, hocky of the season. It was the result of handsome coöperation between Paul and Locking. The latter reached far out and hooked a free puck in his right ice, deep in the Leaf defense zone. With a great swish of his stick he got the puck near the back corner of the Leaf cage, then passed out to the waiting Thompson, who rammed the rubber through Hainsworth for the period's only marker.

Rough, but Interesting.

The first 11 minutes of the scoreless second period were tame compared to the first period, but after that time play suddenly perked up and was as spirited as any hocky bug could ask.

At the 13 minute mark Locking drew his second penalty for checking into the boards. The instant Norm was locked up Conacher, Jackson, Blair, Cotton, and Thoms laid down a terrific barrage, but the Hawks stood 'em off until Locking had served his time and Morenz took the ice to round out a full cast. The Leafs kept five forwards on the ice for 30 seconds after the Hawks were returned to full strength, then returned to their orthodox lineup.

Then Bang! And It's Over.

Clancy deserted his defense post several times in the first three minutes of the third period, and in 3:10 his assumed forward efforts were rewarded by the tying goal. Clancy took the puck over the blue line in his right ice; then, after it had been batted around for a while, he again picked up the rubber to Chabot's left and skated into position for a hard close up shot with which he beat the Hawk goalie.

Midway in the period Cotton and Day were both off, but the six to four advantage was not enough to get the Hawks a marker. The Hawks kept right on going after the penalty edge had passed, and in 14:10 went ahead on a goal that was nothing less than magnificent in its execution.

Trudell picked up the puck in neutral ice, off his left boards. He swerved toward the center and dropped the rubber just inside the line for Cook, who was following him. Cook gently shoved the puck through the Leaf defense men. Trudell had skated on, and when Hainsworth skated out to bat the disk to safety Trudell beat him to it and fired the winning marker into the wide open cage.

DAMEN DEFEATS SETTERS, 31-26, IN FINAL MINUTE

Tightens Hold on Lead in K. of C. League.

A rally in the closing minutes which brought a 31 to 26 victory over Setters gave Damen a tight grip on first place in the West Division of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league yesterday before a capacity crowd at the West Side clubhouse. Trailing by five points with five minutes to play, Keiran Crowley set the pace with three baskets in a row which pulled his team to the front. Setters tied the count again, but Damen won in the closing minute. Crowley scored 17 points.

St. Cyr, league champion, won another bitterly fought battle in a similar manner from Hughes, coming from behind at the finish to take a 33 to 30 verdict. Lineups:

GAMES TONIGHT.

Northwestern at Michigan.
Minnesota at Wisconsin.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Iowa continues to lead the Western conference basketball race by a percentage advantage. The Hawkeyes, however, are virtually tied with Purdue, Indiana, and Minnesota, since these teams have lost one game each. For this free-for-all title battle the leaders may give credit to Indiana's free scoring quintet, which Saturday night whipped Iowa, 40 to 35, after trailing by nine points at the half. This victory not only bunched the four leaders but now gives Iowa cause for worry over the ultimate outcome of the race, which until Saturday seemed about to become a romp for the Hawks.

Saturday's other feature was the play of Northwestern's five, a made-over quintet, which thoroughly trounced Wisconsin, 36 to 31. For the second time since the Big Ten campaign opened Northwestern approached championship form. It is difficult to realize that the Wildcats, who scored 36 points on the Badgers, could only get nine points in the first game of the series at Madison. Actually it wasn't the same team, first, because two sophomores, Tug Blume and Hi Bender, turned in 40 minutes of splendid service [they were substitutes in the first Wisconsin game], and second, because the three regulars, Fisher, Vance and McAnally, played more aggressively and with more success in their scoring efforts.

Wildcats Step Out.

Northwestern's first conference game, in which the Wildcats gave promise of their return to form, was their defeat by Purdue, 33 to 31, a week ago tonight. While Northwestern can have no excuse for defeats by Wisconsin and Iowa, it might quite easily have beaten Purdue. That Northwestern didn't was merely the luck of shooting, which, in the last minutes, favored the Boilermakers.

What is more important is that Northwestern, although perhaps definitly out of the conference race barring an almost unheard of finish of eight consecutive victories while the leaders lost two more games each, has stepped up its tempo of attack. The Wildcats appeared slow against Iowa. Against Purdue they improved, and Saturday night they had an advantage over all Wisconsin players with the exception of De Mark.

Gophers Are Dangerous.

Minnesota perhaps can be called the "dark horse" of the race at this stage. By its overtime defeat by Iowa and convincing victories over Michigan and Chicago the Gophers have asserted they must be counted in the battle. Tonight's game between Minnesota and Wisconsin is the most important of three Big Ten contests. Should Minnesota win, the Badgers probably are out of the title fight. At least they will be as badly handicapped as Northwestern. And Minnesota, even if victorious, has games with Indiana and Illinois and the return contest with Iowa at Iowa City to worry about.

Northwestern is expected to improve its position tonight at Ann Arbor, since Michigan has failed to win in four games, although the Wolverines played exceptionally well for 30 minutes Saturday night against Illinois only to lose, 34 to 22.

Maroons' Last Chance.

The other game tonight brings together Chicago and Ohio State. The Buckeyes' only victory was at the expense of Michigan, while Chicago has been whipped three times. The Maroon defense is weak, and although Haarlow's individual brilliance is a ray of hope, as his 22 points against Minnesota Saturday, two-thirds of his team's points, attest, Chicago cannot win frequently. Indeed, if the Maroons don't beat Ohio State they will have difficulty escaping tenth place in the final standings.

Nearing the half way mark in the conference campaign, and the interlude caused by semester examinations, a general observation of basketball would be that under the present rules no team can hope to win 12 games or be dominatingly strong. The shift in officiating from game to game, depending on whether the men in charge are lenient in permitting personal contact or strict in ruling contact as fouls; the matter of luck in shooting from a distance and general equality of material are bases for this statement.

NEW MEN TAKE 9 BIG FOOTBALL COACHING JOBS

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Although the precarious profession of college football coaching, on the whole, seems to be approaching greater stability with the advent of the new year, it is a fact that nine changes of major importance have been made since the tumult and the shouting of the 1934 season subsided.

At least a dozen other coaches in various parts of the country will be replaced before another playing campaign puts the damper on the reform wave or silences the anvil chorus of alumni.

Heads for New Roundup.

Latest among the vacancies is the head coaching job at Colorado university, where W. J. Saunders struck a new note by resigning yesterday, with two more years to go on a five year contract, in order to take up the business of rounding up cattle instead of football talent. Another major spot to be filled is at Southern Methodist, where Madison [Batty] Bell seems a logical candidate to replace Ray Morrison, newly installed as the veteran Dan McGugin's successor at Vanderbilt.

Dispatches have stressed the successful records of the following figures in the coaching shakeup: Dick Harlow to Harvard from Western Maryland; Don McCallister to South Carolina from Waite High, Toledo; Lynn Waldorf to Northwestern from Kansas State, and Don Faurot to Missouri from Kirksville [Mo.] Teachers.

It is notable, from the standpoint of stability, that four major vacancies have been filled, so to speak, from the ranks. Wes Fry was elevated from back field coach to head coach at Kansas State; Leonard [Stub] Allison replaced William [Navy Bill] Ingram at the University of California after serving as an assistant; Maj. W. H. Britton stepped up to replace Maj. R. R. Neyland at Tennessee, and Louisiana State picked its track coach, Bernie Moore, to fill the post vacated by Capt. Lawrence [Biff] Jones, the artilleryman who defied Huey Long.

Duquesne Job Open.

Mississippi State is looking for a successor to Capt. A. R. MacKechnie, who resigned recently. Duquesne must replace Joe Bach, the former Notre Dame star, who left to take the job at coaching Pittsburgh's professional club. Knox has narrowed down to ten the list of candidates for the job of pulling Old Siwash out of the ruck. Other colleges where head coaching changes have been or will be made include Swartmore [Pa.], Dickinson [Pa.], Loyola of the South, Johns Hopkins, Western Maryland, and University of Rochester [N. Y.].

FLANNIGAN DUQUESNE COACH?

M'SPADEN'S 67 GIVES HIM LEAD IN $2,500 OPEN

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 20. — (AP) — Harold McSpaden, slender young Kansas City, Kas., professional, went into the lead of the $2,500 Sacramento open golf turnament at the end of 36 holes today. McSpaden, despite the chilly weather, toured the 6,787 yard Municipal course in 67 strokes, five better than par. With his 73 of Saturday, he leaped into the lead at 140 strokes.

Kim Demaret of Galveston, Tex., who had 73 yesterday, shaded par by four strokes and landed in second place, 73—68—141.

A stroke back of him was Charles Lacy, of Great Neck, N. Y., who shot a 73 today for a 36 hole score of 143. He was tied by Emory Zimmerman of Portland, Ore., who turned in a 68 to add to his 75 of Saturday.

Sarazen Two Over Par.

Gene Sarazen, of New York, another of Saturday's quartet, could do no better than a 74, two over par, and his 36 hole score of 144 was matched by John Perelli, of Lake Tahoe. Perelli turned in a 69 to go with his 75 of yesterday.

Five more players were grouped at 145, five strokes behind McSpaden. These included Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., and Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa. Each slumped to a 75 today where each had taken 70 strokes Saturday.

Bracketed with them at 145 strokes were Ted Longworth, of Portland, who had 73—72; Clarence Clark, Blumfield, N. J., who added a 74 today to his 71 of Saturday, and Sam Parks of Pittsburgh, 74—71.

Three Tied at 147.

Back of these leaders but within striking distance of them were a group of the game's outstanding players. Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., had 71—75—146, while Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., winner of the Los Angeles open, shot par today for 75—72—147, and Willie Goggin, San Francisco, cut a stroke off perfect figures on the second 18 holes with 76—71—147.

Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, turned in 76—72—148 and was tied with Walter Hagen, who shot two 74's. With hardly more than an outside chance were Ky Laffoon, Chicago, 76—73—149; Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 75—74—149; Denny Shute, Philadelphia, 72—77—149, and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., P. G. A. champion, 76—75—150.

WILLAMAN SETS TRACK RECORD IN MIDGET RACES

Tony Willaman, Milwaukee automobile racer, driving an outboard motor, won the 20 lap event in record time last night at the 124th Field Artilley armory before a crowd of 5,000.

Willaman, off in second position, followed Snyder closely for five laps, then took the lead and lapped the field. Ted Hartly of Indiana, beat Marshall Lewis, coast champion, for second place. Wally Mitchell was in fourth. The time was 4:12, a new track record.

Willaman also won the handicap race of five laps and the pursuit race. In the pursuit race, Willaman lapped the field in 5 laps. Last week it took him 22 laps to win the event.

Ralph McDaniels, while trying to pass two cars on a turn, crashed into the north wall and overturned. He escaped with only a few scratches. This event was won by Shorty Sorensen.

C. S. BISHOP WINS GLEN VIEW SHOT WITH 98 SCORE

Scoring his first victory of the season, C. S. Bishop yesterday won the feature shoot at the Glen View club traps with a 98, annexing the L. A. Crowell trophy. Considering the rain, which proved a genuine obstacle to the shooters, the scores were unusually good. Two birds behind Bishop and tied for second place were six shooters, J. J. Healy, L. S. Gordon, J. O. Stoll, Glen Smith, F. L. McNally, and F. G. Searle. Fred McNally and Glen Smith won the protection shoot with a 96.

Chicagoland Opossum Leave Meandering Trails in Snow

BY BOB BECKER.

The outdoorsman who gets into the woods during fairly mild weather following a snow should have no difficulty in seeing the tracks of the opossum, because these slow moving, stupid furbearers still live in stretches of timber throughout Chicagoland. Two of these animals were trapped last week on THE TRIBUNE auxiliary farm near Wheaton. Another was captured on the experimental farm near Yorkville a few days ago.

The opossum doesn't care for very cold weather, so he holes up when the temperature gets down low. Then during milder weather [especially damp nights], he becomes quite active. Few of our furbearers are easier to trap than the opossum. We have caught many of them with very crude sets baited with meat and fish.

Toes Turn Outward.

The possum makes an aimless, meandering sort of trail in the snow. It will be noticed that the toes of the animal are turned outward when the possum walks. The footprints of the front foot of an average specimen measure about 1¼ inches, whereas the hind foot leaves a slightly larger track in the snow.

There are enough weasels in the country near Chicago to cause farmers and landowners trouble every once in a while. This bloodthirsty little killer [the little ermine] of our winter woods and fields, will kill chickens, pheasants or other fowl just for the sheer love of killing.

We happened to visit the state game farm at Yorkville one summer, in company with a group of Boy Scout canoeists going down the Fox river, just in time to see the kills of a savage little weasel which had attacked a setting hen brooding a big hatch of quail chicks. The weasel wasn't hungry, because it had barely touched the birds after killing them, but it wiped out this bird family as though starved for food.

Weasel is Easy to Fool.

The tracks of the weasel are quite a bit smaller than those of the mink. The length of the jump may be around 15 or 18 inches. You'll see footprints around log piles, walls, brush heaps, rock heaps, and like places. Of the many species of animals trapped in North and South America, there are few small animals so easy to fool with a baited trap as the weasel. One smell of fresh meat and blood and in he goes.

The mink, valued for his pelt, is another little killer. It likes streams and watercourses, so look for its tracks in such places. This animal is quite a rambler and during the course of its travels it will explore holes in stream banks, drittwood piles, and other objects along the stream. The mink travels by the jump, the space between each jump ranging from 17 or 18 inches up to 24 inches.

ST. LOUIS EAGLES REVIVE TO ROUT RED WINGS, 6 TO 1

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The surprising St. Louis Eagles demonstrated their ability to come back here tonight by routing the Detroit Red Wings 6 to 1 in a National Hocky league match before a crowd of 5,000, the smallest of the season.

Beaten 6 to 2 at Toronto by the Leafs Saturday night, the Eagles with only two defense men and only twelve men in uniform, put on an attack which made the Wings look bad for most of the game. In the final period the Eagles unleashed an attack, led by Joy Lamb and the speedy Sid Howe, that produced four goals.

Strong, Danowski Lead New York Drive.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The New York Giants, champions of the National Professional Football league, had no trouble defeating Ernie Nevers' West Coast All-Stars, 21 to 0, before 25,000 at Kezar stadium today. The game was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and served as a warmup for the champions' contest with the Chicago Bears next week.

Ed Danowski and Ken Strong, hard hitting backs on the New York eleven, dominated the winner's drive. Danowski's passes proved tough for the All-Stars to solve, while Strong drove through the line and around ends for substantial gains.

All-Stars Are Stopped.

The All-Stars did not threaten seriously, as the powerful New York line outcharged the Coast forwards. The Giants scored early in the first period, added another touchdown soon after, and then scored for the final time in the third quarter.

The first touchdown came after a 53 yard march on 12 plays. Danowski threw three successful passes during the advance, the final landing in Flaherty's hands behind the goal line for the score. Strong place kicked the extra point.

Griffith Fumbles Kickoff.

Griffith fumbled the New York kickoff and the Giants recovered on the 20 yard line. Four line smashes carried the ball into the end zone for the second touchdown, Strong scoring. He again added the extra point. The final touchdown came on Danowski's pass to Burnett, after New York again had recovered a fumble on the 20 yard line in the third quarter. Danowski kicked the extra point to bring the score to 21 to 0.

BUDGET REFORM URGED TO REDUCE GOVERNING COSTS

Trade Group Alarmed by Rising Expenditures.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Alarmed at the steadily increasing cost of state and local governments, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States made public today an appeal for far reaching budget reform in the interests of efficiency and economy.

The suggestions were the result of a comprehensive report by a special committee appointed to make a detailed study of state and municipal costs.

Many current deficits have been found to be due to faulty planning, the report stated, particularly with reference to revenue estimates, and attention was called to the success of some governmental units in avoiding deficits during the depression period "as a result of good budgetary procedure."

Preparation of Budget.

The budget should be prepared in a finance department directly responsible to the chief executive, the report added. The major recommendations were as follows:

"A budget embraces a complete fiscal program for a definite period of time, in which are set forth all proposed expenditures and all estimated receipts. The budgetary process should be continuous, and consists of the steps whereby the estimates are prepared, and the program devised, adopted and carried into effect.

"Preparation and form of the budget: The budget should be prepared by or under the direction of the chief executive. It should consist of three major divisions: a summary, the detailed budget plan and estimates, and drafts of the necessary appropriation acts or ordinances. It should be comprehensive and embrace all proposed expenditures and all anticipated receipts, including operations of income producing, public service enterprises, such as waterworks, and all proposals for capital outlay, whether to be paid for from bond issues, special assessments, tax receipts, or other revenues. Revenue and expenditure estimates should be made with care, large deficits or surpluses should be avoided. Balanced budgets are essential to good budgetary practice.

Adoption of Budget.

"Adoption of the budget: The chief executive should present the budget to the legislature for adoption. The legislature, before considering the budget in detail, should determine upon maximum limits of expenditures and receipts. Permission should be given the legislature to decrease but not increase the expenditure proposals made by the executive. There should be limitations upon adoption of supplementary and deficiency appropriations. The executive should have the power to veto individual items in appropriation bills.

"Carrying out the budget: Budgetary administration should be centralized in a finance department under the control of the chief executive. Budgets should be carried out by the chief executive through an allotment system, devised with attention to a carefully devised work program which is closely related to revenues actually received. Accounting systems should be set up on an accrual rather than a cash basis, and cost accounting should be adopted wherever possible and practicable. The executive should have power to reduce expenditures below appropriations when expected income is not being realized.

Overlapping Units.

"Overlapping governmental units: Budgetary difficulties caused by overlapping local governments should be eliminated by consolidation of such units, or through the establishment of authorities with power to review and coördinate the fiscal programs of such agencies.

"State relations to local budget making: Each state should consider the establishment of an agency to advise, assist and, in the event of the development of fiscal difficulties, supervise local governments in their fiscal administration."

ARGENTINA PLANS A CENTRAL BANK AS TRADE HELP

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Establishment of a central bank in the Argentine, a proposal now before congress, heartened politicians, economists, and bankers today with prospects of increased purchases of American farm machinery, automobiles, and general supplies. Foreign bankers have been invited to make suggestions regarding the five congressional bills creating the bank, which is expected to thaw out credits and tighten banking regulations.

Additional purchases of American products would be made possible, economists believe, though reëstablishment of normal political conditions and increased financial stability.

In the face of improved conditions European nations are pushing drives for trade in competition with the United States. The trade war has never been so intense as now. England, holding first place in sales to Argentina, enjoys special facilities under a trade agreement. Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, Spain, and Brazil also concluded trade pacts with Argentina during the year. Despite the Argentine-European pacts, however, American exports to Argentina increased about $12,000,000 last year to reach $41,000,000.

LETTERS

Letters of not more than 200 words, addressed to the financial editor, will be printed in these columns from time to time.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Large commitments of gold for bonds, currencies, and deposits made the gold standard untenable. Introduction of silver is only a politic makeshift, because all the gold and silver in the world would not suffice to cover these commitments in the United States alone.

A real standard would be to fix the amount of medium of exchange, which is currency plus checks. Currency should therefore be manipulated in inverse proportion to weekly clearings. In 1929 there was $4,250,000,000 of currency, while average weekly clearings were $14,000,000,000. Now we have $5,500,000,000 of currency and weekly clearings of $5,000,000,000. We are therefore still crawling on the bottom of deflation to the tune of $7,750,000,000.

Either currency or credit should be expanded until we are back to a medium of exchange of around $18,000,000,000. The government can evidently only control currency and would be justified in increasing it about 13 billion dollars, but no more, and then withdraw the currency at the rate at which credit expands.

REGIONAL LABOR GROUP ASSAILS COMPANY UNIONS

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 20.—(AP)—A regional labor conference today "warned" the national administration of impending unrest and strikes unless congress "outlaws" company unions, provides for majority rule in collective bargaining and enforces the labor provisions of the NRA.

Delegates from fourteen southern states attending the conference heard Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins outline the administration's economic security program as the climax of a day of resolution—the making of which included verbal assaults on those opposing labor policies.

Resolutions adopted at the opening of the two day session for formulation of a program of state labor legislation struck at the use of National Guard troops during strikes, urged ratification of the child labor amendment, requested a department of justice investigation into the southern states industrial council and asked President Roosevelt to see that Harlan county, Kentucky, "be made a part of the United States of America."

24 SECURITIES ARE REGISTERED IN DECEMBER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Twenty-four registration statements involving issues of $47,640,863 became effective in December, bringing the total number of effective registration statements up to Dec. 31, under the securities act of 1933, to 896 for offerings of $1,353,658,108.

Of the total, 383 were industrial issues for $363,470,343; 224 were in the group classified as financials, for $743,125,929; 288 were reorganization issues, aggregating $237,181,836, and one a foreign government issue for $9,880,000.

Of the twenty-four becoming effective in December, twelve were industrials for $20,633,749; four were financials for $15,258,950, and eight reorganizations involving $11,748,164.

There were twelve suspensions during December, seven by withdrawal and five by consent refusal order.

INVESTORS BUY CITY BONDS OF SECOND GRADE

Seek Use for Idle Funds; Prime Issues Scarce.

The paucity of opportunities afforded for idle funds of investors has been steadily driving money into second and third grade municipal bonds. High grade municipals have been advancing consistently for the last 13 months, with lower grade issues following in their wake.

Recently yields on prime investments have fallen to such a low point that investors have searched frantically for new mediums which offer fair opportunities. As a result the spread between first and second grade municipal bonds has shown a distinctly narrowing tendency. Bond traders report that practically all classes of municipals have benefited from the demand, except those issues which obviously have no chance.

Intrinsic Values Less Regarded.

The necessity for putting money to work has completely changed the outlook of investors and intrinsic values are not being considered as closely as in the past. Anything that appears able to work itself out is encountering active bidding.

There are many instances of the avid demand which has boosted prices sharply, with resultant lowered yields. Detroit bonds, selling around 45 a year ago, are now quoted at 95.

City of Chicago 4s, which three months ago were quoted 95 to 96, are now said to be extremely difficult to buy at 101. Sanitary district bonds, of which $17,000,000 is in default, are selling above 90. Cook county forest preserve bonds are bringing 95, while Arkansas bonds, considered unattractive a while ago, are being used by postal savings banks, according to reports.

Bond Houses' Business Expands.

The volume of business handled by municipal houses has displayed rapid growth. Estimates vary widely, but one leading organization, which says its figures are fairly indicative of the market, handled 40 per cent more business during 1934 than in the preceding year, while volume thus far in January is 150 per cent of that in the same period last year.

Demand has come from all sources—banks, insurance companies, fraternal orders, estates, institutions, and individuals—and has steadily pointed prices higher as bids continue to flood the market.

Coincident with the upturn in price is the sharp contraction of profit available for underwriters. Formerly syndicates obtained 2, 3, and 4 points on first grade bonds, but now gross profits of even a point are difficult to obtain.

Sues Broker for Losses in Kreuger-Toll Stocks

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 20.—Recovery of alleged losses in Kreuger-Toll company stocks is sought here in a $50,000 suit filed by J. M. Stoner Jr. against the brokerage firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. Stoner, who said he purchased more than 2,000 shares of the stock at prices as high as $32 a share, claimed the Kreuger-Toll financial status was misrepresented.

Normal Supply of Cotton in 1935-'36 Season Is Seen

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—A normal world supply of United States cotton is indicated for the 1935-'36 season, according to the New York Cotton exchange service. The service states that the allowable production next season, added to the indicated carry-over, would result in a world supply about equal to that of this season, considerably smaller than in recent seasons and about equal to normal, judged by pre-depression standards.

FRENCH ASSAIL PREMIER'S STAND ON TOURIST TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin's recent declaration that tourist trafic has ceased to play an important part in the economy of France last week brought increasingly vigorous protests from his countrymen. The immediate cause is a growing conviction recently that the new world is "turning the corner."

Trans-Atlantic visitors always form an important part of the tourist trafic of France. If America is getting travel-minded again, France cannot afford to miss grabbing her share, is the burden of the complaint.

Tourists always have been one of the most important sources of income in France and are no less so now; in fact, they are necessary for balancing the budget. While the volume of travelers in the world has been greatly reduced since the depression started, France, it is insisted, is not even getting its share of what there is.

Other Nations Get Business.

Britain, Germany, Italy, Austria and Spain are attracting the bulk of the tourist stream, it is claimed, partly through a vastly more vigorous and skilful propaganda and partly through more friendly efficiency and accommodations for visitors.

Another important reason for France's loss of so much of its tourist trafic is its maintenance of the gold standard. Tourists equipped with dollars, for instance, can buy only 60 per cent as much in France as in Britain, and the buying power of the dollar in other surrounding countries is substantially higher than in France. To remedy this handicap somewhat certain deputies from tourist sections of France suggest the establishment of a "tourist franc." This franc would buy 20 francs' worth, instead of 15 francs' worth as at present, and would be granted only to travelers from abroad.

Americans Desert France.

Only 20 per cent of the Americans arriving in Europe disembark at Cherbourg or Havre, according to the latest figures, and not by any means all of those who get off at these two ports stay very long in France. The big proportion stays long enough to discover the high price of the French franc and everything the franc buys.

Then they move on to Austria, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, and Hungary.

Italians offer staggering reductions in railway fares. Germany grants blocked marks. All of them, including notably Switzerland, Spain, Czechoslovakia, and Austria, practice an intensive propaganda.

But the greatest sinner of all, from the French point of view, is London, with its "intense and brilliant and prosperous life," to use the words of one French economist. The unkindest cut of the British is propagandizing the royalty's comings and goings and marriages and whatnot with the eager coöperation of the French press, which readily gives pages and pages to the doings of British royalty.

ELECTRIC SUPPLY BUSINESS EXPECTED TO SHOW GAIN IN 1935

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Frank J. Jones, president of the National Electrical Manufacturers' association, reports that the electrical manufacturing industry may expect this year an improvement in business as compared with 1934 ranging from "next to nothing" to 20 per cent, depending upon the chief line of products of each company, and that the outlook for next fall seems better than that for the first half of the year.

Among the favorable factors cited by Mr. Jones are expansion of public works construction, a more favorable outlook for industry in general, likelihood of substantial rural electrification programs, and necessity of electric companies to push sales of appliances to offset rate declines. Other favorable signs include better tax collections in municipalites, with greater opportunity for promotion work on products offered for sale to local governments, FHA stimulus not only in homes but also office buildings and factories, tendency to put cash reserves into plant improvements, and greater sales of products entering into automobile manufacture.

Among the unfavorable factors mentioned by Mr. Jones are the apparently adverse government attitude toward public utilities, which, he says, has caused a substantial postponement of all except absolutely necessary maintenance work on utility properties," and adverse effects of the attitude of business toward the securities act.

SEES FINANCE'S GRASP SCOURGE OF ALL INDUSTRY

Ford Aid Is Critic of Old Capitalism.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Declaring financial overlordship the chief scourge of industry, William J. Cameron, official spokesman for Henry Ford, tonight spoke before a large audience in Orchestra hall.

"At least two opposed systems of business confront each other in this country," Cameron said. "Management economy is taking the place of the old capitalistic economy. Money management is being challenged by engineering management. It is one of the most significant movements of the century because of the unlimited social import."

Cameron declared the only way many persons can make their contribution toward a better world is by "exposing and denouncing the abuses of capitalism," and added that capitalism in its current use is meant the control of any human interest by money for the sake of money.

Independence Is Challenge.

"Such control [of human interest] is socially unintelligent and materially disastrous because it is morally wrong," Cameron said, adding that "its new powerful opponent today is the American type of independent business."

"Capitalism and industry, synonymous for years, today have reached the parting of the ways," he declared.

Tracing the financial and industrial history of the country from pioneer days, Cameron told his hearers that the initial capital investment of the pioneers was in land, water, and individual enterprise rather than in money.

"Because of that fortunate beginning," he said, "there have been times in our history when our people have come nearer to exploding that money myth than has any other nation. And we may be the first to do it yet."

Interest 400 Years Old.

Interest, as a recognized and respectable means of gain, was bootlegged into decent business practice only 400 years ago, Cameron asserted. He added that business suffers great disadvantage under financial overlordship.

Independent business, the speaker declared, is a "standing challenge to the abuses of capitalism and consequently is the object of unceasing attack by capitalistic forces. The attack, he said, is delivered in devious ways, through politics, through banking channels, through labor troubles and even a strike may be part of the competitive strategy.

Through heavy foreign investments in this country the nation gradually was brought under capitalistic control, Cameron charged. "But far too much in human value was paid for this investment," he insisted.

Assails Public Financing.

Citing examples of public financing which makes money the principal commodity of commerce, which he asserted it is not, Cameron said a school board builds a $50,000 schoolhouse, pays $50,000 for the building and another $50,000 in interest on the loan for the money that it pays for the building—making a $50,000 operation which costs $100,000.

"The good it does," he said, is largely undone by entailing an expensive debt through the interest system. Capitalistic finance is built upon the interest system and interest as a means of gain was bootlegged into business practice 400 years ago."

BRITISH SHIPPING IN BEST POSITION OF LAST 5 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.—On the heels of British proposals for an international shipping conference in London for scrapping the world's surplus tonnage, it was revealed tonight that British shipping is in the best position it has been in during the last five years.

Statistics issued by the chamber of shipping show that 323 vessels were laid up in ports of Great Britain and Ireland on Jan. 1, 1935, of which 318, representing 864,922 net tons, were British. This is 159 vessels, or 361,891 tons, less than the year before and the lowest since Jan. 1, 1930.

The diminution is not due to revival of world trade, but mainly is the result of a big increase in the number of vessels scrapped during the year. Nevertheless, the outlook is the brightest for some time. In October, 1932, the slump reached its height, with 871 vessels laid up. Since then the total of idle ships has decreased by 63 per cent and tonnage by 60 per cent.

177 BANKS HOLD MORE THAN SIXTY PCT. OF DEPOSITS

New York, Jan. 20. — [Special.] — More than 60 per cent of the combined deposits of all licensed commercial banks in the country is held by 177 banks, according to Financial Age. In a compilation of the largest banks in the country, the aggregate of their deposits as of Dec. 31 is $24,526,110,000. The total number of licensed banks is 15,834, according to the latest official figures, and the total deposits of these banks is estimated at about $40,000,000,000.

Of the 177 largest banks, twenty-six are in New York and have deposits of $10,256,820,000, or about 42 per cent of the total of all banks in this class. Only three banks in the country have deposits of more than $1,000,000,000. They are the Chase National bank, the National City bank, and the Guaranty Trust company. The Bank of America National Trust and Savings association of San Francisco is a close fourth with deposits of $987,000,000.

Grain Prices Steady After Selling Storm

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Emerging from a sea of liquidation in which it floundered for a day or so the grain market righted itself and ended last week on a fairly even keel. The action of the market throughout the week was suggestive of the course of a ship without a compass. Prices zig-zagged nervously, first one way and then the other, without developing a definite trend. An undercurrent of uncertainty influenced the operation of traders.

The difficulty of measuring the money value of wheat or corn or any other article in a period when the money itself is subject to a possible sudden change was mirrored in quick and erratic fluctuations in the quoted prices. Holders fearful of a decision adverse to the government in the gold clause cases were a source of selling.

Pressure Eases Late in Week.

This pressure eased up somewhat late in the week, however, as speculators accepted as futile the attempts to anticipate the nature of the Supreme court's interpretation. Moderate recovery in prices was experienced Friday and Saturday, influenced largely by the strength in foreign markets and the advent of a severe cold wave over a large area of the grain belt.

Final quotations on the principal grains Saturday were uniformly below those of the preceding week. In all instances, however, material recovery had been made from the low prices touched during the peak of the liquidation early in the week. May wheat closed the week at 98¾ cents a bushel, compared with a low of 95 cents a few days earlier. Compared with the price prevailing a week before May wheat was down only ½ cent a bushel. Losses of 1½ and 2 cents a bushel were shown by other wheat futures.

Corn Loses More Than Cent.

TRADE FAILURE RATE PUT AT 14 OF 1,000 CONCERNS

Failures among retail establishments amount to about 14 out of every 1,000 in business during a year, according to a survey made by the national industrial conference board.

Restaurants, according to the study, show the highest immunity to failure, while other concerns showing ability to weather business storms include dairies, food stores, optical and scientific instrument stores, cigar stores, automobile concerns, and garages.

Following are the number of failures in 1931 per 1,000 establishments in business during 1929: Dry goods stores, 43; gifts, novelties, toys, 40; clothing and apparel, 32; jewelry, 26; drug stores, including soft drink stands, 22; coal, wood yards, ice, and supplies, 22; furniture, 21; paints and glass, 20; general stores, 18, and florists, 18.

Others are: Machinery, hardware, equipment, 15; garage, accessories, and repairs, 13; cigars, 11; automobiles, 11; optical and scientific instruments, 10; foods, except dairy products, 7; dairies, 7; restaurants and eating places, 6.

URGES UTILITY FIRMS TO SHOW FIGHTING SPIRIT

Stockholders and officials of public utility companies will find themselves in the "same plight of general decrepitude and helplessness as the railways" unless they rouse from their lethargy, William Cavalier, head of a New York brokerage firm, said yesterday.

"But there is still time for the utilities to pull themselves out of their state of indifference and prevent another American tragedy, not to the nation's multimillionaires but to the small investors who seem to always get left holding the empty sack," he said.

Mr. Cavalier warned that federal and state bodies must be made aware of the property rights of citizens in public utilities. He hit at backhand methods of destorying the value of properties and setting up competing government owned systems.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES SHARPLY; RATE NOW 51%

Steady Expansion in Reported Demand.

Sharp gains in steel production in several districts last week lifted the national average 5½ points to 51 per cent, with the base for iron and steel demand broadening at the same time, according to the magazine Steel. Chicago was among the leaders in the upward movement with an increase of 7 points to 56 per cent of capacity.

Significance was attached to a 6 point rise at 32 per cent in the Pittsburgh district because it resulted from a greater diversity of requirements, the journal says. Two more blast furnaces were lighted in that region and six more are scheduled to be lighted within the next ten days. Business in sheets, strip and wire is comparable to that in 1929, says the review, with sheet mills unable to make full deliveries of full finished automobile material until four to six weeks.

Pittsburgh Bookings Large.

Producers at Pittsburgh are booking 5,000 to 6,000 tons of steel bars daily. Tractor and implement production is recovering fully as well as automobiles, the journal says. Operations in the tin plate industry are at 65 per cent of capacity with orders from canmakers exceeding production.

"Some improvement is apparent in practically all important groups except structurals and railroads," the magazine says. "Since the first of the year ingots have been produced at a rate 25 per cent higher than the average for 1934, indicating that unless reinforced soon with tonnage from these two major consumers, steelworks' operations are nearing a peak."

Production schedules of the automobile industry are being geared up for an output of at least 275,000 units this month and a total of 1,000,000 for the first quarter of the year. Last week 67,000 cars were turned out, compared with 59,700 cars in the preceding week.

Railroad Orders Rising.

Orders from railroads are rising slowly, with the Norfolk and Western distributing 32,000 tons of rails and 12,000 tons of fastenings and the Louisville & Nashville awarding 15,000 tons of rails. Operations will be resumed this week at the Carnegie Steel company's rail mills at Braddock, Pa. Shape awards for the week amounted to 14,200 tons, compared with 9,246 tons for the preceding week, including 5,100 tons for the Guttenburg dam in Iowa.

Purchases of scrap are heavier with prices in the east 50 cents higher, while the market in Chicago has reacted 50 cents per ton. The magazine's iron and steel price composite is 5 cents higher at $32.62 a ton, and scrap composite 17 cents better at $12.25, while the finished steel index is unchanged at $54 a ton.

Trade Group Officials to Be Installed Wednesday

George W. Young, president, and other reëlected executives of the Association of Commerce will be installed at the annual meeting of the trade organization at the Hotel La Salle Wednesday noon. All of the officers of the association were reelected a few weeks ago. Campaigns to bring more conventions to Chicago, to assure an all-year round program of special events such as the Army-Navy football games, and more extended publicity for the city will be the program to be stressed for the coming year.

Average Daily Closing Prices of 50 Leading Stocks on the New York Stock Exchange

30 Hour Week Much Opposed in Steel Trade

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Opposition in the steel trade as well as among consumers of steel to proposed legislation for a 30 hour week in the industry is indicated in reports to the American Iron and Steel institute, it was announced today.

"Steel mill employés," the announcement stated, "are reported to be generally against the measure because they fear it will result in a reduction in weekly earnings or in freezing those earnings at existing levels.

Fear Market Contraction.

"Management of the steel industry is fearful that the difficulties attendant upon six hour day operations would be insurmountable and would cause contraction of markets."

Consumers of steel are represented as feeling certain that the 30 hour week would make for substantially higher prices of finished products, and as an example estimate the added direct cost of making steel at more than $100,000,000 in 1934 had the 30 hour week been in effect during that year.

"Because of the large deficits indicated for 1934," the institute announcement said, "the added wage cost would necessarily have been added to prices in addition to the direct cost. There would be increase in cost of all materials and commodities used in the production of steel."

Would Reduce Work.

Under the existing 40 hour week maximum allowed under the steel code, the institute announcement said, the volume of steel orders in 1934 was sufficient to provide only three-quarters of full time employment, and the average worker put in only 29.7 hours weekly. Had this volume been shared by the increased number necessary to put into effect the 30 hour week, the institute stated, the individual employé would have averaged no more than 20 hours weekly.

ACTION TAKEN HERE.

A questionnaire has been sent to manufacturers by the Illinois Manufacturers' association, asking that they express their views on the thirty hour week, the association has announced.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to determine the attitude of manufacturers toward the bill introduced in congress that prohibits the shipment of any goods in interstate or foreign commerce that have been produced in any mine, quarry, mill or manufacturing establishment in which any person except officers, executives, and clerical assistants was employed for more than five days a week or more than six hours a day.

The bill, it is explained by the association, would prohibit the United States from purchasing commodities of any business operating in violation of the act and would require every contractor for public work to stipulate that he will not buy from such business enterprises.

RETAIL TRANSACTIONS IN CHICAGO ARE 5 TO 8 PER CENT OVER 1934

Retail business in Chicago last week was 5 to 8 per cent higher than a year ago, while wholesale trade was swelled by heavy attendance at trade expositions and conventions here, the Chicago Association of Commerce says.

Even better gains would have been shown in retail business had the weather been more favorable. Wholesalers received heavy orders for furniture, spring clothing, household furnishings and all kinds of textiles.

With steel mills in the Chicago area increasing production 7 points to 56 per cent, compared with 29 per cent a year ago, it was necessary for several mills to recall office forces for Saturday employment.

CHICAGO MAIL ORDER REPORTS PROFIT OF $697,555

Net profit of the Chicago Mail Order company in the year ended Dec. 29, 1934, amounted to $697,555, or 3.7 per cent on sales of $18,972,012, according to the annual statement just issued. This compares with net profit of $218,300, or 1.2 per cent on sales of $18,015,463 in 1933, and is the eleventh consecutive year in which the company has earned a profit.

In a statement to stockholders, E. M. Schnadig, president, said that sales last year exceeded those of any other year in the company's history, with the exception of 1928 and 1929. Current assets as of Dec. 29 amounted to $4,827,235, against current liabilities of $1,174,086, or a current ratio of 4 to 1. This compares with current assets of $4,271,869 and current liabilities of $876,267 at the end of the preceding fiscal year.

An active customer list, together with improved conditions and a growing farm purchasing power, indicates a very favorable outlook for 1935, Schnadig said.

Rail Credit Corporation to Distribute $726,166

E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit corporation, announced that the corporation will make a liquidating distribution on Jan. 31 of $726,166, or 1 per cent, to participating carriers. Of this amount $344,834 will be in cash and $381,332 will be in credits.

Let Jobs Soon on 2 Millions Sewer Works

Contracts calling for the expenditure of more than $2,000,000 will be awarded by the Chicago sanitary district within the next few days as part of the $21,646,000 construction program for 1935, according to an announcement yesterday by Philip Harrington, chief of the district engineering staf.

The two new contracts are part of those made possible through the loan and grant of $41,938,000 allotted to the district by the Public Works administration. Actual construction will get under way within a month on these new projects.

Eastern Concerns Bid Low.

Contracts for heavy pumping machinery for the southwest pumping station will be awarded to one of several eastern concerns that submitted low bids of approximately $650,000.

The S. A. Healy company of Chicago was low bidder for the $1,500,000 sewer, 18 feet in diameter, to parallel the drainage canal from Crawford avenue to the site of the treatment works at Pershing road and 56th avenue, Stickney.

The latter project will give employment to about 800 men for the next year and a half. Meanwhile plans and specifications for other phases of the $21,000,000 construction program are being drafted and contracts will be awarded within the next six months for the bulk of this work.

Prospects for Completion.

"By the spring of 1937 construction made possible under the PWA loan will have been completed," Mr. Harrington said. "There will remain about $70,000,000 in construction unfinished of the complete program planned for Jan. 1, 1939. Not all of this work will be required to comply with the Supreme court water diversion decision, but vast sums are still needed."

Revision of existing agreements between the sanitary district and the PWA will be completed this week in a series of conferences with Lloyd H. Landau, general counsel for the PWA. Changes in the original construction program have been approved by the resident engineers for the government and lack only the legal revision of the agreements under which the PWA made available funds for the work.

U. S. Rayon Production in 1934 Sets New Record

New York, Jan. 20.—Production of rayon in the United States during 1934 reached a new all time peak at 210,331,000 pounds, according to Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon corporation. In 1933 production was 208,530,000 pounds. Domestic consumption in 1934 aggregated 199,466,000 pounds, a reduction of 4 per cent from 1933.

WALL ST. MOVES SLOWLY, AWAITS GOLD DECISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 20.—Misgivings over the outcome of the gold bond cases now under advisement by the Supreme court continued to dominate sentiment on the stock exchange. Operations of the last week indicated that while traders had somewhat recovered from their scare of the week before they were determined to proceed cautiously until the ruling is out of the way and its consequences appraised. This, it is believed, may be several weeks yet, although a dispatch yesterday indicated that the decision may possibly be handed down tomorrow.

In the meantime brokers look for a period of stagnant trading, with the professional contingent furnishing whatever activity there is and the so-called rank and file sticking rigidly to the sidelines.

Trade Volume Declines.

Such a setup was pretty clearly defined in trading last week, particularly in the last three or four days, when volume subsided to around the half million share mark. Prices hardly moved during the entire six sessions and group activity was almost utterly lacking.

Board room comment indicates that while there is little disposition in speculative circles to share the attorney general's ideas of presumptive "chaos" in the event of a decision unfavorable to the government in the gold clause suits, there is a very widespread inclination to accept the "significant" questions propounded by Chief Justice Hughes to government counsel as a possible indication that the ruling would not be 100 per cent favorable to the government.

Guess as to Decision.

One guess going the rounds is that, while the government may be upheld on the abrogation of private corporation bond contracts and on the turning in of gold certificates, the Liberty bond gold clause may be upset. Few seem to think that the decision may go so far as to reverse the whole inflationary movement and "assurances" are plentiful that, whichever way the case goes, corporations will not have to pay off their gold bonds at $1.69 for each dollar of face value, a contingency which bulked large in

NEW POLICIES IN RETAILING DECLARED NEED

Merchants Find Revival Brings Changes.

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—New policies in retailing were declared at the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods association last week to be the most pressing need facing merchants.

Speakers and "off the record" commentators maintained the attitude that nearly five years of depression had lifted, and that selling methods resorted to in that period would have to be radically altered in stores that expected to participate in the revived business now appearing.

Attention was given to the state of physical equipment, from the size of the store to the condition of delivery trucks, and most merchants believed renovation and expansion were in order.

Consider Wage Revision.

An upward revision of wages, following the lines abandoned when depression set in, was called for by some executives, and all agreed that more study of the wage situation was necessary in the light of code stipulations and the general tendency to increase wages in lower brackets.

The selection of new employes with a view to high efficiency was stressed. Many admitted their stores during the depression had failed to train new junior executives.

The clearing out of old merchandise during lean years was pointed to as a good sign, and the wisdom of careful selection of replacement lines was praised.

Advertising and promotion of merchandise were analyzed with a large number of executives praising the daily newspaper as a medium which would permit advertising almost as appealing as spot news.

Consumer Reaction Watched.

Attention was given to consumer reaction to merchandise, and many merchants decided to place the welfare of the purchaser ahead of immediate profits, not through altruism but because such methods would bring even greater profits in following years.

Many store officials noted that the consumer was demanding more quality material than for many a year, and those who during the depression had cut prices and quality decided to ignore price and stress quality and fashion "because the consumer wants it."

The problem of mounting federal and state taxes gave pause to high executives of large and small stores. Many forms of taxation, such as the sales tax, were denounced bitterly.

OWENS-ILLINOIS '34 NET ESTIMATED AT $5.42 A SHARE

Net earnings of the Owens-Illinois Glass company and subsidiaries for 1934 were approximately $6,500,000, or $5.42 a share, on 1,200,000 shares of common stock outstanding, compared with $6,032,312 or $4.86 a share in 1933, William E. Levis, president, estimated yesterday.

These earnings are after deductions for depreciation, depletion, repairs, federal taxes, and bad accounts. Depreciation and depletion have been charged against both operating and non-operating plants at the same rates as in previous years, Levis said. Cash and the working capital position are said to be above the preceding year.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Jan. 30.

DU PONT TO MAKE STUDY OF POISON IN INDUSTRIES

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Research in industrial toxicology, on a scale said to have been never before attempted, will be carried on at the Haskell Laboratory of Industrial Toxicology, which has been established by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

The information gained from experiments in the laboratory, which will be opened Tuesday, will be of great value, it is believed, to the chemical industry as a whole in addition to the medical profession.

The function of the new laboratory will be to study the effects of new products, during manufacture, on the health of employés, and, pior to these new products being placed on the market, to study their possible effects on public health.

OVER 5 BILLION U. S. SECURITIES DUE WITHIN YEAR

New York, Jan. 20 — [Special.] — Obligations of the United States government in the hands of the public which will mature within twelve months amount to $5,540,818,400. They consist of treasury bonds, notes, and non-interest-bearing discount bills.

The Fourth Liberty 4¼s outstanding have been reduced to approximately $3,142,000,000. Of this amount $1,870,000,000 has been called for redemption on April 15.

The First Liberty 4¼s and the Liberty 3½s are not callable until June 15, 1935, and then only if notice is given by March 15. These issues are outstanding in the amounts of $535,981,250 and $1,392,226,350, respectively.

WALL ST. MOVES SLOWLY; WAITS GOLD DECISION

Trading in Stocks Slips to Half Million.

Washington advices indicating that the administration is ready to jump into the breach and rush "remedial" action through congress in the event of a setback at the hands of the court brought comfort to some of the more panicky minded.

News Is Favorable.

In view of the bigger problem, the doings of congress raised not a ripple on the market's surface. Neither did the trade news of the week, which was mostly favorable. The haul showed that railroad freight trafic has recovered, if perhaps a trifle less than seasonally, and that production of electricity continues to rise. Motor sales are reported as good. Farm implement makers, the automotive industry, and miscellaneous users are ordering more steel. The trade's operating rate has risen to virtually 50 per cent of capacity, the greatest since last spring and above a year ago. The average for the year promises to be above that of 1934 and to enable steel companies to operate at a small profit.

About the nearest approach to a feature in the week's stock price movements was a burst of activity in the preferred A and B shares of the Radio Corporation of America and a flurry in the senior issues of the Associated Dry Goods association on dividend developments. Steel stocks looked up toward the end of the week and the rails got some slight help from revived reports that the administration has further helpful projects on their behalf on its program.

Preferred Stockholders Support Studebaker Plan

In connection with hearings set for Friday, Jan. 25, before the Federal courts at Fort Wayne, Ind., on the proposed reorganization of the Studebaker corporation and Rockne Motors corporation, E. M. Morris, chairman of the Studebaker preferred stockholders' committee, stated that his committee believes the treatment accorded preferred stockholders is equitable and the plan should be supported.

RECOVERY HELPS NATIONS TO MEND BOND DEFAULTS

Survey Discloses Gains in Finances.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Progress made thus far in world economic recovery is now tending to "alleviate or remove" some of the conditions which caused defaults by foreign governments and their political subdivisions on dollar bonds outstanding in the United States, according to a survey of foreign bond defaults completed by the Institute of International Finance, which is conducted by the Investment Bankers' Association of America in cooperation with New York university.

Expressing the belief that foreign governments in default will take such steps as they are able to settle their external contractual obligations and restore their credit standing, the institute cites transfer budgetary difficulties as the principal reasons for the defaults.

Some Form of Payment.

"Contrary to the general belief, some form of payment is being made either in cash, or in scrip or funding bonds, of a large part of the foreign dollar bonds in default," the survey points out. "In most cases the scrip and funding bonds are readily marketable. Debt adjustment plans providing for partial payments in cash or in scrip or funding bonds cover, in practically all cases, only a short period. A number of them will terminate in 1935 and new arrangements will have to be made.

"In view of the improvement in economic conditions in some of the countries whose governments and political subdivisions are now in partial default, it is hoped that bondholders will be able to obtain better terms in the near future. It is also expected that some countries now in default will endeavor to make at least temporary settlements on their external obligations."

Debt Adjusment Plans.

The debt adjustment plans and debt service arrangements which will terminate in 1935 are listed by the institute as follows: Germany: Reichsbank offer on nonreich obligations, not yet operative with respect to dollar bonds, extends to June 30, 1935. Greece: Offer of partial payment on league loans extends to March 31, 1935. Hungary: Moratorium decree expires Dec. 22, 1935. Jugo-Slavia: Readjustment plan for national government loans ends May 31, 1935; for state mortgage bank, April 1, 1935. Argentina: Province of Buenos Aires readjustment plan extends to end of 1935; City of Tucuman readjustment plan terminates June 1, 1935. Colombia: Offer of scrip on Republic of Colombia and agricultural mortgage bank loans applies to coupons due to and including Jan. 1, 1935. Costa Rica: Funding plan for Republic of Costa Rica 7s, due 1951, end Nov. 1, 1935. El Salvador: Debt service agreement expired at end of 1934, but covered Jan. 1, 1935 coupons. Panama: Readjustment plan for Republic of Panama 5s, due 1963, terminates at the end of 1935. Uruguay: Offer of partial payment of interest on national government loans applied only to coupons matured during 1934, but a Jan. 1, 1935, coupon was paid on the same basis.

Although the citizens of the United States are suffering from defaults on some 1,500 million dollars principal amount of Latin American bonds, defaults which in many cases are unnecessary either wholly or in part, payments have been and can be obtained, according to F. Lavis, president of the Latin American Bond Holders' Association, Inc. The only sure remedy, he states, in a study of the Latin American bond situation, is to be had through the efforts of bondholders' representatives who must hold a mandate through the actual deposit of the bonds.

Need Real Authority.

"It seems pertinent to ask why, except in one instance, have we in the United States so signally failed to make any impression on the defaulted indebtedness of Latin America," said Mr. Lavis. "In the first place, except in the case of one country, there is no organization in the United States with any real authority to act for the bondholders. There can be no such organization, except that conferred by the actual deposit of bonds.

"There must be unity among the holders of all the bonds of each country and only one organization authorized, and competently authorized, to negotiate with each of the particular countries in default. Less than completely united action in any specific country as a whole is fatal. There must be actual contact on the ground between the bondholders through their representative and the debtors if reasonable solutions are to be reached."

Cotton Cloth Production Rises Sharply in Week

Cotton cloth production jumped from 83,700,000 yards to 120,000,000 yards in the first week of the new year, according to a survey made for the trade by a statistical publication. December takings by mills were 19 per cent above a year ago, the report said.
